ROOSEVELT DISDAINS DICTATORSHIP RULE, CALLS FOR U. S. SPIRIT OF COLONIAL DAYS

$2,500,000 Sought for Back-to-Farm Project

GEORGIA U. BOARD PLANS HOMESTEAD FOR 100 FAMILIES

North Georgia Will Be Site of 16,000-Acre Project, if U. S. Public Works Board Approves Regents' Loan Application.

SPONSORS PROPOSE 30-YR. LIQUIDATION

50-Acre, Completely-Equipped Farm Would Be Turned Over to Each Family in "Community."

By GLENN RAMSEY,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Establishment in north Georgia of a 16,000-acre co-operative back-to-the-farm project to support 100 families by utilizing approximately $2,500,000 of public works money, has been proposed to the federal government by the board of regents of the University of Georgia.

The project, details of which have been in the hands of Washington officials for sometime, may become the model for similar farm groups in the nation. The Georgia project would be liquidated within 30 years with a maximum interest rate of 3 1-2 per cent.

Under the $3,300,000,000 public works act $25,000,000 was set aside for subsistence homesteading. It is from this fund that the regents propose to get the money for the creation of the Georgia project in the Piedmont region of the state.

Definite word from Washington is expected before November 1.

Plans Not Perfected.

The regents, in submitting the project, said plans are not perfected and are subject to revision for adaptation to local conditions and climate after the area has been selected. It is explained that the proposal could be expanded to 32,000 acres to care for 200 families but plans are based on 100 families as the maximum.

The project centers around establishment of maintenance units of 50 acres for each family, of which 30 acres would be cultivatable and the remainder would be in marginal lands and forests. The hundred families thus would take up 5,000 of the 16,000 acres, leaving 11,000 acres to be handled from a community standpoint or as cropping areas for the maintenance farms.

Each farm is to be equipped with a residence, barn, hog house, poultry houses, farm machinery and animals to the value of $4,000. It is figured that the total investment would be $7,500 per family.

Farmer Would Be Responsible.

Responsibility for the maintenance unit would be assumed by the individual farmer. One of two plans is proposed in establishing the responsibility for the community or corporation farm. The maintenance unit would receive an equal share of stock and assume an equal responsibility for the community incorporated farm. The ownership of this stock would be definitely tied to the ownership of the maintenance unit.

An investment of $7,500 per family would mean that each maintenance farm owner would have 75 shares of the stock and would have the responsibility of paying back the money at

Whitehead's Ex-Wife Weds New York Heir

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Miss Marion Hughes, former wife of Conkey Whitehead, wealthy Atlanta sportsman, was married today to Andrew Pierce III, 26-year-old heir to woolen millions.

The ceremony was a quiet affair in All Saints' Unitarian church. The couple announced no honeymoon was planned an said they would live in an apartment in East 86th street here. A small reception in their home followed the wedding.

Only a few close friends witnessed the ceremony. The bride wore a grey ensemble. Walter A. Huges gave his daughter in marriage.

Whitehead and Miss Hughes were divorced recently in Chicago.

Ex-Convict-Bandits Steal Police Arms

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 21.—(UP)—Authorities tonight sought a band of at least eight former convicts who have raided two police stations for arms, effected one jail break and spread terror along the highways.

The group, roving through Ohio and Indiana, includes at least 5 of 10 convicts who escaped September 26 from the state prison at Michigan City.

A raid by three convicts on police headquarters in Peru, Ind., added machine guns, shotguns, tear gas guns, revolvers and ammunition to the outlaw arsenal.

FARM STRIKE HEAD SEEKS LABOR'S AID IN HOLIDAY MOVE

Milo Reno Directs Plea to 30,000,000 Agriculturists To Co-operate in National Movement.

By The United Press.

The nation's second national farm strike started quietly Saturday with leaders asserting it would not begin to pick up momentum until next week.

There were few indications of how widespread the response had been to the strike order issued by the National Farmers' Holiday Association, which claims a membership of 2,000,000 agriculturists.

The seriousness of the agricultural situation, however, was evidenced by concern of Washington and state officials over the distress of rural regions.

Developments tonight included:

WASHINGTON — Half a dozen suggested remedies were under consideration. Prospect of Russian recognition overshadowed all other matters. Resumption of trade with the soviet would open new markets for American agricultural products, especially hogs. Mortgage and credit plans were speeded. The possibility of an NRA code for farmers was studied.

BISMARCK — Governor William Langer held fast to his embargo on grain shipments. He demanded that rye imports be halted and sought to stop grain movement at the source.

NEW YORK—Possibility of a New York state milk strike was seen.

LINCOLN, Neb.—Governor Charles W. Bryan expressed sympathy with the farm strike in part.

ST. PAUL—Governor Floyd Ol-

Wedell Makes Record In Hop to New Orleans

Bearing pictures of the Tech-Tulane football game, Jimmy Wedell, who holds the land plane speed record of the world, Saturday established a new record in flying from Atlanta to New Orleans in one hour and 41 minutes.

Wedell, flying the same plane in which he made the world's record, took off from Candler field at 3:26 o'clock and was officially checked in at New Orleans at 5:07 o'clock, flashing over the distance of 480 miles at an average rate of 284 miles per hour. He was carrying football pictures for use in early editions of New Orleans newspapers.

Friday afternoon the New Orleans flyer cut an hour and five minutes from the record between Atlanta and Cincinnati, making the trip here in one hour and 40 minutes. Beeler Blevins, Atlanta aviator, formerly held this record with two hours and 45 minutes, which he established in Asa Candler's Lockheed monoplane. Wedell's land speed record is about 305 miles per hour.

COST OF UTILITIES MUST COME DOWN, STATES TALMADGE

Governor, at Macon, Says He'll Fire Commissioners If Rates Are Not Reduced Shortly.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Governor Talmadge today said rates on freight, electricity, telephone and other utilities were too high and that Washington is a "madhouse, where some new code is drawn up every day."

Addressing the Georgia state exposition he said utility rates must come down and if "the new commissioners don't cut these rates I'll take them out and put in some who will."

Apparently making a bid for renomination the governor warned his followers that in the next campaign his enemies would tell "outrageous lies" about him.

"They're going to say that 'Talmadge stays drunk all the time' and other things that are equally untrue."

"My friends are saying 'Talmadge won't have opposition,' but I'm afraid they are wrong," he commented.

"I've been shaking up a few things that are bound to breed opposition," he declared. "My enemies are not coming out in the open to fight me, but they are going to use underhand methods. They're going to start telling lies. Listen, my countrymen, I say don't be deceived. In time of peace prepare for war—every cow needs its tail in fly time.

"These enemies know that they can't win if they say that they're fighting me, because I reduced the automobile tag rate or because I cut the ad valorem tax and because I'm doing all within my power to help the poor, oppressed people."

The visit of the governor was the high spot in the closing day of the fair.

Following the barbecue at 1 o'clock the governor visited the various exhibit halls, saw fine animals from the farms and viewed one of the best displays of agricultural products ever assembled, he declared. He took in the midway while waiting for time to inspect the military companies in review. In the evening he witnessed a sham battle staged in connection with a fireworks display.

The governor stated that "no NRA or no code, no matter what it may be, can bring back prosperity or happiness until the prices of raw products—cotton, corn, peanuts, hogs—and wages go up in proportion to the cost of manufactured articles."

He described Washington, D. C., as a "madhouse—where some new code is drawn up every day. There have been laws enacted up there that none of us dreamed we would ever put on the books. I hope and pray it is for the best."

Tonight the governor and Mrs. Talmadge were the honor guests at an elaborate ball at the Macon auditorium.

3 Georgia Escapes Captured in Alabama

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Three men whom officers believed were fugitives from the Georgia prison farm at Milledgeville, were taken into custody tonight at Citronelle, Ala., near Mobile.

Marshal Hobbs, who made the arrests, said his suspicions were aroused by the appearance of the trio and the fact that they had a Georgia license on the automobile in which they were traveling.

The men gave the names of Harry Odon, Chris Anglia and Eural Wilson. After Officer Hobbs had telephoned Mobile officers to go to Citronelle for the suspects he said they admitted that they were sought by Georgia authorities.

Tech Loses to Tulane; Alabama, Michigan Win

Ranks of Unbeaten Decimated in All Sectors As Upsets Feature Play; Notre Dame Scoreless; Army Wins.

Many brave hearts are asleep in the deep after the football storms of Saturday.

When darkness charitably covered the wreckage in the Southeastern conference, Georgia and Florida were the only undefeated, untied teams.

Georgia eked out, and as glad to get, a 13-to-12 victory over Mercer on Friday. And Florida defeated North Carolina 9 to 0.

Alabama, tied two weeks ago by Mississippi, won a 12-to-6 victory over Tennessee at Knoxville. It was the first defeat for the Vols on their home field since 1924 and the first time in that span that defeats in successive weeks have been administered. Duke won from Tennessee on the previous Saturday.

Georgia Tech reeled back from Grant field, shocked and defeated 7 to 0 on a muddy field by the 101-yard kick-off return by Bucky Bryan, Tulane sophomore halfback.

Georgia Tech gained twice as much ground but Tulane made the only touchdown. It was Tech's second defeat of the year.

Kentucky fell before W. & L., 7 to 0, to quit the undefeated ranks.

Auburn lost an intersectional game, which Auburn was doped to win, by a 19-to-0 score. George Washington won at Washington. It was Auburn's second defeat in as many weeks.

Virginia, defeated 75-to-0 two weeks ago by Ohio State, added to the confusion by holding Navy to a 13-to-7 score.

Duke, the Southern conference favorite, had no trouble beating Davidson 19 to 7.

In the middle west Bernie Bierman's Minnesota team, twice tied, defeated Pittsburgh, rated the strongest team in the east, by a 7-to-3 score. This was one of the big upsets of the day.

Probably the greatest upset of all was Carnegie Tech's 7-to-0 defeat of Notre Dame. The South Bend eleven was out-played, out-smarted and was unable to complete a single pass usually the forte of the Irish teams.

The greatest football crowd, and one of the greatest games, was played at Michigan where 93,508 people saw the Wolverines remove Ohio State from the Big Ten race and remain heavy favorites to win the Big Ten title.

Army added another surprse by beating Illinois 7 to 0.

The Pacific coast had a day of ties, Southern California and Oregon among them.

It was quite a day. These games, and all others are covered in the sports section of The Constitution today.

SMITH IS ELECTED HEAD OF KIWANIS

Columbus Is Awarded 1934 Session as Convention Here Ends.

Election of Mark Smith, of Thomaston, as district governor of Georgia Kiwanis for 1934 and selection of Columbus as the next convention city Saturday featured the closing session of the seventeenth annual district convention at the Ansley hotel.

Victor L. Hagood, of Lawrenceville, general manager and news editor of the Lawrenceville News-Herald, was chosen as district treasurer. The new district secretary will be named later.

Lieutenant governors were elected as follows: Joseph S. Shaw, Atlanta, first division; Dr. Claude W. Harvey, Hogansville, second; J. G. Kirkland, Sylvester, third; W. Glenn Thomas, Jesup, fourth; Thomas H. Hall III, Macon, fifth; Ben S. Thompson, Madison, sixth; M. N. Tutwiler, Athens, seventh, and J. Clyde Mixon, Savannah, eighth.

The new officers will take office on January 1. Mr. Smith, who succeeds Dave M. Parker, of Waycross, as district governor, is superintendent of city schools at Thomaston, and was promoted to the district governorship from the post of lieutenant

Shows Not to Open In Atlanta Today

Atlanta theaters today will remain closed pending further conferences with W. E. Mitchell, chairman, and other members of Mayor James L. Key's special relief commission.

Another joint meeting of the commission and theater managers will be held Tuesday with a possibility that definite arrangements will be evolved to open shows October 29, it was said Saturday after the first joint conference.

Alpha Fowler, president of the Atlanta Theater Managers' Association, announced that shows will not open here until every stipulation of the state law is complied with. The conferences are to divert net proceeds of Sunday amusements to charity through Mitchell's commission so as to comply with state laws permitting Sunday shows.

BANK INSURANCE SOUGHT IN STATE

52 Out of 198 Non-Members of Reserve Act on U. S. Plan.

Fifty-two state banks in Georgia, out of a total of 198 non-members of the federal reserve system, have applied to date for membership in the Insurance Deposit Corporation set up by congress to insure bank deposits.

R. E. Gormley, state superintendent of banks, in announcing the figure Saturday, said he could "appreciate that we will have a number of banks operating without direct competition from an insured bank and in which banks the confidence of their depositors is such as to make it possible for those banks to continue to operate without insurance."

The insurance corporation will have the effect, he said, of making the smaller bank in outlying sections just as safe as the large bank, and in his opinion, may result in the decentralization of deposits and the building up of deposits in small banks. Bankers will be relieved of the fear of unreasonable runs and will not need to maintain such a high degree of liquidity.

Superintendent Gormley is advising non-member state banks to make application for the insurance. Banks in which strong confidence has been manifested have maintained a high degree of liquidity, he said, and these banks would be reasonably safe, with the added protection of insurance, in investing a considerable portion of their large cash reserves, thereby increasing their income.

The corporation to insure deposits is required to set up a temporary insurance fund effective January 1, 1934, which will insure all deposits in eligible banks up to the amount of $2,500.

Insured banks will be required to pay one-half of 1 per cent of their total deposits as a premium on the insurance. The temporary insurance continues until July 1, 1934. After that date a permanent corporation will be established, insuring all deposits up to $10,000 in full and larger deposits in part.

Federal reserve member banks and national banks automatically become members of the insurance corporation. Non-member state banks will be admitted upon making application, if they secure a certificate of solvency after examination by the Federal De-

Five Points, Bustling Business Hub, New Paradise for Snake-Huntsmen

One of the best places to go snake hunting right now is at Five Points, in the heart of Atlanta, where at least five reptiles—thought to be of the diamond-back rattler variety—are loose. That is the information police gave out Saturday night when one snake five feet long was captured in a vacant store at 40 Peachtree street.

Ireland had quite a time with snakes long years ago, but storekeepers and shoppers in the Five Points section are betting they have a situation just as unique.

Three weeks ago a snake show played the vacant store near the busiest street intersection in the city. It had examples and samples of strange and very poisonous reptiles in its repertoire and for several days passersby were diverted by the serpents. When the show moved on to a better location for its exhibition, seven reptiles of unknown variety were inadvertently left behind.

Shopkeepers in the district began to see snakes! Frequently beady eyes and a flashing tongue appeared through some crack. Last week a "rattler" was captured in the basement of a vacant store there. Patrolman Rauschenberg, who patrols the beat, reported. It was destroyed.

Saturday night a large crowd watched A. J. Fields, of 186 Harris street, corner and conquer a five-foot specimen of the venomous diamond-back rattlesnake in the former playhouse of the snake show. He used a forked stick and a flashlight for weapons. Fields said he'd hunted reptiles in semi-tropical Florida, where he had "brought 'em back alive."

Captain A. J. Holcombe, who said prohibition was certainly a failure when his patrolmen started seeing snakes on the downtown beats, asserted that there were still five of the snake show actors missing.

Litvinoff To Come Armed With $500,000,000 in Orders

By EUGENE LYONS.

MOSCOW, Oct. 21.—(UP)—Maxim Litvinoff, Russia's most famous negotiator in the field of international bargaining, will leave for the United States late this month, armed with $500,000,000 worth of orders for American products as bait for American recognition of the soviets.

For Litvinoff, a super-salesman of soviet agreements, the trip will be a selling trip in more than one capital. He plans, it was understood tonight, to stop in Paris and London, where important trade negotiations are pending, spending a day or two in each city to spur the soviet agents now on the job there.

Arriving in the United States by ship either from France or England—he has asked for sailing dates from all eastern European ports—he stands ready to hold out at once the allure of an immediate, brisk soviet trade "if reasonable credits are offered."

Huge Purchases.

It was recalled that during the world economic conference Litvinoff announced his government was prepared to purchase abroad $1,000,000,000 worth of commodities, over and above the products provided by the Russian five-year plan.

A prominent soviet leader informed the United Press that at least half of this amount would go to the United States.

There are strings to the offer, of course. Such tremendous obligations could not be financed with ready cash. A system of long-term credits would have to be arranged, and the conditions of such loans would have to be such that the soviet could absorb the cost in a reasonable length of time.

The flotation of such a credit in itself would make diplomatic relations between the two nations imperative. The United States government, it was pointed out, already has sanctioned one credit of $4,000,000 even without the resumption of such relations, but "it could hardly lend anybody $100,000,000 without being in a position to speak to the borrower once in a while."

New Litvinoff Triumph.

The success of the preliminary negotiations, which finally reached the definite proposals for a conference contained in President Roosevelt's note of invitation, were considered another triumph for the spectacular Litvinoff—who today was mentioned here as a possible recipient of the Nobel prize for his efforts at peace.

The 57-year-old diplomat has emerged triumphantly from almost every world conference he has entered, whether it was to make a plea for

STATE ROAD BOARD ASKED TO ENLARGE FUND FOR ATLANTA

Request for Doubled Allotment, Bringing Total to $1,200,000, Indicated; Ramspeck Led Protest.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads, tonight said he had asked the Georgia highway board for a revision of its $10,000,000 public works road program so as to assign additional construction to the Atlanta area.

It was indicated at the bureau that the government may ask that the allotment for the Atlanta area be doubled, bringing the amount to $1,200,000.

Representative Ramspeck had protested the amount awarded Atlanta by the Georgia board several days ago but Governor Talmadge replied the allocation was "satisfactory."

C. B. Sneed, division engineer in Montgomery, Ala., today was instructed to confer with the Georgia board concerning a reallocation of the funds.

MacDonald expressed agreement with Ramspeck, who asked more money for his district (the fifth) which includes Atlanta and where he said there was a serious unemployment problem.

Ramspeck told federal authorities that while the Atlanta district comprises approximately one-eighth of the state's population, it was assigned but $600,000 of the $10,000,000 allotment for Georgia roads, adding that its unemployment problem was the most serious in the state.

Governor Talmadge, in Washington recently, expressed approval of the allocation as fixed by the Georgia board, declaring that it was satisfactory, and that Atlanta's unemployed could be taken care of in other sections of the state.

MacDonald, however, said the federal policy was to see that highway construction was undertaken nearest the center of serious unemployment, based on whether road work was needed in that territory.

The bureau chief said that in Atlanta's case he had found there were sufficient worthy projects to warrant an increased allotment from a highways planning standpoint as well as to give unemployment relief.

Iowa Governor Arms To Thwart Kidnapers

DES MOINES, Iowa, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Reports that he may have been the object of a kidnap plot have reached Governor Clyde L. Herring, the executive revealed today. Governor Herring added he viewed the matter lightly.

The governor said the purported plot was reported to him about a week ago and that he had been under guard of a state agent for several days. He also carried a gun for a time.

The report was brought to him by a man who said he had overheard two men in a local railroad station "talking about kidnaping the governor and holding him for $75,000 ransom."

"I don't put a great deal of stock in it, but of course you can't tell," the governor said.

Roosevelt Speaks Tonight Over Vast Radio Hook-Up

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—His NRA program assailed on one side by urban consumers protesting higher prices and on the other by farmers demanding more for their products, President Roosevelt tomorrow night will again take an explanation of his policies to the country.

Mr. Roosevelt today was in the old colonial town of Chestertown, Md., receiving an honorary degree from historic Washington College, but between times he was patterning the address which may, also, deal with the Russian question that was revived by his sudden announcement yesterday that personal conferences had been arranged with a Russian envoy.

However, the farm situation, precipitated by the strike in the wheat belt and the denunciation of the recovery program by Governor Bryan, of Nebraska, was claiming the most serious thought of the entire administration for the present.

Currency Expansion.

Senator Norris, the Nebraska republican independent who supported President Roosevelt in the last campaign, reiterated today his belief that currency expansion was the peg upon which an immediate uplift in farm prices must be hung. He added that he was "doing everything I can to help the president carry out his policies."

The Norris explanation of his position was made in reply to a request from Edward Keating, editor of Labor, the official publication of railway unions. It said in part:

"I wired the president that I thought he could accomplish this desired result (restoring purchasing power of the farmer) by issuing new money instead of new interest-bearing securities in his call for the refunding of the $1,500,000,000 of the fourth Liberty bonds.

"This would save the taxpayers interest on the bonds, which interest amounts to more than $65,000,000 a year. It would increase the currency by the amount of the bonds cancelled, and would be a great step in restoring the purchasing power of the farmer.

Following President.

"I am wholeheartedly following the president, but I am earnestly advising him that, in my judgment, expansion of the currency is necessary so that those in debt can pay what they owe in dollars of the same value as they borrowed when they went into debt."

Meanwhile, a definite statement on what he intends to do with respect to money was asked of Mr. Roosevelt by Senator Hastings, republican, Delaware. He asserted business was "disturbed and distressed" at its lack of knowledge of the president's intention regarding monetary inflation and ex-

Wheat Transportation Continues Despite Ban

BISMARCK, N. D., Oct. 21.—(AP)—All was quiet along North Dakota's wheat embargo front today.

Most sheriffs, ordered yesterday by Governor William Langer to enforce the ba. on shipments of the grain, awaited formal instructions.

Railroads continued to transport wheat from the state in accordance with interstate commerce regulations.

RISE IN CLEARINGS OF ATLANTA BANKS SHOWS TRADE GAIN

Steady Increase From May 1933, Displayed, Supporting Other Signs of Business Recovery.

By BEN COOPER.

The prediction of sage business leaders that "recovery will creep upon us before we realize it," Saturday was substantiated in a huge rift cleared in Atlanta's dark cloud of depression by Atlanta Clearing House Association figures showing that the upturn for the better came on July 20, and that healthy improvement has been noted in each succeeding month.

Presented as cold, hard statistics compiled by painfully accurate bankers, the clearing house figures reveal that this month has restored clearings to the level of March, 1932, after a steady, disheartening drop toward the basement during 1932 and the early half of this year.

The clearing house figures on March 21, 1932, were $6,212,273.58. From that point they went into a continued decline until the low point of $3,285,402.55 was reached on September 20, 1932. There was a brief pick-up, sending the figures to within $200,000 of the March 21, 1932, level, on March 20, 1933. Another drop brought the figures down to $4,290,990.86 on May 20, 1933, but at that point the decline ceased. On July 20, 1933, the first increase over the similar day of 1932 was reported, and on October 20, 1933, the figures were nearly $50,000 over the March 21, 1932, level.

Byrd, in Good Health, Sails for South Pole

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Oct. 21. (AP)—With a cheerful good-bye to his native Virginia, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd today pointed the prow of his flagship Jacob Ruppert toward the bottom of the globe.

The Jacob Ruppert, outfitted here with a boom for loading the big plane with which Admiral Byrd hopes to continue his antarctic exploration and scientific research pulled out of the shipyard and into James river early this afternoon.

Almost completely recovered from the throat ailment which confined him to a Norfolk hotel room for several days, Admiral Byrd met newspapermen just before his departure and talked enthusiastically of his second venture in the South Polar regions.

He emphasized that this expedition —for a duration of two years—is not for the purpose of flying over the South Pole—a feat accomplished on his former trip.

"It is more than likely that a flight over the pole will be made," he said, "but this will be primarily to obtain further data about an unexplored region nearly as large as the continent of South America."

NOTED EDUCATORS HEAR PRESIDENT TALK IN MARYLAND

Co-operation of All People Termed Vital Element in Recovery; Goal Cannot Be Reached in Short Time, He Says.

PIONEER METHODS URGED ON NATION

Harks Back to Washington as Leader Against Class Distinction; Receives Honorary Degree.

CHESTERTOWN, Md., Oct. 21.—(AP)—President Roosevelt called the nation to the "spirit of co-operation" of the colonial days as he accepted here today an honorary degree from Washington College.

Disdaining the "five-year and ten-year programs of some countries which have a dictator," the president declared amid applause:

"In this country, which has not a dictator, we can, I think, move further toward our goal without giving it a definite term of years."

But he emphasized that the spirit of co-operation was the vital element for recovery and harked back to George Washington, a founder of this institution, as a leader against class distinctions and the pioneer of co-operation.

"We have accomplished much in the last few months," said the president in his collegiate cap and gown, "but we can't reach the goal in a couple of months.

"Some countries where there are dictators have laid down what is called a five-year program or a ten-year program. In this country which has not got a dictator I think we can move further toward our goal without giving it a definite term of years."

To the crowd covering the spacious campus lawn in front of the flag-covered brick administration building, Mr. Roosevelt also significantly recalled the advocation of an old professor of his for distribution of wealth.

"In wealth and education," said the president, "there is represented only a minority of the people. As I recall the words of a professor in my school, the wider a distribution of wealth there is in the proper way, the more we can make it possible for men and women of the land to have the necessities of life in such shape that they will not have to lie awake at night worrying where the food for tomorrow will come from. Then, and only then, will we have the security necessary for the country.

"Today we are making many changes in the machinery of life—

Dr. Harry Holmes, Famed Chemist, Heads Agnes Scott Lecture Series

Dr. Harry N. Holmes, head of the chemistry department of Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio, will open the Agnes Scott Lecture Association series when he speaks on November 2 at 8:30 o'clock in the Butcher Scott gymnasium on "The Dramatic Side of Science." Miss Isabelle Cooper, instructor in interpretative dancing at Bryn Mawr, will present a dance recital under the auspices of the lecture association on December 2. Upton Close (Josef Washington Hall) is to be the third feature and will present "Close Calls," the "adventure" lecture, in March, the exact date to be announced later. The fourth lecture in the series has not been definitely arranged but will be announced on the night of the first lecture.

Dr. Holmes is chairman of the committee on colloid chemistry, and counselor at large to the American Chemical Society, a position he has held since 1924. He was a member of the National Research Council from 1918 to 1925. He has served as secretary and chairman of the division of physical and inorganic chemistry of the American Chemical Society. Dr. Holmes received his B. S. degree at Westminster, Pa., and his Ph. D. at Johns Hopkins. He was head of the department of chemistry at Earlhom College from 1907 to 1914 and has been associate professor at Johns Hopkins.

Dr. Holmes recently discovered an oil prepared from halibut livers which is said to be 9,200 times more powerful than ordinary cod liver oil. The oil is almost pure vitamin A, and represents America's stake in the international race to isolate the disease resistance builder, "A." Dr. Holmes has spoken in Atlanta before, the last time being at the meeting of the American Chemistry Society held in Atlanta in 1928.

Miss Cooper will make her first appearance in the south on December 1. She spent seven years in the Duncan Scholo of Dancing in Salzburg, Vienna, and Prague. This school is conducted by Elizabeth Duncan, sister of Isadora Duncan. Miss Cooper danced with groups from the school in all the capitals of Europe. She is one of the four persons in the United States authorized to have a school of the Duncan work and has a studio of the Duncan work in Philadelphia in addition to her studio at Bryn Mawr. She dances to the old masters, Bach, Schubert and Chopin.

Upton Close, writer, traveler and foremost interpreter of Asia today, has for 16 years ridden, tramped, wheel-barrowed and flown from one end to the other of the world's most picturesque continent. He has dealt with diplomats, congressmen, brigands and coolies. He has edited the world's oldest newspaper printed in the Chinese language. He has helped install a Chinese president, was on a Chinese general's staff during several wars, exposed China's "Tammany" called "The Peace and Joy Club," brought Mahatma Gandhi back into the headlines after his first Indian imprisonment and has passed through a series of adventures that would have killed an average man. These interesting things in addition to scores of others are told in an adventure narration entitled "Close Calls," to be presented in March.

The tickets to the entire series will be on sale at the door on the night of the first lecture.

Record of Colonel Kimbrough Is Warmly Praised by Talmadge

High tribute Saturday was paid by Governor Eugene Talmadge to Colonel James M. Kimbrough, senior instructor of the Georgia national guard, who is to be retired from the regular army October 31 after nearly 40 years of distinguished service.

In a special order issued to all guard units, the chief executive as commander-in-chief of the state's military forces reviewed Colonel Kimbrough's long and brilliant record and warmly praised his ability and patriotism as a soldier and a citizen. Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp directed that the governor's order be read to all national guardsmen in the state.

After reviewing the colonel's record, the governor concluded his order:

"Colonel Kimbrough's military career has been distinguished by ability and patriotism, and by conscientious work and outstanding ability he has arisen to the position he now holds. He has likewise been a prodigious worker in civic, fraternal, religious, literary and social fields—in all performing an outstanding service and holding a leading position of responsibility in each type of activity.

"By his kindness and sympathetic understanding of the duties of the civilian soldier he has endeared himself to every national guardsman with whom he has come in contact and with citizens generally throughout the state, and the example he has set will be an inspiration to the national guard of Georgia for years to come.

"I commend his record as a soldier and as a citizen to the members of the national guard of this state and extend to him my most cordial good wishes for his future welfare and happiness."

HARTSOCK MEMORIAL PLANNED BY FRIENDS

Friends of the late Ernest Hartsock, young Atlanta poet, will unveil a bronze tablet commemorating his memory at the Carnegie Library early in the winter. Dr. W. F. Melton, president of the Atlanta Writers' Club; Benjamin Musser, of Washington; Mrs. Bruce Gould, of New York; Mrs. Warren D. White and Glenn Rainey form the Hartsock Memorial committee, who have made the tablet possible. Mrs. White is chairman of the committee.

A publication of the unpublished manuscripts and other memorial projects will be carried out at a later date by another group of his friends.

TAG DAY NETS $1,965 TO ASSIST VETERANS

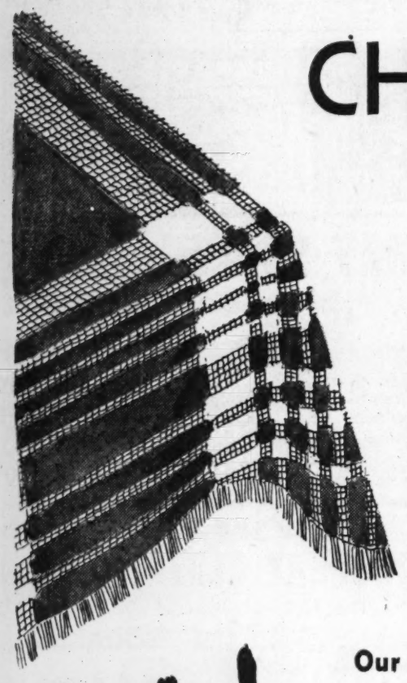

Cecil Hall, commander of the Betty Harrison Jones chapter, D. A. V., who sponsored the Forget-Me-Not Day drive assisted by the Georgia Federation and the Parent-Teachers' Association, made the following statement Saturday: "I desire to express my appreciation to the people of Atlanta for their generous support of the drive.

Gratitude was also expressed for the co-operation of the various organizations in the city, to the volunteer workers and to Mrs. H. M. Nicholes, who acted as general chairman for the annual Forget-Me-Not Day drive, and their generous contribution for the benefit of the D. A. V." One thousand nine hundred sixty five dollars in contributions have been reported to date.

Thousands May Be Deported Upon Recognition of Soviet

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Thousands of Russians who have been immune to deportation for the last decade will face the possibility of being sent out of the United States in the event normal relations are restored with the soviet.

The bureau of immigration of the department of labor has been unable to get rid of Russians it considered undesirable, such as deserting seamen, visitors who overstayed their permits and convicted criminals, due to lack of diplomatic relations with Russ', which prevented the obtaining of passports.

Many are communists, held deportable because they believe in violent overthrow of the government.

What the attitude of the department will be could not be obtained due to the uncertainty of the situation.

Peter F. Snyder, a former assistant to the secretary of labor, who signed orders and warrants for deportation by the thousands under Secretaries Davis, Doak and Perkins before he recently left the department, said today that "if diplomatic relations with soviet Russi are established one result will be consideration by the United States department of labor of the propriety of deporting several thousand Russians against whom deportation warrants have been issued in the past dozen years.

"There have been few, if any, deportations to Russia since the fall of 1920 when the U. S. S. Buford transported to that country a load of communists and anarchists including Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman.

"Because non-recognition heretofore has made it impossible to obtain soviet passports through official channels the bureau of immigration and department of labor have been powerless to expel thousands of unlawfully resident Russians of various classes, ranging from deserting seamen and overstayed visitors to convicted criminals.

"Many are communists found deportable as persons who believe in the overthrow of government through violence. A complete list has been kept by the immigration bureau.

"Without doubt, reviews of all such cases will now be undertaken and decision made as to whether warrants of deportation now outstanding will be executed. The first step in each case after establishment of diplomatic relations would be a request by our government for an official soviet passport.

"It is possible that som deportable Russians may go into hiding and forfeit bond to avoid deportation as records show they are refugees of the nobility and bourgeois classes who believe they will suffer pu ishment returned to their native land."

Labor department officials declined to comment, except to say no policy would be outlined at present.

pressed vigorous opposition to inflation.

The possibility of arranging loans to wheat farmers similar to those already decided upon for cotton farmers was being studied carefully by the farm administration, with indications of an early announcement. The funds would probably be furnished by the Reconstruction Corporation and the Commodity Credit Corporation, set up to handle the cotton loans, would administer the loans.

Early Action Seen.

Reports were reviewed that President Roosevelt would act soon to bring his three major recovery units—the industrial, farm and public works administration more into harmony.

Open discord between the farm and industrial administrations came out in the retail code controversy, with Hugh S. Johnson, the NRA chief, advocating a ban on sales below cost plus 10 per cent to eliminate cutthroat competition. The opposition of Secretary Wallace, who felt that a greater consuming price might be loaded upon the farmer, took the problem to the White House, with President Roosevelt still to announce his decision.

NRA officials privately expressed belief that their program had been hampered by the slow spread of the public works funds.

Johnson, in a letter accepting the resignation of Keith Neville as the Nebraska recovery board chairman, praised the ability of officials administering the farm and public works acts, but said he could not assume responsibility for any shortcomings charged to those administrations.

A million or more returns from employers today were reported in hand by the census bureau showing to what extent re-employment and pay rolls had advance up to October 15. Tabulation of the inquiries is to begin next week, and upon the final total Johnson expects the next steps of the recovery program to be based.

SOVIET TO OFFER ORDERS TO TOTAL OF 500 MILLION

recognition, or to bolster trade, or to discuss peace.

Speculation over the first ambassador to the United States, if recognition is granted, involved a number of soviet officials today, although Moscow, in view of the fact that recognition is not yet a fait accompli, was careful to refrain from official statements.

Man To Be Discussed.

It was viewed as certain that Litvinoff, while in Washington, would discuss with the Roosevelt administration the type of man who would be most welcome in America.

Among those whose names have come to the fore, however, is that of Valerian Mezhlauk, assistant commissar of heavy industry. Such an appointment would be significant, in that as soviet ambassador to the United States he would have considerable authority in the matter of purchases for his country. Heavy industrial machinery is one of the great needs in Russia.

Official and civil circles were rejoicing at the turn of events, and the tone of the press was jubilant. Izvestia and Pravda, leading newspapers, pointed to the mutual advantages of a rapprochement, and praised "these steps in the interest of world peace."

FACTS, FIGURES READY FOR SOVIET CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The Washington government was disclosed tonight to have marshaled a bulging sheaf of Russo-American facts and figures, including claims running past the $500,000,000 mark, in expectation of opening recognition discussion with soviet Russia during the first week in November.

Although definite word from Moscow was lacking at the state department, there was an official expectation that Maxim Litvinoff, the soviet foreign affairs commissar, would reach Washington in about two weeks.

Export possibilities of more than $100,000,000 in cotton and heavy machinery, including rail equipment, already have been brought to the fore. Since the buying power of the soviet rests solely with its government, Mr. Roosevelt was expected in some quarters to come down to dollars and cents in this regard.

William C. Bullitt, a special assistant to Secretary Hull, was regarded by some as likely to emerge as a right-hand man of the president during the Litvinoff conversations. Bullitt first went into Russia on a special investigative mission for President Wilson in 1919.

He went into the soviet state again in May, 1932, and gathered some Russian data for Mr. Roosevelt during more recent trips abroad. He has talked with Litvinoff during comparatively recent months.

Secretary Hull, although saying today no final decision had been made, may carry through his original intention of heading the United States' delegation to the Pan-American conference at Montevideo, Uruguay, early in December. This probably would mean his absence during part of Litvinoff's visit. The prospect remained, however, that Hull might cancel the trip.

In the discussion today of prospective recognition of Russia, the name of John Van A. McMurray, was heard often. He talked much with Russian delegates at the London wheat conference. Newly appointed minister to Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania, McMurray will be the American envoy nearest to Moscow.

He has been in repeated conferences during the past week with Robert Kelley, chief of the division of eastern European affairs of the state department. Kelley has gathered numerous data upon Russian conditions and affairs.

Mentioned also in talk of possible ambassadors to Moscow has been Henry Morgenthau Jr., governor of the farm credit administration. He was designated by the president several months ago to handle matters pertaining to trade relations with Russia.

In highly informed official quarters it was pointed out today, however, that any talk of possible ambassadors was premature, since the type of man chosen would be dictated by the course and tenor of the conversations with Litvinoff.

Although certain to be taken up in these discussions, it was felt in official circles that there would be little difficulty in gaining from the soviet an anti-propaganda guarantee. The president was described by some as determined to exact such a promise as an answer to the objections of some critics of recognition.

VARIED REACTIONS VOICED IN CAPITALS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Varied reactions, ranging from pleasure to skepticism, were forthcoming today to American and Russian moves toward the re-establishment of formal relations.

Some of them follow:

PARIS: A French government spokesman said American recognition of the soviet union would clarify the far eastern situation and solidify international relations since it would be a logical outcome of the Japanese-American situation.

PEIPING: Official Chinese circles believed today that recognition of Russia was imminent, but that it would not be welcomed by Japan.

These quarters felt the recognition would not change the Sino-Japanese situation in north China, since it would be based on an economic rather than a political reason.

One American observer here was skeptical of the advantages such a move might have for the United States.

SHANGHAI: Newspapers said editorially today that re-establishment of Russo-American relations might mean a combining of their influences to protect their respective interests in the orient and to restrain Japan on the Asiatic mainland.

They remarked that "a Russo-Japanese war unquestionably threatens in the far east" and that "Japan seeks to enlist the powers' support by branding Russia a common enemy."

NANKING: National government leaders interpreted the action as an effort to prepare for another emergency—a Russo-Japanese or a Japanese-American war.

They thought that China's position in the orient would be affected and emphasized that, while they were gravely concerned, they had not formulated a definite attitude.

TOKYO: War Minister Sadao Araki curtly declared that "Japan need not be apprehensive at the prospect of American recognition of the soviet."

A foreign office spokesman said Japan "would welcome a resumption of normal relations with her two powerful neighbors" and that "such a development will in no way alter Japan's policy toward Russia or Japan's position in the orient."

To a suggestion that recognition might stiffen Moscow's attitude toward Japan, he asserted that "I can't see how the soviet attitude could be stiffer."

LONDON: George Lansbury, veteran labor and peace worker, called President Roosevelt's move "a powerful influence for peace in Europe and the far east."

"I am delighted and am sure the British labor movement will join in congratulating President Roosevelt and the American nation on resuming relations with the great Russian nation," he said.

"We rejoice at this because we believe that only by world co-operation based on mutual understanding and confidence can peace be secured."

BERLIN—German citizens were told by their government-controlled newspapers tonight that America's overture to Russia is "one of the most important developments in international poltics."

Editorial writers generally agreed with the Deutsche Zeitung that 'we are entering upon a new chapter in the history of the world."

That German commercial relations may be affected by America's recognition was pointed out, but the Vossiche Zeitung poured oil on troubled waters by remarking that "German business and industry never claimed a monopoly for supplying the Russian market."

The press evaluated the Russo-American raprochement as "calculated to promote the peace of the world."

governor for the second division. During his 15-year administration of the city schools, attendance has grown from 350 to 2,000 children. Mr. Smith has a record of having never missed a meeting of the Thomaston club since its organization 11 years ago, and he has held every office in that club. Mrs. Smith formerly was Miss Annie Davis, of Atlanta, daughter of Mrs. Clifford Davis and the late Clifford Davis, and a niece of Mrs. William Healey, of Atlanta.

Columbus Beats Savannah.

Columbus won the 1934 convention by one vote over Savannah. The Columbus invitation was presented by Mayor H. C. Smith, and the Chatham city's invitation by ex-District Governor Frank M. Oliver.

Prizes were awarded Saturday, the Kiwanis achievement trophy, a dinner gong, going to the Moultrie club. Marvin Allison, of Lawrenceville, was awarded the cup in the speakers' contest on the subject of "1933's Challenge to Kiwanis." Brunswick received the attendance trophy.

Retiring Governor Parker was presented with a silver tray and six goblets; J. B. Harley, of Waycross, retiring district secretary, received a silver platter.

Resolutions adopted by the Georgia Kiwanians outline three special objectives for the year: First, efficiency, honesty and economy in government, and especially local government; second, reform of the state tax system for more equitable distribution of the burden; and, third, support of a proper and adequate educational program for the state as the wisest investment of state funds.

The convention also adopted resolutions commending the Warm Springs Foundation to the attention of all Kiwanis clubs, following announcement by LaPrade Harwell, of Brunswick, that a tie-up has been arranged under which Kiwanis clubs will investigate cases for admission to Warm Springs.

J. A. Frohock, of Bradenton, Fla., chairman of Kiwanis International committee on agriculture, told the delegates Saturday that "we will not solve the agricultural problem in Washington by letting President Roosevelt and Secretary Wallace carry the load. The solution will not come through federal aid, loans, bonuses or subsidies, because that is economically unsound and it would bankrupt the country.

"The farm situation is something like a case of pneumonia," Frohock said. "We need temporary remedies, but we must not look upon them as anything except emergency help. The cure is on the individual farm, although the farmers have always looked for a far-off, complicated solution. There is no romance in their own back yard, but there is an answer to the problem. The answer to the agricultural problem in the south is a balanced program with farmers growing food and feed stuff and not trying to center their attention on money crops, which build price-destroying surpluses." Frohock said that civic clubs and businessmen are the missing links through which a solution can be found.

Other features Saturday included a program by the children of Hillside Cottages, and talks by Lieutenant Governors W. H. McKenzie, of Montezuma, and Faber A. Bollinger, of Atlanta.

Ickes Raps Activity Of 'Land Sharks'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—A new threat of land speculation in the vicinity of large projects to be financed with federal funds tonight brought a sharp attack on "land sharks" from Secretary Ickes, of the interior department.

The vicinity of the site for the Boneville power dam in Oregon was disclosed as the latest scene of speculative activity.

The secretary said tonight he had been asked by senators and congressmen to issue a proclamation that no electricity would be furnished from the Bonneville dam to lands sold at profiteering prices. His legal department had informed him, however, that such a proclamation would be beyond his authority and would have no beneficial effect.

"I would do anything in my power to spike the guns of these predatory land brigands," he said. "I sincerely regret that it is not possible for me summarily to halt the program of these land sharks."

will sanction reallocation of $10,000,000 public works road program to increase the Atlanta area allotment.

"All I've seen about it (efforts to obtain revision of the program) is what I have read in the papers," he said. "I would rather not comment until I have gone into it more thoroughly."

J. J. Mangham, chairman of the state highway board, also at the governor's ball, said he will withhold comment until "I get official information." He asserted he had not previously heard of the request of Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads, for a revision.

BACK-TO-FARM FUND IS SOUGHT

4 per cent interest in 30 years, taking care of the principal and interest in each payment.

This would approximate $450 per year per family or the $750,000 (the investment for the 100 families) would have to earn a net of 6 per cent annually to make the payment in 30 years. To pay the $4,000 or for the $232 that the individual farm owner would owe annually on his investment, the stock should yield a little more than 3 per cent to the individual farm owner.

30-Year Repayment.

It is figured that if the stock was limited to a maximum yield of 3 1-2 per cent per annum, the individual owner should receive enough from the proceeds of the community or cooperated farm to refund his debt and keep up the interest in 30 years, leaving the remainder of the dividend to take care of the corporation debt to the government.

The maximum interest rate of 3 1-2 per cent to the individual owner would be maintained for 30 years, or until the entire debt has been paid back to the government, when the interest rate would be determined by the net proceeds from a year's operation on the community or incorporated farm.

It is proposed that the incorporated organization have a general manager and such trained and technical assistance as the enterprises of the incorporated farm demanded. Salaries would be paid and a home and small garden plot furnished. The manager and his aides to be dictators of the cropping system of the community farm and general advisors for the plans and crops of the maintenance farms.

Families would be selected who have indicated their ability and willingness to work. It is preferred that there are two male members capable of performing an ordinary day's work on the farm. It is anticipated that not only families with farm experience but industrious city families would be willing to assume the responsibility of the maintenance farm and have a share in the community farm.

Central Machinery Organization.

Enterprises of the incorporated farm would be determined for the local conditions. One of these of major importance would be a central organization for farm equipment and machinery to be used exclusively by the community farm and for preparing land handled by the maintenance unit owners with the maintenance farmers restricted to a four-horse maximum.

Among the enterprises suggested are: A gin, fertilizer mixing plant, community smokehouse and meat storage plant, community grist and flour mill, community packing shed, conditions warranting; community canning plant, depending on location; custom spraying, custom thrashing and grain harvesting; incorporated or community store; forestry project with a sawmill.

posit Corporation. Mr. Gormley said non-member banks would not be discriminated against in cases where their capital stock is less than the amount required for eligibility for admission into the federal reserve system. He added it would be necessary for a bank to own solvent assets in an amount sufficient to cover actual liabilities to depositors and other creditors.

The Glass-Stegall bill providing for the insurance corporation also sets forth that after July 1, 1936, all banks participating in the insurance fund must become members of the federal reserve system or be dropped from the insurance corporation. Membership in the federal reserve is available only to the banks with a minimum capital of $25,000.

There are a number of smaller towns in Georgia with banks capitalized at only $15,000. Many of them, he said, are performing a necessary service to their communities. In some cases the size of the community will not warrant an increase of capital. He said he regarded it unfair to deny these banks the continued protection of the insurance feature because of their inability to qualify as federal reserve members.

The bank superintendent said if provisions of the bill are fairly administered and the provision regarding federal reserve membership after July 1, 1936, is amended to provide permanent membership in the insurance corporation for non-member banks, he could see no reason why small independent banks cannot continue to operate and increase their earning possibilities.

COLUMBUS PROJECTS ON RELIEF APPROVED

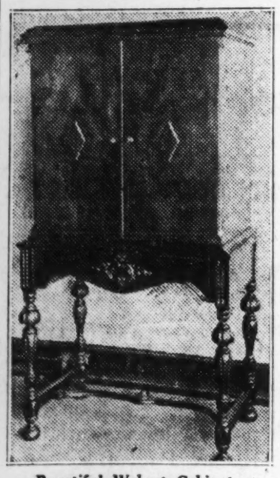

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 21.—Approval was made of all federal relief projects in Columbus, by J. F. Blunt, federal official, who made an inspection this week, in conjunction with Miss Nell Franklin, head of local relief work.

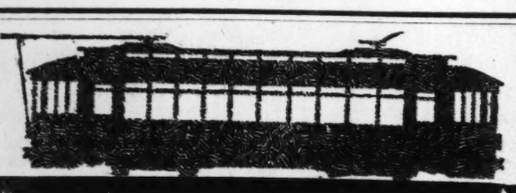

That Columbus is one of the few communities in which local administration authorities are permitted to continue work projects before being given complete approval of the administration at Washington, was the report given City Manager Marshall Morton, by the federal official.

North Georgians Will Ask Talmadge To Pave Route 9

Big Delegation To Appear Before Governor in Behalf of Improved Highway Wednesday.

C. P. VAUGHAN.

Claiming that the progress of a large area of picturesque north Georgia is materially dependent upon the finishing of paving highway No. 9, between Atlanta and Dahlonega, more than 2,000 persons, representing communities between Hiawassee and Buckhead, will appear before Governor Talmadge Wednesday morning and appeal to the chief executive for favorable action on the project.

Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution, who has for 10 years recognized the need of a direct paved highway from Dahlonega to Atlanta, is scheduled to appear with the north Georgians and speak to the governor in their behalf. C. P. Vaughan, former mayor of Roswell, is general marshal of the parade, which will start formation at Hiawassee, to be joined by citizens from a score of other towns and communities en route to Atlanta.

Emphasis of the appeal will be placed on the fact that the communities in question are not served by railroads or electric lines, thus making the section solely dependent on motor transportation. It will be pointed out that during a considerable period of the year the present road is wellnigh impassable for use in the hauling of freight from Atlanta and the transport of the section's products to outside markets.

Besides Mr. Howell and Mr. Vaughan, others who will address Governor Talmadge are Frank Christian, Dahlonega; Roy Otwell, Cumming; Dr. Marcus Mashburn, Cumming; Walter Hendricks, of the Fulton county commission; Congressman John Woods, of the ninth congressional district, and J. Schley Thompson, representing the Buckhead Fifty Club.

The motorcade of approximately 500 automobiles will rest en route to Atlanta at Buckhead for 30 minutes, at which point leaders and committee chairmen will arrange for final details of the appearance before Georgia's chief executive. Citizens of north side Atlanta and the city at large who are interested in the direct paved route from Atlanta to Neel's Gap, are invited to join the delegation at Buckhead.

Chairmen and members of the committees follow:

Towns county—J. F. Johnson, W. O. Sparks, Tom Wood, T. J. Lance, W. E. Mathison; Union county—T. S. Candler, J. A. Butte, Pat Haraldson, R. L. Lance, O. C. Hughes, R. C. Christopher, J. E. Davenport, E. F. Crawford; Lumpkin county—T. F. Christian, W. A. Woody, Robert Moore, H. B. Smith, W. V. Zimmer Jr., Fred Jones; Dawson county—Mrs. Howard, L. J. Evans, Charlie Crawford, C. N. McClure, W. R. Tucker, Len Garmon; Forsyth county—Roy P. Otwell, Marcus Mashburn, John Black, J. Y. Merritt, Mack Roper, Yester Bulce, Harrison Wills, A. C. Smith, Lee Watford, Will Hammons; Fulton county—J. H. Manning, J. T. Upshaw, J. W. Burgess, E. J. Wood, Joe Rucker, J. A. Webb, W. H. Powell, Leonard Bulce, C. P. Vaughan, H. I. Weaver, J. W. 2D WARD PROBE TO BE CONTINUED

Woman, Indicted in Alleged Poll Fraud, Is Released on Bond.

New evidence of fraud in the city democratic primary of September 20 and the surrender Saturday of Mrs. A. B. Palmer, indicted Friday for illegal voting, will assure a continuance of the probe into the election by the grand jury this week and prospects of further action are seen.

Mrs. Palmer went voluntarily to the sheriff's office early Saturday morning and after a conference with the solicitor's office made bond of $100. The amount of the bond was reduced from $300 and it was signed by a professional bondsman.

The woman denied emphatically that she voted twice for Howard McCutcheon, nominated by one vote over Warren Leak as councilman from the second ward, but admitted that she cast a vote for the nominee in precinct "A." She had been charged with also casting a ballot in precinct "B."

"If my name appears on another ballot in precinct "B," she said, "some one else did it. Nobody asked me to vote for McCutcheon, but I did so because he was my choice."

Mrs. Palmer had been sought unsuccessfully at 125 Fair street, S. W., the address which appeared on the ballots. She said she resided at that address until the day before the election when she moved to 220 Fair street, S. W.

The new evidence of illegal voting in the second ward was said to be that two business partners and the wife of one had registered as voters in the second ward, giving as addresses the number of the business firm operated by the men. All three reside in DeKalb county, investigation revealed.

Whether or not their votes—all for the same man—were for McCutcheon could not be established, but if it is established by the grand jury that the three live in DeKalb, all votes will be illegal.

The grand jury will meet again Tuesday.

'Scared' Passengers Thing of Past, Says Veteran Airline Hostess

By ETHEL M. REESE,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

The average airplane passenger's curiosity concerns speed, altitude and landing fields, said Miss Doris Frost, who spends most of her life up in the air on her job as passenger airplane hostess.

"The only two frightened passengers I ever had were men and I'm not so sure they were really scared," she said in explaining her duties.

"What did they do or say?"

"Well," she hesitated as her brown eyes twinkled, "one of them wanted me to hold his hand. We were about to take off and it was his first trip so he didn't know what to expect."

Miss Frost flies for Eastern Air Transport, Inc., between Atlanta and New York. She is on duty two days and rests one.

"People seem to think it is difficult to find girls willing to be air hostesses," Miss Frost commented, "but we have on file 15,000 written applications for the job. We have been discouraging applications for the past two years, so there must be 15,000 more who would like to apply."

The combined weight of a hostess and her baggage must be less than 125 pounds. She must be between 21 and 28 years of age and preference is given to college graduates.

The air hostess has to chat with passengers and serve them beverages and sandwiches. If a baby is sent alone on a plane—and it has been done—the air hostess has to look after it and see that the baby is safely delivered to responsible persons at the destination.

On one trip Miss Frost played hostess to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Mr. Roosevelt was campaigning at the time and Mrs. Roosevelt, who had been in Atlanta, was returning to New York.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY YOUNG JUDEANS

New officers of the Atlanta Young Judeans will be installed at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Jewish Educational Alliance. Officers include Sylvan A. Makover, president; Miss Rosalie Hirsch, vice president; Miss Selma Hirsch, corresponding secretary; Miss Rubye Macarov, recording secretary, and Abe Geffen, treasurer. Mr. Makover was general chairman of the Southern Young Judean convention last August, and is co-editor of the Southern Judean and president of the Coterie club.

Sidney Parks, former president of the Southern Young Judean Association, will open the meeting with a prayer. David Gershon, retiring president, will report on his administration. Edward M. Kahn, executive director of the Jewish Federation of Charities, and Edward R. Vajda, vice president of the Southern Young Judean Association, will speak.

WILL EXPLAIN CODE TO MILL OPERATORS

Since the lumber manufacturer's code became effective on August 22, rapid progress has been made in administering the code in the south by the Southern Pine Association who are the designated agents of the lumber code authority for administering the lumber code in the yellow pine territory comprising 18 states.

A representative of Southern Pine has been working in this territory for several days and reports splendid cooperation on the part of those manufacturers with whom he has come in contact. We are told that where the operators understand the requirements of the code and the penalties provided for violation, that they are co-operating 100 per cent.

For operators who do not fully understand the workings of the lumber code, a meeting will be held Wednesday, October 25, on the Ansley hotel roof in Atlanta at 10:30 a. m. A representative of the Southern Pine Association will conduct this meeting and will be glad to answer all questions on which operators might be in doubt.

All sawmill operators, both large and small, are urged to attend this meeting.

Last of Pay Roll Loan Is Repaid by City

Atlanta Saturday paid $77,835.17 to Atlanta banks. The payment represented the last of the notes held by the banks for loans to meet pay rolls, according to B. Graham West, city comptroller.

Pay rolls amounting to $115,000 were met Friday, but about $900,000 is still owed banks for interest and sinking funds on bonds which fell due this year.

West said the outstanding bond indebtedness represents along with outstanding bills the $1,000,000 deficit which the municipality has run for the past several years. He anticipated that the city would end the year with its deficit of about $1,000,000 still due. He expected that it would not be reduced.

"We have operated or will have for the year without increasing the deficit but without being able to reduce it," West said. "In fact our financial statements will show that we conducted the government on our income for the year."

Phone Rate Hearing Enters Sixth Week

The Georgia public service commission Monday will begin the sixth and what is expected to be the final week of its investigation into rates charged by the various telephone companies operating in the state. Chairman Jud P. Wilhoit, of the commission, said his board hoped to complete the inquiry by Friday night.

Two orders already have resulted from the investigation, the commission having reduced the price of handset telephones from 50 cents extra per month to 15 cents extra per month and ordered a revision of installation charges, reducing the installation of a new phone from $3 to $2 and increasing the charge for transfer of service from $1 to $2.

The Southern Bell Telephone Company again will be called when the hearing is resumed Monday. Assistant Attorney-General John T. Goree, who has been directing the inquiry, having announced that he desires to inquire into a $25,000,000 capital stock issue made in 1929 which was bought by the parent company, the American Telephone & Telegraph Company. He said he also wanted to know for what purpose bonds and other obligations of the company were issued.

First National Ready To Make Cotton Loans

Full resources of the First National bank of Atlanta, largest bank in the southeast, are being placed in cooperation with its correspondent banks for the making of cotton loans on the plan of the Commodity Credit Corporation, at the rate of 4 per cent interest, it was announced Saturday. The First National, with resources of more than $90,000,000, will make its facilities available for loans on cotton over a wide territory, through correspondent banks throughout the section, it was said.

The south's banking resources are ample to care for agricultural and commercial needs of the section and there is no necessity for cotton farmers to go outside of the south for banking support, according to bankers in Atlanta and other financial centers of the south who have stated their willingness and desire to extend loans on cotton.

DR. FULLER TO SPEAK AT SPELMAN SERVICE

Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, pastor of the First Baptist church, will be the speaker at the weekly Spelman College vesper service in Sisters' chapel on the college campus at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The speaker, who is beginning his sixth year in his present pastorate, is president of the home mission board of the Southern Baptist convention and of the Georgia Baptist Sunday School convention, as well as chairman of the Atlanta Baptist Association.

PEANUT MILLERS HIT PROPOSED NRA PLANS

120-Day Contract Period for Futures Meets Opposition.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Trade practices, storage methods and future sales for peanut millers were proposed and assailed today in a continuance of the hearing on the NRA code and marketing agreement for this industry.

Chief arguments centered around a proposal to make the contract period of futures 120 days instead of the 60 days written into the code by the farm administration.

John B. Pinner, of Suffolk, Va., and H. C. Smither, of the Columbian Peanut Company, advocated 120 days for futures on behalf of the Virginia-Carolina and Southeastern Peanut Associations. These groups are supporting the code.

A. Obici, of Suffolk, Va., objected to 60 days and recommended 30 instead, but the Curtiss Candy Company urged the 120 amendment.

Independent warehousemen spoke in favor of an increase from 50 to 60 cents a ton for each month after the first 30 days as the storage charge on farmers for stocked peanuts. Storage charges on peanuts stored in bags, the independents argued, should be charged for at the rate of three cents a month instead of the proposed two cents.

A proposal to limit brokerage fees to 2 per cent was opposed by A. H. Carmichael, Atlanta, Ga., broker.

Chicago Physicians Indorse Advertising

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The use of advertising, long frowned upon by physicians as a medium of informing the public of their trustworthiness and abilities, bore the stamp of approval today of the Cook County Medical Society.

Action indorsing advertising, urging a reduction in costs of medical care and recommending that scientific programs of the organization be planned to answer the needs of the general practitioner rather than the specialist, was taken at a meeting last night.

The society has a membership of several hundred doctors who broke away from the Chicago Medical Society a few months ago.

Dixie Radio Distributors in New Quarters Plan Expansion of Business in Georgia

Interior view of the new quarters of the Dixie Radio Distributors, Inc., at 144-6 Walton street, where the company took larger space to accommodate its expansion of business in Georgia.

Announcement was made Saturday by the Dixie Radio Distributors, Inc., that they had moved into new and larger quarters at 144-6 Walton street. The move resulted from expansion, increased personnel, and plans to introduce RCA-Victor products in Georgia on a larger scale than ever before.

Mr. Edwards also announced, as part of this expansion, that C. F. Porter, formerly of the RCA-Victor Company, had been brought here as his assistant.

The company's new building has 6,000 feet of office and warehouse space, or much more than was available at the old quarters on Peters street.

The Dixie Radio Distributors, Inc. are distributors of RCA-Victor products in Georgia and eastern Tennessee, and as such, it is pointed out, are the largest distributors in the state devoting their time exclusively to the distribution of radio merchandise.

Mr. Edwards, in commenting on the expansion plans under way, was enthusiastic also over the new 1934 line of RCA-Victor radios and combination radio-phonograph models, which have recently been introduced, announcing them as the finest product ever introduced by the big RCA-Victor factories.

Liquor Survey Urges New Temperance Body

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—A new temperance society was suggested today by the Rockefeller liquor survey as a possible means of furthering education against alcohol.

The organization, the report said, might be set up on a national basis "and divorced from old groups and methods that have outlived their usefulness."

"Such an organization," it continued, "could focus specialized attention on the problem and could bring together, behind intelligent programs, men and women interested in the maintenance of a sober country, and determined that the legalized return of alcohol shall mark the beginning of real temperance."

Three factors in temperance education were suggested, as follows: scientific research, unprejudiced dissemination of facts, and emphasis on life and health rather than on disease and death.

School textbooks, it said, should have constant and searching revision in these matters as well as in all others that require change through new gains in knowledge.

PUBLIC WORKS ALLOTS $61,444 TO SAVANNAH

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The public health service treasury department was today allotted $61,444 for the construction of a small mess hall and a quarantine station at Savannah, Ga., by Public Works Administrator Ickes. Twenty-five thousand two hundred dollars of this amount will be expended for the proposed mess hall, and the balance for the quarantine station.

Whenever you are the hero of a story you have a hesitancy in drawing attention to certain exploits. However, when you become the arch villain in the plot you can safely write to your heart's content concerning the matter. All of which calls to mind two plays I made in a recent tournament with Dolly Rosenfield that are worthy of comment and which I will pass on to you, hoping that you will profit by my errors. One was an error in judgment, the other in eyesight. Together they probably cost us the tournament.

Many times at the bridge table you are confronted with the situation where you hold four cards to the ace, ten in one hand and five to the queen, nine in the other. You wonder what is the correct procedure when playing the hand at no trump. Experts have figured out that with this combination of cards your play is to lead the queen and if it is not covered to let it ride. I will not go into the question of percentage for this play, but you can take my word for it that it has been figured as the winning play.

If you are missing either the nine or ten along with the king and jack with this nine suit holding, your play is to lay down the ace and then lead toward the queen.

The other evening in question Dolly and I came to a hand which we finally bid to three no trump. When Dolly spread the dummy it contained five hearts to what I took to be the queen eight, but which in reality was the queen nine. I held four hearts to the ace ten. Like unto a poor deluded dub I called for a small card from dummy and went up with my ace. To my chagrin the hand to my left dropped the jack. Consequently the king made. Had I played, or rather seen, correctly I would have led the queen. Then had my right-hand opponent covered or not with the king I would have made five heart tricks, my three no trump, a top on the board and been in the running for the tournament.

The other free lesson I will impart to you was born at the very next table and shows the difference in rubber and duplicate play. It also shows how your standing in a tournament affects your play.

When we reached this hand, one of the last of the tournament, I knew by my personal score that Dolly and I had a good score but not quite good enough to win unless we secured one or two tops on the remaining hands. Then came this hand which we bid to four hearts.

I was seated west and won the opening spade lead with the ace. I then led a small club, took it in dummy with the ace and laid down a small heart. North's ace captured my king. North then led a club which I won in dummy with the king, South echoing with the eight on this play.

I could now practically see that the hand was a spread for four odd, my losers being two hearts and a spade. However, I figured that the hand was so simple that everyone in the tournament had bid four hearts on it and that everyone would make four. As we were badly in need of a top, a risky play, if successful, would give me five. If it failed I would likely be set.

To the next trick I had the remaining heart from dummy and finessed the ten. North won this with the jack and promptly led another club which South ruffed. South cashed a good spade to set the contract one on a hand that was a lay-down for four. Now the safety play and the play that one would make in rubber bridge would naturally be to play the heart queen on the second round of hearts and then lead the ten. This would prevent a club ruff by South and while maybe giving them an extra trick, assuming the heart finesse would work, would insure the contract being made.

To make my humiliation all the more complete, I found, on looking at the score, that had I made four hearts it would have been a top. Why no other pair reached this contract and made it is a mystery.

Had this hand occurred in the early stages of the tournament one would naturally play for average on the board and make four hearts. If I were leading in a tournament and met this hand in the late stages I would play safe for four. But if in need of a top I think my play to make five was correct. However, it turned out very bad. All of which shows one of the differences in rubber and duplicate play.

Cavendish to Move.

On November 1 the popular Cavendish Club will move from its present site atop the Cox Carlton hotel. Mrs. George Black and Mrs. Lewis Hamilton, the managers of the club, have not as yet decided on a new location but their friends can rest assured that the new quarters will be in keeping with the high standard set by the present ones.

The Cavendish club was the first bridge club to be established in Atlanta and has never changed location before. The many members and friends of this delightful club will be delighted to learn that Mrs. Black and Mrs. Hamilton will continue to be at its head.

Insull Goes on Trial In Extradition Fight

ATHENS, Oct. 21.—(UP)—Concluding the first day's trial to determine whether Samuel Insull can be extradited to Chicago to answer charges growing out of the collapse of his gigantic utilities enterprises, defense counsel for the one-time multi-millionaire denied he had committed any crime under Greek law.

Denis Lazarimos, chief of Insull's counsel, declared that "human error and the inability to foretell events" were not regarded as crimes in Greece. He sought to prove that Insull never acted with fraudulent intent, and that he could not be held for any of his acts as a director in the various companies with which he was associated.

"There is no clause in the extradition treaty between Greece and the United States," he said, "which applies to him."

PAULDING COUNTY GIRL WINS 4-H CHICAGO TRIP

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 21.—For general excellence in 4-H Club work, Miss Janet McGarity, of Paulding county, has been awarded a trip to the National Boys' and Girl's 4-H Club Congress which will convene in Chicago in early November simultaneously with the annual international live stock show.

Miss Margaret Dykes, Early county, and Miss Anna Belle Walker, Pierce county, also will attend the congress, having won the clothing demonstration and bread-making awards, respectively, in project contests in which club girls over Georgia have been competing for several months. Miss Carolyn Rogers, Muscogee county, was given a wrist watch for excellence in food preservation.

DR. C. E. WAITS, PHYSICIAN, DIES

Prominent Atlantan Was Leader in Medical Field. Final Rites Today.

Dr. Charles E. Waits, one of the most prominent physicians in the southeast and a widely-known Atlantan, died early Saturday morning at his residence at 1105 Lullwater road, N. E.

Dr. Waits was taken ill five days ago and his condition grew steadily worse. Death came at 4 o'clock Saturday morning.

A native of Rockmart, where he was born August 4, 1889, Dr. Waits was considered by members of the medical profession as one of the leading thyroid specialists in the southeast. He was prominent in the various medical associations in the United States and was a past president of the Fulton County Medical Society.

Rites To Be Held Today.

Funeral services are to be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Spring Hill chapel. Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church, will officiate and the body will be taken to Rockmart for interment in the family cemetery there.

DR. C. E. WAITS.

The Fulton County Medical Society will form an honorary escort at the rites.

Pallbearers will be Dr. W. C. Goodpasture, Dr. Marvin Head, Dr. Marion Benson, Dr. Herschel Crawford, Dr. H. Cliff Sauls, Dr. Claude Griffin, Dr. Merrill Montfort and Edward Groves Jones.

Dr. Waits is survived by his wife; three sons, Charles, William and Edward Waits; his father, C. N. Waits, of Rockmart; five brothers, W. M. and M. L. Waits, of Birmingham, Ala.; J. L. Waits, of Sumrall, Miss.; J. G. Waits, of Andalusia, Ala., and J. A. Waits, of Cedartown, and four sisters, Mrs. T. A. Hagan and Miss Margaret Waits, of Rockmart; Mrs. W. J. Sample, of Birmingham, and Mrs. W. E. Holland, of Asheville, North Carolina.

After attending Emory University, where he was awarded his degree by the school of medicine, the Atlanta physician studied at the Rockefeller Institute. He came to Atlanta to practice and became a throat specialist, in which field he was best known to the profession.

For several years Dr. Waits was president of the staffs of the Emory University hospital and of Grady hospital, and at the time of his death was a member of the visiting staff of Grady.

Upon taking up residence here, Dr. Waits became associated with Dr. George Noble in the Noble Infirmary. He also was at one time an associate of Dr. Ed G. Jones. The doctor served two years with the medical corps of the American expeditionary forces during the World War.

Dr. Waits was extremely active in medical societies and organizations, being a leader also in various fraternities.

He was a member of the Fulton County Medical Society, the American College of Surgeons, the Southeastern Surgical Association, the American Medical Association, the Southern Medical Association, the Georgia State Medical Society, and the Phi Rho Sigma medical fraternity. He also held membership in the Yaarab Temple of the Shrine, the Knights Templar, the Blue Lodge, F. and A. M., and was a Scottish Rite Mason.

Well known for many years in Atlanta, Dr. Waits was highly regarded both by fellow physicians and the general public. He had many friends all over the south.

A new ultra-violet lamp, so small as to permit being introduced into the bronchial tubes, but powerful enough to help cure tuberculosis, was recently described.

Mrs. Drew's Fine Work in Oil Still on Exhibit at Museum

"Underminded," one of the pictures by Mrs. A. Farnsworth Drew, whose work is being exhibited at the High Museum of Art, being displayed by Mrs. Wallace Reeves, student artist at the High Museum school. Mrs. Drew's paintings will be on exhibition every day until November 1 at the museum. Staff photo by Kenneth Rogers.

Exhibition of the work of Mrs. A. Farnsworth Drew at the High Museum of Art, including beautiful pictures showing the full scope of the artist's ability, the splendid work of an artist imbued with the big things of life, will continue until November 1, affording an opportunity that should not be missed, L. P. Skidmore, director of the museum, announced Saturday.

In order that all Atlantans may have a chance of seeing the various exhibitions held free of charge, the museum is open from 9 to 5 o'clock, and for those employed during the day the museum is open from 7 to 9 o'clock on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights, Mr. Skidmore said.

To the conservative, the portraits have perhaps the greatest appeal of Mrs. Drew's work, Mr. Skidmore said. Some of those on the north wall were painted in her early career and have been beautified by the years, testifying to the enduring qualities of her work. The portrait of Judge Jesse M. Wood, painted in her gardens, is the latest of her oil portraits. On the opposite wall is a group of portrait sketches which Mrs. Drew describes as a by-product but which, in their crisp characterization, are most fascinating.

The side walls are given over principally to her sea pictures, painted on an island off Nova Scotia. Mrs. Drew spent one winter in New Orleans, and a number of swan panels was the outcome.

Relief Plans Mapped For Cane, Beet Grower

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace announced today that he was considering a plan to grant loans to domestic cane and beet sugar growers in an effort to increase the return on their product.

It was emphasized that the plan still was tentative and that many details remained to be settled before final decision.

Any loan plan would be predicated, officials said, on a production control arrangement under which the producer would agree not to expand acreage.

The loan might approximate $6 a ton, it was said, and the processed sugar could be held as security. Puerto Rican and Hawaiian producers may be eligible to borrow, although it was said this had not been decided.

A processing tax on sugar is being studied, suggestions having been made that the levy be one-tenth of a cent a pound, and money raised through this means might repay the government for any loans this year to producers.

Christian name of beneficiary must be given and relationship of same to the insured.

Driver Should Obey Road Rules; Need of Protection Is Shown

It has been said that lightning never strikes twice in the same place. That may be true, but the man that smugly ignores the chance of being struck the first time is a fool, and it isn't wise even to count on the fact that it is not possible to become the victim of a tragedy the second time.

A thoughtful man, with the welfare, comfort and security of his wife and children at heart, safeguards himself and them against the want that follows tragedy. Any thoughtful man or woman, for that matter, cannot fail to be impressed with the peril of the ever-mounting accident wave that is taking such terrible toll of life and limb.

While many accidents can be avoided by knowing the traffic rules, it is very evident from the way some of the Atlanta drivers act in driving through the streets of Atlanta and even on the highways that they know very little about even the simple matter of turning their car. Here alertness means everything.

It is essential to know local traffic rules relative to turns. Obey the laws and make your turns slowly. Give the pedestrian the benefit of the doubt in going around corners. Remember that he has a legal as well as a moral right to a safe crossing as long as he has started with the light or "go" signal. This right has been judiciously established by our higher courts.

Pedestrians should be closely watched by the driver of a car, and his hand should be on the horn ready to give signal by blowing the horn that the car is approaching. The fault is with the driver when he has an opportunity to blow his horn and does not do it. This alone has been held by some state courts as a neglect of the driver. That is what the horn is for. It is to give warning. Some seem to be indifferent about this—others too lazy and some do not care. Use the horn freely in traffic when by so doing you can avoid an accident.

The insurance offered you through The Atlanta Constitution is issued by the North American Accident Insurance Company, of Chicago, Ill. This company during the last several years has paid to Constitution subscribers and members of their families over $160,000.

The insurance is offered to subscribers and immediate dependent members of a subscribers' family between the ages of 15 and 69 on the one subscription going into the home at the small registration fee of 20 cents with application and 10 cents per month thereafter in addition to the subscription price, or $1 each per policy per year in advance, to subscribers who live in Atlanta; and to subscribers outside Atlanta and suburbs the rate is $1 per year per policy in addition to the subscription price.

The policy The Constitution offers you provides for payments of sums ranging downward from $10,000 for travel, $1,000 for auto and pedestrian deaths resulting from certain specific accidents, heavy sums for permanent injuries, and $10 weekly indemnity for total disability resulting from accidents set forth in the policy, which is at the rate of $43.33 per month. All this for the small fee, as stated above—just about 2 1-2 cents a week, and it is offered to old and new subscribers alike.

In sending application for insurance, the applicant must state name in full, give age and occupation, and if beneficiary is desired the full

MORE C.C.C. CAMPS OPENED IN SOUTH

50,000 Men Soon To Be Working in Area, Says General King.

Thirty-five northern and northwestern civilian conservation corps units have arrived in the south for work during the winter months and more are arriving daily, Major General Edward L. King, commander of the fourth army corps area, announced Saturday.

The northern and northwestern camps are moving south because winter weather will not permit them to function.

When all new companies are settled there will be approximately 50,000 men working in the south. Forty thousand of these will be native southerners and 10,000 will be New York and New Jersey workers. The total will be distributed in 255 camps in the area located as follows: Alabama, 28; Florida, 26; Georgia, 42; Louisiana, 27; Mississippi, 22; North Carolina, 34; South Carolina, 21, and Tennessee, 55.

Two million dollars will be used in constructing wooden shelter for the corps in the area. Over half a million dollars will go into the markets each month to buy food for the 50,000 men. Army headquarters said $2,300,000 would be added to business channels in equipping the 50,000 men with necessary clothing.

Men in the southern camps will receive $1,500,000 in pay monthly, all of which is placed immediately in circulation.

Other figures given by the fourth corps headquarters to show the effect of the camps in purchasing power each month include:

Bacon and pork, or the meat from 26,142 hogs, 562,500 pounds; beef, or the meat from 1,563 steers, 937,000 pounds; butter, 187,500 pounds; wheat, 1,125,000 pounds; sugar, 468,750 pounds, potatoes, 937,500 pounds.

For clothing, the men require 100,000 pair of shoes, at a cost of $221,000; underclothing, $225,000; jumpers and working trousers, $133,000; woolen coats, $271,000; flannel shirts, $240,000, and socks, $96,000.

Dixon To Speak.

J. C. Dixon, supervisor of negro schools for the state of Georgia, will speak at the First Congregational church, Houston and Courtland streets, at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The subject for the address will be "The Federal and State Program for Abolishing Illiteracy in Georgia." Admission will be free.

Grand Jury To Receive Visiting Judge's Charge

For the first time in the history of Fulton superior court, according to veteran officials, a visiting judge, R. N. Hardeman, of Louisville, will charge the next grand jury on November 6, according to announcement Saturday. Judge G. H. Howard will be absent from the bench during the week.

The present grand jury will be discharged on November 3.

TECHWOOD, INC., PLAN SCORED AS 'UNSOUND'

Holding that Atlanta has no use for 600 new apartment units at this time, members of a committee of apartment house owners, headed by Leopold J. Haas, Atlanta insurance man, Saturday issued a statement charging that if the Techwood drive area is developed according to present plans, Atlanta real estate values will be drastically upset.

"With several thousand dwellings vacant, with over 1,800 apartment units without tenants, and with rental values reduced to a basis lower than at any time in the last 30 years, the suggested improvements will play havoc with real estate values in Atlanta—bankrupting many and causing unnecessary foreclosures," the statement read. It also pointed out that many persons occupying apartments cannot pay their rent.

Meanwhile, directors of Techwood, Inc., who met for the first time Friday afternoon, were pushing their plans in order to begin construction work on the $4,000,000 slum-clearance, low-cost housing projects here as soon as possible. C. F. Palmer, acting representative of the corporation, said Techwood, Inc. units would not be rented to the same type of persons as are now occupying apartment houses. The new units will be restricted to persons unable to pay what other apartments now charge, he said.

Mr. Haas and his associates stated that the city will not be able to absorb the new units within a period of years and that is not sound business to overproduce simply to provide temporary work for a few. The supply far exceeds the demand, he said. Real estate, now paying 85 per cent of city taxes, cannot stand a heavier burden, the statement read.

$555,000,000 Budget Approved for N. Y.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—A budget of $555,976,996 for 1934 was approved early today by the board of estimate. This is an increase of $37,611,203 over 1933.

The budget must be approved by the board of aldermen before final passage.

DR. SAMUEL GREEN FILES LAST REPORT

Survey of Progress Made by Retiring Committee Given by Chairman.

Dr. Samuel Green, chairman of the retiring city democratic executive committee, Saturday issued a short statement on his record as chairman of the committee.

Dr. Green and members of the old committee have been supplanted by a new and smaller body composed of one member from each of the 13 wards of the municipality. The new committee will handle future primaries.

DR. SAMUEL GREEN.

During his service as chairman, Dr. Green was instrumental in inaugurating a school for election managers and clerks to minimize the probability of mistakes and to give uniformity in voting.

He also introduced a system whereby a public accounting of all funds received by the committee was made and was responsible for many other reforms in the primary system.

It was under his leadership that a program of refunding percentages of entrance fees to candidates was launched and the refund has reached as high as 20 per cent in former years.

"The present committee has filed its last report," Green said Saturday. "I go out of office with no ill will toward anyone and with the consciousness that I have done my best to perform my duties with fairness to all. There have been fewer complaints and contests during my chairmanship than ever before.

HALLIBURTON GREETED BY ADMIRERS HERE

By ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Debonair and attractive, Richard Halliburton, fascinating adventurer and author, captivated the large group of admirers who filled Rich's bookshop to overflowing early Saturday afternoon to greet him.

The ready smile and equally ready wit given by Mr. Halliburton in response to questions and requests for his autograph, made it easy to understand his faculty for making himself welcomed wherever he may be, whether he is in a foreign land or the United States. Although he was born in the neighboring state of Tennessee, Mr. Halliburton's extensive travels have made him a true citizen of the world. His exciting and often daring experiences in his travels are recorded in his successful books, "The Royal Road to Romance," "The Glorious Adventure," "New Worlds to Conquerer" and "The Flying Carpet."

In spite of delay between Atlanta and Rome, where Mr. Halliburton had spoken to students of the Berry schools, he was immaculate in his double-breasted navy blue suit and harmonizing tie, as he arrived to keep his appointment at Rich's. He will remain through the week-end in Atlanta, where he has a number of friends made on previous visits.

Preceding his appearance in the bookshop, Mr. Halliburton was honor guest at the luncheon given in Rich's tea room at which Mrs. Ruth Hinman Carter was hostess. Mr. Halliburton chatted informally on varied topics ranging from discussion of his new car to thrilling experiences during his travels, displaying the engaging and friendly personality which makes him so popular as a speaker. His straight athletic carriage and broad shoulders brought to mind his daring exploits on his adventures, such as the scaling of Fujiyama and the swimming of the Hellespont, which are recounted in his books.

Frankly a football fan and more interested in the outcome of the day's closely-contested football games than anything else, Mr. Halliburton bid the luncheon guests good-bye with the wish, "Here's hoping your favorite team wins today!"

Covers at the luncheon table, which was centered with a vase of burgundy-shaded dahlias, were placed for Miss Elizabeth Treseder, editor of Missemma, school magazine of Washington Seminary; Elizabeth Blackshear, on the staff of North Avenue Presbyterian school's yearbook, Napsonian; Miss Virginia Evins, editor of the Girls' High school yearbook; Misses Ida Nevin, Ellen Wolff, Elizabeth Thompson; Dr. Philip Davidson, of Agnes Scott College; Boifeullet Jones, editor of the Emory (University) Wheel; Daniel Whitehead Hicky, well-known poet; Frank Harrold, Frank Rowsey, Wright Bryan, Mrs. Carter and Mr. Halliburton.

NEW RESIDENCE HALLS OPENED AT ATLANTA U.

Atlanta University formally opened its new residence halls Friday night with a reception which was attended by several hundred Atlanta alumni, faculty members and trustees of the institutions for higher learning in Atlanta and other friends of the university. In the large lounge of the women's residence hall the guests were received by President John Hope and his wife and Josephine Elizabeth Robinson, hostess of the halls. During the course of the evening, opportunity was given to inspect the two residence halls, which provide living accommodations for moret han 200 persons, and the dining halls and service unit.

The residence halls, which were completed late this summer, are located on Chestnut street, occupying the entire frontage between West Hunter and Beckwith streets.

Gormley Moves To Obtain U. S. Funds for Closed Banks

R. E. Gormley, state superintendent of banks, Saturday sought from the state legal department a ruling which would permit him to borrow money for the benefit of depositors on the assets of closed state banks.

Last year, he said, when the Reconstruction Finance Corporation first started its campaign to reopen banks and make funds available to depositors in banks which could not be reopened, the legal department under Lawrence Camp, then attorney-general, gave an opinion on the point which left the matter in some doubt, but indicated such a course could not be taken under Georgia law.

Specifically, Gormley said, the former ruling was to the effect that while there was no express prohibition against such borrowing, neither was there any provision for it.

In Charge of Liquidation.

The banking superintendent has charge of the liquidation of closed state banks.

Should the ruling of the present attorney-general, M. J. Yeomans, be adverse to that plan, Gormley said, he will attempt to obtain money for Georgia from the R. F. C. through outright sale of available assets of closed banks to the corporation.

He said he had written about that plan to C. B. Merriam, chairman of the deposit liquidation board of the R. F. C., and also had taken the matter up with Ryburn Clay, head of the Georgia committee and sixth federal reserve committee of the liquidation board.

In his communication to Merriam, Gormley included detailed information on deposit liabilities of closed Georgia state banks and on the appraised value of assets.

The operations of the deposit liquidation board are confined to banks closed since January 1, this year, Gormley said there were only six state banks in Georgia falling in that category, and eight national banks.

Clay Names Committee.

Mr. Clay, as chairman of the sixth federal reserve liquidating committee, Saturday night announced members, as follows:

J. D. O'Keefe, president of the Whitney National bank, of New Orleans, for Louisiana.

J. T. Walker, president of the Atlantic National bank, of Jacksonville, for Florida.

Frank Foote, president of the First National bank, of Hattiesburg, for Mississippi.

Walter Henley, president of the Birmingham Trust & Savings bank, for Alabama.

D. B. Harris, vice president of the Hamilton National bank, of Chattanooga, for Tennessee.

Marshall Hunter, president of the First National Bank & Trust Company, of Macon, for Georgia.

General Charles H. Cox, of Atlanta, secretary.

Each state committeeman will supervise the work in his state as examiners check worthy banks. A meeting of the full committee will be held in Atlanta next week. Members of the committee will serve without pay.

Mr. Clay said Saturday night the committee would work at top speed in order to carry out the president's plan as soon as possible and place the frozen funds in circulation again.

Mr. Cox will resign his position as secretary of the Georgia advisory board on public works to aid the work of the banking committee.

Patience Needed To Aid Recovery, Carter Poland, NRA Speaker, Says

Patience and confidence are needed to whip the public enemy, depression, now that President Roosevelt's recovery program is under way, Carter D. Poland, member of the NRA staff of speakers, said Saturday in an interview as he prepared for a trip Thursday to Rome, where he will address the Rotary club.

"There are a number of angles in this war on depression that loudly smack of the experiences we went through in the World War," Poland said. "There was as much confusion then in getting lined up to raise and train an army as there is now in getting the recovery program under way.

"It took months to do the job then before we went in and mopped up on an enemy who was pretty well frayed. It is going to take months to make any satisfactory showing against the depression, and it will take years to finish the job, for this time our enemy is strong, as big as life, and twice as natural."

Poland, who was one of the principal speakers at the NRA mass meeting in the Atlanta auditorium some time ago, said that "things happen so fast these days that any plan of action or discussion of it soon becomes out of date. One of the most appealing assurances of the recovery program is its utter flexibility. The president is following a general outline of plans. He has admitted that many of his measures are experiments.

Not All Roosevelt Program.

"He also said he does not 'expect to make a hit every time I go to bat', and, to continue the baseball lingo, it could be said that the pitcher against the president is the most proficient and tightest in the country, depression. The catcher, the public, is too well teamed up with the pitcher, and has been catching him so long that it is a hard battery to hit against, or steal a base on.

"We have a recovery program," Poland said, "but it isn't essentially a Roosevelt program. The president is not attempting to make his ideas stand out for his particularly glory. He is using every means that seems capable of helping him to help the country. He has not disdained to use measures that smack loudly of those Hoover used. For instance, the Commodity Credit Corporation is somewhat similar to Hoover's farm loan agency. Having federal reserve banks buy government securities in the open market was done by Hoover, and is now being done by Roosevelt on a much enlarged scale.

"Whereas Hoover watered the plant's top leaves in an effort to restore the famished roots to vigor, President Roosevelt is watering the whole plant. In view of these facts it is apparent that this democratic administration is in fact an American administration, and is one that even republicans can support with vigor. As with all great experiments, the plans are being administered on the trial and error basis. A plan is tried and errors are corrected."

The sooner impatience is done away with and confidence is established, the sooner the country is going to get a running start up the long, steep hill, in the opinion of Poland. "In the meantime," he said, "America could not adopt a better motto than 'Trust and obey.'"

Certain Forms of Inflation.

Answering the demand for inflation of money, specifically the issuance of greenbacks, Poland said that "we are off the gold standard. The money outstanding now is therefore not redeemable in gold coin, even in part. Of course, when we go back on the gold standard, which we undoubtedly shall, present money will resume its relationship to gold. The last time we went off the gold standard it took 18 years to get back on it. Therefore, it seems foolish to be hoarding money now, because it has no more value than is fixed by the confidence of the people. Greenbacks would come into the same classification.

"There are certain forms of inflation now taking place that are good for the country. The billion dollars to be used in reopening closed banks is a form of inflation in which new money is being loaned to take the place of other money that is frozen. Price guarantees for farm products by the agricultural adjustment administration can be classified as a form of inflation. As a matter of fact, inflation may be roughly defined as meaning higher prices for goods accompanied by cheap money with which to buy the higher priced goods."

The most involved question the president has before him if the monetary problem, Poland said. "Since it takes a great deal of money to run the new deal, money is the most important feature. Tremendous pressure is being exerted to get the president to inflate the currency, but he is apparently trying to avoid this, and probably will do so if circumstances will permit. It seems that the money question must be answered before the other tangles in the recovery program can be completely and satisfactorily straightened out."

CARTER D. POLAND.

Georgia's Fair Booth Will Be Kept Open

Georgia's exhibit at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago will be held open for the extension of the fair period to November 12, the Georgia Century of Progress commission announced Saturday. The fair is being continued in response to popular demand. Other state exhibits also will be held open, it was said.

An estimate that by the time the fair closes more than 4,000,000 persons will have seen the Georgia exhibit, adjudged the third best of all the state exhibits, was made by Mrs. Hilton Tyus, of Carrollton, sister of Governor Talmadge and official state hostess at the fair, in a letter to Scott W. Allen, chairman of the Georgia commission.

Exchange To Submit Quiz To Members

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(UP)—The New York Stock Exchange is ready to send its members any questionnaire drawn up by the senate committee investigating the stock market, but will take no action to compel them to answer it," Richard Whitney, president of the stock exchange, said today.

The exchange will recommend that a revised questionnaire now being drawn up by the committee be answered, Whitney said, adding that an order to answer it would have deprived the members of the right to assert, if they saw fit, that the information required was not proper or relevant to the pending investigation.

Charges by Ferdinand Pecora, counsel to the committee, that Whitney had failed to co-operate in the investigation were termed "unjustified."

Two Murder Trials Set for This Week

Two murder cases, one against a white woman, will be heard in Judge John D. Humphries' division of criminal court this week, when Mrs. Bethel Long goes on trial for the murder of Mrs. Fred Holbrook during a fight, and Dewey Roper, of old Milton county, will be tried for the murder of Russ Strickland, a negro.

Mrs. Long is charged with beating Mrs. Holbrook to death with her hands in a fight at a mill near Alpharetta where both were employed and Roper was said by county police to have shot the negro during a quarrel over cows which belonged to Strickland.

DECATUR WOMAN GIVEN 26 PRIZES AT CHICAGO FAIR

One hundred and fifty dollars for one chicken, $2 each for eggs, and first prize at the Chicago world's fair poultry show are in the record books of a former Atlanta schooi "mam" who turned poultry farmer.

Mrs. Donald Donaldson returned from Chicago last week with top prize for the best Rhode Island reds in America. The former school teacher previously had won first prize for six consecutive years with her exhibits at the New York state fair.

A graduate of the Girls' High school in Atlanta, Mrs. Donaldson taught grade schools here for three years before becoming interested in chicken raising. She saw some "pretty" chickens and wanted some of her own. The small pen with which she started several years ago has grown into a five-acre farm producing nearly 1,500 purebred Rhode Island chickens yearly.

She entered 26 birds in the Chicago exhibition and all were on the winning list, four taking first prizes, several second place and the group winning the award of the best poultry display.

The $150 record price for one bird was paid by a chicken fancier during boom years, but the eggs were sold for $2 each during her trip to Chicago this week.

ROME TO HOLD 4-DAY FETE FOR 100TH BIRTHDAY OF COUNTY

LESLIE, GA., YOUTH CHOSEN AS FINEST FARM BOY IN STATE

Georgia 'Future Farmers' End Annual Convention at Macon; Lyons School Boy Named President.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Georgia's outstanding farm boy intends to stay on the farm.

The boy is 18-year-old C. W. Grant Jr., of Leslie, who was chosen from the ranks of some 600 delegates attending the annual convention of the Georgia Association of the Future Farmers of America this morning as the star Georgia planter. He lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Grant Sr., on a two-horse farm near Leslie. Since his graduation in May of this year, from Union High school, he has been supervising the cultivation of several acres of his father's farm and helping out where he was needed.

"I'd like to go to college at the University of Georgia," he remarked after receiving the award, "but whether or not I get to go, I'm coming back to the farm."

After a busy morning, during which they elected officers, heard an address by Representative John S. Wood, of the ninth Georgia district, and received reports from committees on awards and prizes, the future farmers adjourned their fifth annual convention at Hotel Dempsey shortly before noon.

More than 600 young farmers attended the meeting and they voted unanimously to hold next year's convention in Macon.

The convention unanimously elected the slate of officers recommended by the executive committee last night. As their president they chose Marion Winge, Lyons High school boy.

The complete slate of new officers includes Homer Winkle, Gore; David Newton, Moultrie; Hugh Dorsey King, Hartwell, vice presidents; Jack Moseley, Vidalia, secretary; Robert Allen, Fairburn, treasurer; Dreyfuss Fountain, Walker Park, reporter, and M. D. Mobley, Tifton, re-elected advisor.

ONE MAN RETAKEN AFTER FOUR FLEE

Other Escapes From Milledgeville Reported Seen Near Dothan, Ala.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Jack Opiy, one of four prisoners who overpowered a guard and escaped from the state prison farm here late yesterday was captured early today between Gray and Haddock, officials of the prison announced today.

The three others, prison authorities said they were told, were seen in the vicinity of Dothan, Ala., about 4 a. m., still in the automobile which they commandeered for their get-away.

Opiy, serving a 12 months' term from Muscogee county, told arresting officers, the prison was informed, that he "got cold feet" and asked his companions to let him out of the automobile near where he was taken into custody.

Names of the other three were given by prison officials as Harry Odom, serving 10 to 15 years from Marion county; Chris Anglin, 12 months from Bibb county, and Euiel Wilson, 12 months from Polk county. The charges upon which they were convicted were not available.

Dothan police reported the three convicts had stopped at a place near there and sawed their shackles off, and then went south, in the direction of Florida.

State Deaths And Funerals

MRS. O. B. BRIGHTWELL.

PLAINS, Ga., Oct. 21.—Mrs. Orrie Barrentine Brightwell, of the Weston community, died Thursday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clayton Spann, near Richland. Funeral services were held at the Spann home Friday morning, with the Rev. J. E. O'Keef, pastor of the Weston Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in the Popular Springs cemetery near Weston. Surviving are seven sons, S. O., T. F., J. S. and R. E. Brightwell, all of Weston; Charles L., of Dawson; George A. and J. C. Brightwell, of Columbus. Two daughters, Mrs. Clayton Spann and Mrs. D. F. King, of Arlington, also survive.

MISS EVA PROFUMO.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 21.—Funeral services for Miss Eva Profumo, prominent Columbus citizen, who died Thursday morning, were held Friday morning at the Church of the Holy Family, with the Rev. Dan J. McCarthy officiating.

Miss Profumo is survived by one brother, F. X. Profumo; one sister, Miss Angela Profumo; three nieces and one nephew, all of Columbus. Interment was in Linwood cemetery.

MRS. S. W. RAY.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Oct. 21.—Funeral services for Mrs. S. W. Ray, 72, were held Friday evening at the Baptist Tabernacle, and were conducted by Rev. Guy N. Atkinson, assisted by Rev. George Crow. Interment followed in the family lot at Oak Hill cemetery. Survivors include her husband; four daughters, Mrs. J. T. Mitchell, Mrs. W. W. Landers and Mrs. W. R. McDaniel, of Cartersville; Mrs. W. W. Coffee, of Dalton; two sons, J. G. Ray and H. C. Ray, of Cartersville, and 12 grandchildren. In 1928 Mr. and Mrs. Ray celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

MRS. HARRY B. BRADFORD.

PINE LOG, Ga., Oct. 21.—Mrs. Harry B. Bradford, 41, wife of one of Bartow county's most prominent physicians, was laid to rest Friday afternoon at the Pine Log cemetery, after funeral services at the Methodist church here, Rev. M. C. Allen, of Fayetteville, and Rev. J. W. Stephens, of Dallas, conducted the last rites.

Mrs. Bradford was the daughter of Mrs. Joe M. Moon and the late Judge Moon, of Cartersville. She spent her girlhood there, graduated at Cartersville High, attended Agnes Scott, in Atlanta, and then taught in the Cartersville schools for several years. Following her marriage to Dr. Bradford in 1917, she became principal of the Pine Log school, and held that position as long as her health would permit.

She is survived by her husband; one son, Harry Jr.; her mother; a sister, Mrs. L. M. Webb, of Covington; an uncle, Dr. P. L. Moon, of Atlanta, and an aunt, Mrs R. N. Bruce, of Emerson.

ALAN MOORE.

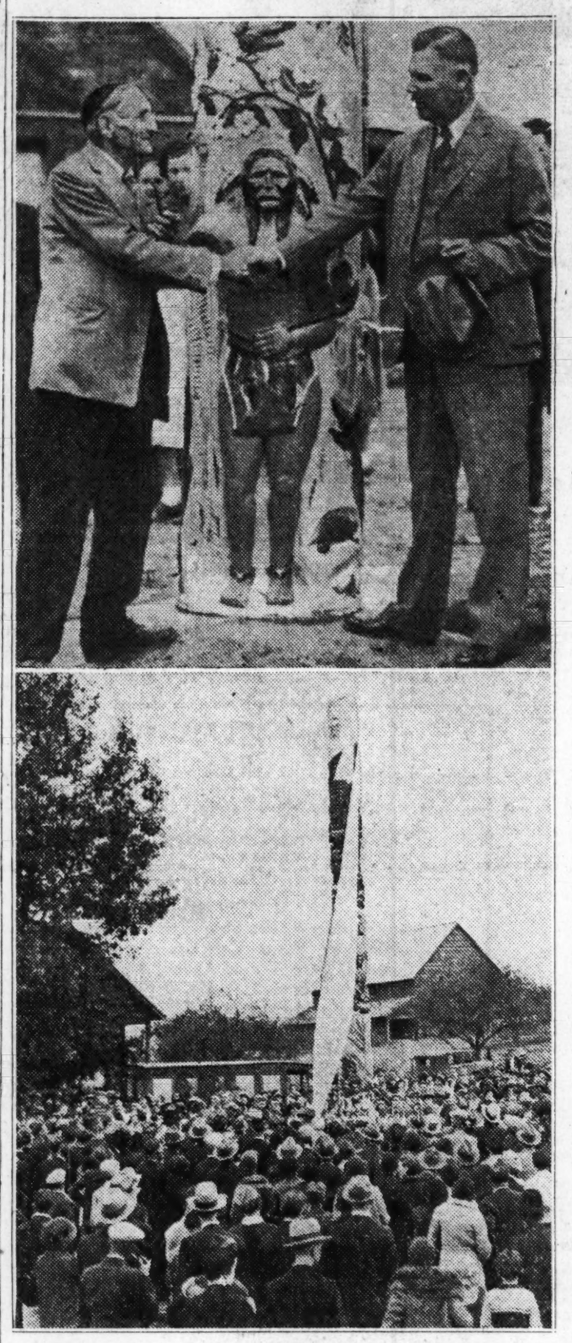

ELBERTON, Ga., Oct. 21.—The funeral of Alan Moore, who died from the effects of a fall from the eleventh story of a Miami building Tuesday night, was held here Saturday morning. The Rev. Stewart, rector of the Greenwood Episcopal church, officiated. Mr. Moore was a son of Mrs. R. F. Moore and of the late Dr. R. F. Moore, and was 28 years old. He is survived by his wife, to whom he had been married only a few months; one brother, Guilford Moore, of Greers, S. C., and his mother.

HENRY G. BARNWELL.

WASHINGTON, Ga., Oct. 21.—Henry Gordon Barnwell, 64, was found dead in bed here early Saturday. Though born and reared in Washington, Mr. Barnwell spent the major portion of his life in Nashville. In recent years he returned to Washington, retired from business and devoted his time to studying and writing on national issues. He was of the Christian Science faith and unmarried.

He is survived by four sisters, Mrs. C. N. Combs, of Washington; Mrs. Jessie B. Lauder, of Baltimore; Mrs. Julia B. Wilson, Atlanta; Mrs. Edward Norwood, Washington, D. C., and two brothers, P. B. Barnwell, Augusta, and L. H. Barnwell, St. Louis. Final rites will be held here Sunday afternoon.

Nacoochee Totem Pole Unveiled

Grovetown, Ga., Renews Its Claim To Longest Service Postmaster

GROVETOWN, Ga., Oct. 21.—Grovetown declines to be knocked out of the box when it comes to claiming the oldest postmaster in Georgia so far as term of service is concerned, if not the oldest in the United States.

Several weeks ago it was announced that "Uncle Charlie" Clifford, the Grovetown postmaster, was believed to be the oldest employe, of this type, of Uncle Sam when it came to length of service. The announcement brought a challenge from Forest Park, Ga. It was claimed by the champions of that town that H. F. Puckett, the postmaster there, was older in service than Postmaster Clifford. It was said at Forest Park that Postmaster Puckett had been on the job continuously for the past 57 years.

If this were true it would make him beat by one year the record of Postmaster Clifford, who was commissioned in September, 1877, and has been handing out the postal cards and letters to succeeding generations of Georgians at Grovetown since that date.

The claim of Postmaster Puckett set in motion the machinery here to find out just how long the contesting postmasters had served. And shuh! Puckett's a neophyte—a mere beginner—compared to Grovetown's champion long-distance postmaster. Official advices from Washington show that Mr. Puckett was appointed postmaster at Forest Park on November 9, 1903. And what does the same record disclose as to the veteran Clifford? That his first commission was dated September 28, 1877, and that he has been on the job ever since.

U. S. FISH CULTURIST TO RETIRE TO FARM

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Oct. 21.—After 34 years service in the federal employ, with retirement on November 1, E. M. Self, veteran fish culturist, at the government fish hatcheries here, who is virtually retired now inasmuch as he is on leave until November 1, says that idleness holds no charms for him, and that a man can always find work.

"I can't loaf," said the veteran fish culturist, who working at the local fish hatcheries these many years, has seen Warm Springs grow from obscurity to national significance with the election of Roosevelt to the presidency, and who plans to spend his retirement tending to his farm where he grows tomatoes, beans, and other vegetable crops, leaving cotton out of his plantings, contrary to most farmers in this section.

Would Name Bridge The 'Eugene Talmadge'

MACON, Ga., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Mayor Glen Toole today proposed that the new bridge to be built over the Ocmulgee river here be named the "Eugene Talmadge bridge."

The mayor made his suggestion after the governor concluded an address at the Georgia state exposition in the form of a motion and asked the crowd to express its sentiments. A thunderous shout of "aye" followed.

Mayor Toole also suggested that the bridge be located at Third street instead of at the present site at Spring street.

H. B. SMITH INJURED IN HIGHWAY CRASH

DAHLONEGA, Ga., Oct. 21.—H. B. Smith, prominent citizen here, was injured late Saturday when his car collided with a truck about four miles north of this city. Mr. Smith was en route to his farm in White county at the time of the accident.

He was rushed to the hospital at Gainesville and his hurts, while serious and extremely painful, were believed not dangerous.

SUMNER NOT GUILTY - SECOND JURY DECIDES

SWAINSBORO, Ga., Oct. 21.—(AP) Hoke Sumner was found not guilty of murder today by a jury in Emanuel county superior court, after a trial which lasted three days. Sumner had been charged with the murder of H. S. Durden in the summer of 1931 at a church near Norristown.

Sumner was tried shortly after the killing, was convicted and was sentenced to serve 20 years in the penitentiary. The case was appealed to Judge Hardema... based on the relationship of two jurors and a new trial was granted.

GEORGIA W. C. T. U. TO CONSIDER BEER PROBLEM IN STATE

Women's Dry Body Gathers Tuesday in Augusta for Jubilee Convention of Organization.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Georgia's women temperance workers are expected to speak out in definite and determined fashion here this week on violation of the state's bone-dry law. Meeting for the first time since the advent of 3.2 beer, the Women's Christian Temperance Union will hold its jubilee convention in this city October 24-26.

Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, of Atlanta, will open the convention in the St. John Methodist church Tuesday evening with an address. Mrs. Ida B. Wise, of Idaho, national president of the W. C. T. U., will deliver an address at Wednesday night's session.

Before leaving Atlanta for the convention Mrs. Russell would not forecast any specific step the organization might take but said it was certain the licensing of beer by municipalities would be among matters considered.

Prominent W. C. T. U. workers who will appear on the program include Mrs. Mary Harris Armour, national lecturer; Mrs. Marvin Williams, of Marietta, vice president; Mrs. August Burghard, of Macon, editor of the Georgia W. C. T. U. Bulletin, and Arthur Barnhart, Chicago attorney, who will speak on the "Prohibition Problem and the Relation of Political Service to It."

Mrs. Wise recently spent four months in Syria, Palestine, Egypt and eastern Europe studying social and political conditions.

Two executive sessions will be held Tuesday with regular convention sessions beginning Tuesday night. Mrs. Remer Brown, a member of the convention committee, said 125 official delegates are expected at the gathering.

Other officers of the organization include Mrs. R. L. Miller, Waynesboro, corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. H. McDougal, Atlanta, recording secretary, and Mrs. Wilbur Brown, Griffin, treasurer.

TOTEM UNVEILED WITHOUT INDIANS

Impressive Rites Held in Nacoochee Valley; Cherokees Fail To Appear.

CLEVELAND, Ga., Oct. 21.—A totem pole was unveiled near here today on territory formerly occupied by the Cherokee Indians but none of the descendants of the once mighty tribe were present at the ceremony.

Judge Ben P. Gaillard was the principal speaker at the exercises in the Nacoochee valley. A barbecue dinner was served the hundreds of visitors who were present.

The Indians were expected to come down from the North Carolina mountains but the ceremony was carried out without them when they failed to appear. The totem pole, 30 feet high and four meet in diameter, bears figures of many animals, birds and Indians and was carved by a former seaman known as the "Woodcarver of Nacoochee."

There was no explanation immediately available about the absence of the Indians.

Students from Brenau College, in Gainesville, took an active part in the ceremonies, their colorful costumes giving a note of Indian character to scene despite the absence of the redmen themselves.

Georgia News Told in Brief

Meriwether Ginnings.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Oct. 21.—There were 6,007 bales of cotton ginner in Meriwether county from the 1933 crop prior to October 1, as compared with 5,350 bales for the same period in 1932, according to figures received here today.

10-Pound Potato.

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Oct. 21.—The largest sweet potato ever seen in this section of the state was brought into Barnesville this week by Mrs. A. J. Wellmaker, who grew it on her place near town. The potato weighed 10 1-4 pounds. Mrs. Wellmaker is one of the county's most successful farmers and housekeepers.

Atlantans To Speak.

McDONOUGH, Ga., Oct. 21.—Miss Margaret Hoyt, of Atlanta, and Dr. William H. Huck, director of young people, of Atlanta, will be the principal speakers at the district rally to be held at Timberridge Presbyterian church in Henry county on Sunday afternoon at 4:30. Organizations in the nine churches, McDonough, Kelleytown, Hemphill Memorial, Stockbridge, Fellowship, Jackson, Barnesville, Forsyth and Timberridge, will be represented. Miss Louise Russell, of McDonough, president, will preside and Miss Nora Watts Harper, of Timberridge, will act as official hostess.

Troup County Forbids 3.2 Sales After Week

LAGRANGE, Ga., Oct. 21.—(AP) County officers today gave dispensers of 3.2 per cent beer until next Friday to sell out their stocks and close up.

The sheriff served notice on 41 dealers they must close within a week and Solicitor Leon Meadors said any remaining open after that time would be served with warrants charging violation of the state's bone dry law.

'Uncle Jim' Williams Has Worked In Georgia Journalism Fifty Years

By BOB O'KELLEY.

GREENSBORO, Ga., Oct. 21.—Often referred to as the dean of the Georgia press, James Cranston Williams, more frequently called "Uncle Jim," has rounded over 50 years in Georgia journalism.

At the age of 12 years he entered a printing office of the Crawfordville Democrat as the printer's "devil," a humble position that has not been eliminated in the most modern of printing offices. While working on this newspaper Mr. Williams "pulled" a George Washington hand press and is now one of the few living men who have printed a newspaper on that old type press.

Serving through his apprenticeship, he worked in many southern printing offices, his position varying from foreman of the composing room, advertising solicitor, circulation manager, and editor.

It was during this early period at the age of 18 that he cast his first democratic vote, and he says "I have never voted anything but the democratic ticket since then."

Editor Williams had the distinction of being the first southern newspaper editor to declare for Alfred E. Smith as the democratic nominee in 1928. It was in the early part of 1927 and the editorial found its way into the hands of United States Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, who read it into the Congressional Record. Reprints were circulated throughout the United States.

Editor Williams is known to never "straddle" an idea or ride the tide of popular opinion.

Against K. K. K.

A number of years ago when the Ku Klux Klan was a political power, and strong throughout the state, "Uncle Jim" was among the first to take editorial stand against this organization. As a result, H. L. Mencken in his American Mercury commented upon the Herald-Journal's fearless attitude.

Over 20 years ago the government was taking an active stand in tick eradication in Georgia, and representatives were sent to Greene county to secure co-operation and do the work. Editor Williams was about the only person in Greene county to co-operate at first. He says he based his conclusion on the fact that the government wouldn't have been supporting something that was wrong for the people. Greene county had wonderful opportunities in dairying.

A mass meeting was held in the courthouse in Greensboro and the room was crowded. The chairman of the meeting, at the outset, requested that all persons who were in sympathy with the cause of tick eradication to please leave the room. Editor Williams told the chairman that he was in attendance as a newspaper reporter, but if the statement meant for him to leave he would go. Editor Williams was the only person to leave the room and was hissed as he departed.

Only One Right.

"The government men went ahead and dipped the cattle against strong opposition and hindrances," said "Uncle Jim," "and there is not a cattle tick in Greene county today. That proves how wrong public sentiment can sometimes be. Out of 700 men I was the only one who was right, therefore, I never censure any one man for tying up a jury."

Editor Williams is one of the three living charter members of the Georgia Press Association, attending its first meeting in Milledgeville over 40 years ago. In 1931 the Herald-Journal was awarded the George M. Napier trophy by the association for having the best editorial page of any weekly newspaper in the state.

Since the death of Mr. Napier Mr. Williams has been donating a trophy every year through the association to the Georgia newspaper having the best editorial page.

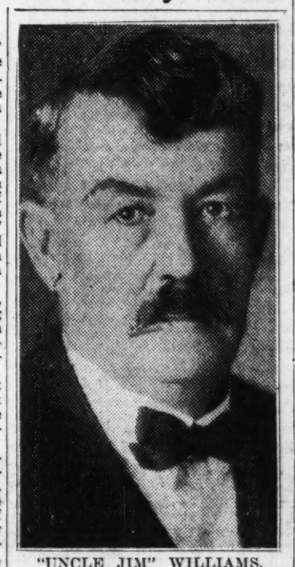

The Herald-Journal has had the reputation for many years as being Georgia's most widely quoted newspaper in the weekly field. For many years the Literary Digest has been reproducing paragraphs from his paper. The Greensboro publication has received mention at one time or another in many national magazines and metropolitan newspapers.

Held One Office.

Editor Williams has never held but one local office, serving on the city council soon after moving to Greensboro. "I speak too frankly and freely," says Editor Williams, "to get elected to any office, and besides when an editor begins to hold political office his usefulness to the people is handicapped."

Editor Williams has been democratic elector from the eighth district three times, in 1912 and 1916 when Woodrow Wilson was elected president, and in 1924 when John W. Davis was defeated. He served for many years on the board of trustees of the Eighth District A. & M. College and the Georgia Medical College in Augusta.

He is now director in the Bank of Greensboro. At the time the bank was organized Editor Williams was telling some friends how he thought a bank should be run, though he had had no actual experience in such circles. The next thing he knew he was on the board of directors.

Sons of Editor.

Captain Cranston Williams, oldest son of the Greensboro editor, received his newspaper training in his father's office. The younger Williams was editing the Americus Times-Recorder at the time the United States entered the World War. He entered an officers' training camp and graduated with a commission. He went overseas as commander of a machine gun company and was in several months' active service. When the armistice was signed Mr. Williams was appointed by Senator William J. Harris as his private secretary. He served in that capacity for five years, resigning to become secretary and manager of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association with headquarters in Chattanooga, in which capacity he is now serving.

Carey Williams, younger son of the Greensboro editor, is connected with his father on the Greensboro Herald-Journal as managing editor. Carey Williams is fast gaining national renown through the products of his pen which appear in some of the leading dailies under the title Sense and Nonsense.

"Uncle Jim" Williams, though fast approaching the three-quarter century mark, is still actively engaged in publishing his newspaper.

Reidsville Postoffice.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The postoffice department announced today that Mellie M. Anderson had been appointed acting postmaster at Reidsville, Ga.

TWO MEN KILLED AS AUTO HITS POLE

Columbus Citizens Crushed in Crash Returning From Football Game.

PALMETTO, Ga., Oct. 21.—(UP) Losing control of their automobile which crashed into a telephone pole, two prominent Columbia (Ga.) men were killed and a North Carolina school teacher, given a "lift" by them, was critically injured here early today.

The dead, John Walton, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Walton, vice president of the Eagle and Phenix Mills here, and Evans Baxley, son of Mrs. H. Y. Baxley, were en route to the Georgia Tech-Tulane football game in Atlanta when the accident occurred on the outskirts of the city.

Walton only a few months ago married Miss Frances Mathews, of Five Points, Ala. Besides his wife and parents he is survived by one brother, Britt Walton, and two sisters, Margaret Walton, Columbus, and Mrs. Joseph Franklin, Lumpkin, Georgia.

Baxley, employed at a Columbus bottling company, is survived by his mother and two brothers, Harry and Sherwood Baxley, both of Columbus.

Miller, apparently hitch-hiking his way home, was said to be a school teacher at Boone, N. C.

MONROE BOY KILLED BY TRUCK IN COMMERCE

COMMERCE, Ga., Oct. 21.—Edwin Smith, 18-year-old Monroe boy, was killed here today as he attempted to swing on a truck driven by W. W. Ivey in the Gordon Lumber Company premises. Both the truck and trailer ran over young Smith's neck.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Smith; three sisters, Mrs. W. W. Ivey, Mrs. J. P. Harvey and Miss Ruth Smith, and three brothers, Walter Smith, Monroe Smith and J. W. Smith.

BABY DEAD, MOTHER HURT IN ROYSTON ACCIDENT

COMMERCE, Ga., Oct. 21.—Eugenia Couch, year-old baby, was killed and her mother, Mrs. Weldon Couch, and her aunt, Miss Annie Couch, were seriously injured Friday morning when the car in which they were riding overturned near Royston.

J. P. Couch, driver of the car, received minor injuries. The Couch's were returning to Jefferson from Anderson, S. C.

English Family Reunion.

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Oct. 21.—The annual reunion of the English family of Lamar county was held this week at the home of J. P. English, the occasion being the celebration of the eighty-fourth birthday of Mrs. H. V. English.

Honored by Future Farmers

Left, Marion Winge, Lyons High school boy, chosen by the Georgia Association of the Future Farmers of America as president at the convention in Macon Saturday. At right is C. W. Grant Jr., of Leslie, Ga., designated the outstanding farm boy of Georgia when the association chose him as the "Star Georgia Planter."

GREAT CENTENNIAL SET FOR THIS WEEK IN FLOYD COUNTY

Governor's Day, Friday, To Be Outstanding Feature of Elaborate Four-Day Fiesta.

ROME, Ga., Oct. 21.—Floyd county is planning the greatest celebration in its history on October 25, 26, 27 and 28 when its citizens observe the 100th anniversary of the founding of the county. Every organization, civic, church, school, patriotic and otherwise, in the city and county is taking a hand in the plans for the events.

G. E. Maddox is heading the executive committee in charge of the program. While the program itself, which consists of an old-style fashion show, history of the negro race, historical parade in which every historical event in the county will be portrayed, a pageant of the history of the county and state, and an old-fashioned fiddlers' convention without a violinist allowed inside, will be directed by Will A. Patton and Lamar Tally.

The big day of the four-day program will be Friday, when Governor Eugene Talmadge, Congressman Tarver and possibly Senators George and Russell will attend an old-fashioned picnic dinner in which it is estimated some 25,000 people of the county will be present in the morning and in the afternoon will review the historical parade.

The program will begin at the city auditorium on Wednesday night when the queen of the centennial, to be elected by popular vote, will be crowned, and before her will be displayed the fashions of grandmother and great-grandmother, those made by the 4-H Club girls themselves, and those worn by Miss 1933.

On the second night the negro citizens of Rome will present a program in two parts, the first to be a history of their race and their part in the progress of Georgia. The second part will feature a specially trained famous chorus of 150 voices singing the old negro spirituals and hymns.

Friday morning Governor Talmadge will talk to the people of this county and section, with special places reserved for the children—the citizens of the future. An old-fashioned spread picnic dinner at the old fair grounds along the banks of the Coosa river will be the noon feature.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon a parade in which approximately 60 historical floats and 25 others, representing the spirit of progress of 1933, will pass a reviewing stand on which the governor and his staff and visiting notables will be. The historical floats will be colorful ones, all depicting some outstanding event in this history of Floyd county.

The last day of the celebration will bring together famous fiddlers, banjo and guitar pickers from all this section together for an old-fashioned contest at the city auditorium. Prizes will be given to a number of "the bests."

The home-coming feature has been added to the centennial celebration and many Romans have already written they are coming back for the four days. Fully 25,000 visitors are expected to be in Rome on Friday, the big day of the celebration.

FORT BENNING PLANS 15TH BIRTHDAY PARTY

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 21.—Plans for celebrating the fifteenth anniversary of Fort Benning on October 26 are now under way.

On October 26, 1918, 700 enlisted men and 40 officers came to Columbus from Camp Perry, Ohio, to form Camp Benning. Later the name was changed to Fort Benning and it was made a permanent army reservation. Now it is the largest infantry school in the world, with an approximate population of over 7,500.

Benning has grown even larger than the most partisan backers, who fought for the retention of the post in Columbus, from 1918 to 1920, had hoped. It is the second largest fort in the United States in population and in area.

STEPHENSON TO HEAD LEGION REHABILITATION

NEWNAN, Ga., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Commander Sid Camp, of the Georgia department of the American Legion, has appointed Mark Stephenson, of Decatur, chairman of the Legion's important rehabilitation committee for the year.

In making the announcement, Camp said the chief activities of the Legion will be to rehabilitate those unfortunate veterans who are disabled by result of their war services and that Chairman Stephenson, being contact officer of the veterans' administration, is the ideal man to head this committee.

Other members of the rehabilitation committee:

Warren Lott, Blackshear; Clay Dukes, LaGrange; Earn McDaniel, Ringgold; Roy Cooper, Augusta; E. D. Thompson, Savannah; Stewart Wootten, Milledgeville; J. P. Kelley, Valdosta; Paul Hodges, Reynolds; Frank Stapleton, Americus; Jake Storey, Rome; Howard Gordon, Danielsville; John Houston, Lawrenceville, and Paul Ridgeway, Toccoa.

COUCH 'WILLING' TO FACE PROBERS

R. F. C. Executive Says Letter to Chase Official Was 'Personal.'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Declaring a letter he wrote to Charles S. McCain, of the Chase National bank, was purely a personal one, Harvey Couch, a director of the Reconstruction Corporation, tonight announced his willingness to appear before the senate stock market investigating committee and answer any questions asked of him.

The letter, found by senate investigators in Chase bank files, was written on R. F. C. stationery and dated sometime in August, 1932. The investigators said it mentioned Seaboard Air Line stock.

Couch said McCain, whom he described as a "life-long friend," had telegraphed him to learn whether he would consider resigning from the Reconstruction Corporation "to undertake the reorganization of a group of Insull properties."

Couch said he replied he intended to complete his job with the government and could not accept McCain's offer.

"I explained further," Couch said, "that when I finished here I expect to return to Arkansas to continue to extend such aid as I can in the development of that section.

"Neither the letter nor the telephone conversation had anything whatever to do with the RFC."

Explaining that he and McCain, chairman of the governing board of the Chase bank, were reared together in Arkansas and have been associated in business, Couch said:

"There is nothing in my relationships with Mr. McCain that I desire to hide. I shall be glad to appear before the committee to answer any questions in this or any other connection if the committee sees fit."

If Couch appears before the investigators, he will be the first government official who has testified on his own behalf since the inquiry started a year and a half ago.

Couch has figured int he investigation twice before, the most recent time being last week when he was listed as having borrowed $300,000 from Dillon, Read and Company in 1928. The evidence submitted at that time showed this loan still was outstanding at the end of 1931.

Previously Couch had been listed as one of the purchasers of "bargain stock" from J. P. Morgan and Company. The evidence showed he obtained 500 shares of Niagara and Hudson stock in August, 1929, at $25 a share when it was listed at $36.

Both of those incidents, however, antedated Couch's assumption of government office.

Negro Returns to State And Back to Gang

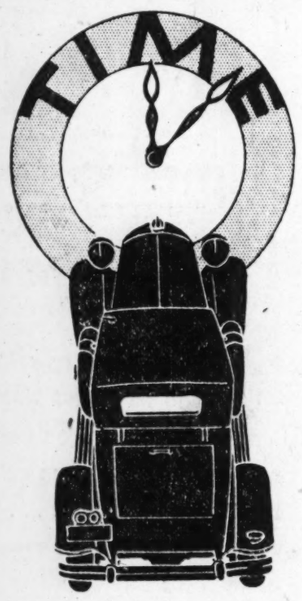

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Oct. 21. (AP)—Willie Mathis, negro, had a chance to stay out of the Florida chain gang by staying out of the state, but he came back to Florida and now he's going back to the chain gang.

Mathis, sentenced to 10 years in 1927 for armed robbery in Dade county, escaped last May from a road camp near Milton. St. Louis police picked him up in August, but the state prison bureau said it did not have sufficient funds to send for him. St. Louis police released him.

Yesterday the prison bureau was notified, Mathis was arrested by Miami police. An officer will return him to the state prison next week.

Atlanta Music Notes

RUTH DABNEY SMITH. CLAIRE HARPER.

By MOZELLE HORTON.

A double spotlight focuses simultaneously on two prominent Atlanta violinists who will be appearing in concert at the same time, though at different places, this afternoon at 3 o'clock. It will be difficult for Atlanta music lovers to decide whether to hear Ruth Dabney Smith render a violin recital at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium, or to the Buckhead theater to hear Claire Harper in a solo performance with the Buckhead Symphony orchestra, Enrico Leide, conducting.

Miss Smith's Concert.

Ruth Dabney Smith will offer a program of wide and interesting scope, with Mrs. Julius DeGive at the piano. She will open her program with "Praeludium und Allegro," Pugnani-Kreisler, followed by "Tambourin," Rameau-Kreisler. The highlight of the program will be the entire "Concerto in G minor," by Max Bruch. The last part of the program contains "Dance Espagnole," DeFalla-Kreisler; "En Bateau," Debussy; "On Wings of Song," Mendelssohn-Achron, and "Hungarian Dance No. 3," Georg Lindner.

Miss Smith is a graduate of the Atlanta Conservatory under Georg Lindner. She also has studied with such masters as Leon Sametini, Leopold Auer and Andre Polah, and piano with Edward Collins. For the past three summers she has done postgraduate work at the College of Fine Arts, of Syracuse University, New York. She is concertmaster of the Atlanta Philharmonic orchestra, instructor of violin at Bessie Tift College, Forsyth, and maintains studios in Atlanta. She is a member of Mu Phi Epsilon, and fourth vice president of the Atlanta Music Club.

The concert is the second in the Sunday afternoon series sponsored by the life membership division of the club.

Miss Harper's Concerto.

The climactic number of the fourth Sunday afternoon concert in the series being given by the Buckhead Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Enrico Leide, this afternoon will be the entire Mendelssohn "Concerto in E minor for the Violin," with talented Claire Harper playing the solo, and a symphonic accompaniment by the orchestra. Later in the program Miss Harper will play a group of solos, including "La plus que lente," Debussy; "Barcarolle," Francis MacMillen, and "Dance Rituelle de Feu," DeFalla-Kochanski. Mrs. Charles Chalmers will be at the piano for this group.

Miss Harper is a graduate of the Juilliard School of Music in New York, where she was an artist pupil of Paul Kochanski. She has a remarkable violinistic gift, and her playing is well known in Atlanta. She is a member of the music faculty of Cox College.

Orchestral numbers listed on the programs are "Rienzi," Wagner; "To Spring," Grieg; "Chant Elegiaque," Tschaikowski; "Turkey in the Straw," Guion; selections from "Prince of Pilsen," Luders, and "Les Preludes," symphonic poem by Liszt. This concert is under the auspices of the Atlanta Debutante Club, Miss Caroline Crumley, president.

Martinelli and Swarthout Entertained.

A brilliant and interesting affair was the party given by Marvin McDonald Thursday evening in honor of Gladys Swarthout and Giovanni Martinelli on the eve of their concert Friday. A large assemblage of prominent musicians were invited to meet the artists. And it would be difficult to find two more charming honorees, each charming in a different way.

Miss Swarthout is not only charming, but she is beautiful. She was gowned in a black chiffon evening gown, with long sleeves made of tiers of black and white lace that enhanced her brunette beauty and brought out a bewitching sparkle in her eyes. She converses entertainingly. A point of her conversation that interested me was that she gave full credit of her success to her older sister and only teacher, Roma Salter (professional name), whom she states has been her all, her advisor, her friend, her teacher, her guide.

And Martinelli was the life of the party. The minute one was introduced to him one knew that he would be, for that mischevious twinkle in his eyes could not be hidden. His genial good nature and keen sense of humor simply radiate from his face. He was particularly interested in the group of negro singers from Big Bethel choir, whom Mr. McDonald had arranged to give a short program of spirituals. Martinelli said it was the first time he had heard negroes sing in person and he seemed tremendously impressed.

During the evening George Allen, tenor, accompanied by Irene Leftwich, sang two songs, and Franciszek Zachara, pianist, gave a solo group, both artists receiving warm appreciation.

Mrs Louise Dickenson assisted her brother in entertaining.

Music Extension Program.

The music extension group of the Atlanta Woman's Club, Mrs. Armand Carroll, chairman, and Miss Helen Knox Spain and Mrs. W. P. Dunn-co-chairmen, held its first meeting with a program-discussion last Wednesday morning at the club. The subject was "Music and the Related Arts of the Fifteenth Century." Miss Lula Clark King presented a quartet of women's voices in early fifteenth century songs, and Mrs. Alberta Carroll Summer presented a men's trio. The singers were Mrs. John Cunningham, Mrs. Raymond Johnson, Katherine Burford, Emmie Lake, Garnett Trotter, Vernon Helms and J. A. Moody. Contributors to the discussion part of the program were Mrs. Walter H. Bedard, Miss Winnifred Naill, Mrs. Tom Brooke and Mrs. Armand Carroll.

At Trinity Church.

Tonight at 7:45 o'clock Ben J. Potter, organist, will present a recital at Trinity Methodist church, the first of his series this season. Walter Herbert, baritone, will assist Dr. Potter, singing "It Is Enough," from Mendelssohn's "Elijah."

Dr. Potter will play Homer Bartlett's 'Suite in C," Hollins' "Concert Overture in C" and Handel's "Largo," among other things.

At Central Presbyterian.

Lawrence G. Nilson, organist of Central Presbyterian church, will present his choir in a sacred cantata this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, opening Georgia bicentennial music week, which will be celebrated all next week. The public is invited.

WEATHER POSTPONES AL SMITH DAY AT FAIR

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—(AP)—This was to have been Al Smith's own day at the world's fair.

But it was decidedly dismal when the former governor of New York hoisted the curtains of his sleeping car and looked out.

The sidewalks of Chicago were all wet; a drenching rain shrouded the flaring colors of the exposition buildings, and the brown derbies that got you in for nothing on Al Smith Day were dripping and shiny when they reached the gates of the Lakeside fair.

So at 10 a. m. the powers decreed that this was not Al Smith Day, after all, and that the program would be deferred until Monday. On that afternoon Alfred E. Smith, of New York, will make his speech to the crowd in the Court of the Hall of Science.

There was, however, a luncheon in the former governor's honor at the fair grounds and a dinner for him tonight.

FARM STRIKE HEAD SEEKS LABOR'S AID IN HOLIDAY MOVE

son blamed inaction at Washington for the calling of the strike.

FAYIL, Okla.—An estimate that 20,000 Oklahoma farmers would join the strike was made by farm holiday leaders.

YUTAN, Neb.—Organization of farm committees of defense was urged by holiday leaders.

LABOR'S CO-OPERATION IS SOUGHT BY LEADER

DES MOINES, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Milo Reno, president of the National Farmers' Holiday Association, tonight carried his plea for support of a national farm strike, which started at noon today, to the doors of industrial labor.

Announcing his departure to Chicago for a conference on Monday with A. F. Whitney, of Cleveland, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, Reno said that "every effort would be made to enlist the moral support of all other groups of society."

To the cause of the non-buying, non-selling strike, the fiery holiday leader summoned the nation's 30,000,000 farm population from New York to California and Gulf to Canada.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt called for the "spirit of co-operation" of colonial days in accepting an honorary degree from Washington College at Chestertown, Md. Cognizant of the strike movement, the president indicated he might have an important statement in an address tomorrow night.

Results in Doubt.

In what numbers farmers would join in the holiday movement or stick by the federal government's relief program, was not known tonight.

Appealing for support from members and non-members of the holiday association alike, Reno asserted that the strike was a battle to determine "whether the farmer shall become a peasant, the menial slaves or the usurers and the industrialists," or retain the independence "inherited from his fathers."

In a letter to state association president, Reno advised that "schools, churches, civic institutions, labor groups can be informed, not only as to the justness of the farmer's cause, but also that every business will suffer if the farmers' purchasing power is not restored, and that the life of the republic is, at this time, hanging in the balance."

"Cost of production" for farm products is the basic demand of the holiday members, and can be attained only by the co-operation in the strike of every farmer, its sponsors assert. That return include interest, expenses and other charges.

Sioux City Quiet.

In Sioux City, 13 months ago, the center of farm strike troubles, in which one trucker was killed, all was quiet today. County Holiday Association leaders said they had not been officially notified of the strike and would not act until they had heard from Reno.

Nebraska's holiday president, H. C. Parmenter, conferred with associates at Omaha to plan a curtailment of that city's milk supply.

Picketing would be used, he said, "unless we have the proper co-operation."

From Nebraska came Governor Charles Bryan's prediction that the strike might obtain higher produce prices in shorter time than the federal government's program. He sought assurance, however, from holiday leaders that the movement would not tolerate violence.

Ohio holiday officials indicated their intention to meet within the next two weeks to determine a course of action. New York dairy farmers planned to meet Sunday to consider a strike, asserting that, if called, it would be in co-operation with the holiday association.

CONCILIATION GROUPS CHOSEN FOR STATES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The farm credit administration announced today that farm debt conciliation committees had been appointed in states and that several other states had announced they intended to set up such groups.

The committees, being named by state governors, will assist in bringing about voluntary compromises between farmers and their creditors when the indebtedness by the former is regarded as excessive.

The groups, however, have no legal authority to compel acceptances of proposed compromises. They are to work with local county committees; and if an agreement is reached, the reduced debt may be paid by loans secured through the federal land banks, the land bank commission of the farm credit administration, or both.

The scale-down of debts, however, must be to the point where the farmer still will have 25 per cent clear equity in the property.

The committees already have been named in Arkansas, South Carolina, Virginia, Louisiana, and several other states.

ROOSEVELT DISDAIN DICTATORSHIP RULE

not in government alone. It is perfectly proper but at the same time old-fashioned boyhood ideals, the old-fashioned principles are things that are going to keep this country going.

"Your new president, Dr. Meade, spoke of the pioneer spirit. The spirit of the colonies was the spirit of co-operation.

"It was the building up, not a class but a community, that made possible the United States. The understanding of this spirit of co-operation as against classes made the first president's name revered in our memory."

The smiling president departed from an intention of not speaking today when he stood before the applauding audience in the bright October sunshine. His talk was extemporaneous.

It was Dr. Gilbert Wilcox Meade, who had just been inaugurated nineteenth president of the college, who slipped the hood over the head of the president in awarding the degree of honorary doctor of laws. A facsimile of the same diploma awarded to George Washington in 1789 also was handed to Mr. Roosevelt.

Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt here from the government yacht Sequoia which brought the presidential party across the Chesapeake bay last night.

A distinguished group of representatives from American Universities and colleges was present on the platform with the president.

The folks of this early colonial territory who crowded the spacious campus lawn in front of the quaint red brick administration building interrupted with applause.

Reaching here early today aboard the government yacht Sequoia the president motored from the landing place at Hiram Brown's estate to the college campus where the ceremony began immediately.

After the exercises he departed again by motor and hastened to the Sequoia for the trip across Chesapeake bay, determined to get back to the White House tonight and the many problems of government which he will discuss tomorrow night.

RISE IN CLEARINGS AT ATLANTA BANKS SHOWS TRADE GAIN

creating improvement, the clearing house association took the range from March 20, 1932, to October 20, 1933, and arranged the figures in parallel columns. An analysis of this chart shows that 1932 showed a continued decline and that March, 1933, was $200,000 less than the same date of the previous year. July 20, 1933, gave the first indication of a pick-up, with an increase on that date of approximately $600,000. August showed $1,800,000 increase; September almost $3,000,000 and October approximately $2,000,000.

Figures Tell Story.

The figures, in parallel columns, are as follows:

1932.		1933.
Mar. 20—Sunday
Mar. 21	$6,212,273.58	Mar. 20	$8,095,808.17—
April 20	6,072,532.32	April 20	4,701,079.60—
May 20	4,411,851.03	May 20	4,290,990.86—
June 20	4,909,710.10	June 20	4,324,201.66—
July 20	4,402,174.57	July 20	5,035,271.00+
Aug. 20	3,711,556.88	Aug. 20—Sunday
		Aug. 21	5,580,692.02+
Sept. 20	3,295,402.55	Sept. 20	6,166,960.08+
Oct. 20	4,347,677.62	Oct. 20	6,264,959.93+

In connection with the encouraging figures, it was pointed out that the October Industrial Economic Bulletin distributed by the Citizens and Southern National bank reported that textile production during May, June and July, according to calculations by the Textile World, was 10 per cent above the 1919 boom level and 25 per cent above the average of 1924-31. Rubber consumption also broke records, it was said.

The bulletin predicted that "the new government loan plan on cotton at 10 cents per pound should have a marked economic effect on the south." In round numbers, the bulletin said, the 1933 cotton crop is placed at 12,850,000 bales, and out of this a maximum of 5,000,000 bales is considered as available for government loans. At $50 a bale this would mean $250,000,000 of loan conversion.

Industrial Production Gains.

"It can readily be seen that if only 50 per cent of this was actually converted into fluid currency it would give the south $125,000,000 of currency activity, since it is naturally to be expected that producers will not borrow unless they contemplate using the money for actual and immediate needs," the bulletin said.

Paralleling the Atlanta figures, the clearing house announcement quoted from the September 15 business bulletin of the Cleveland Trust Company, which reported that the volume of industrial production advanced in the four months ended in July with a sustained vigor never before equaled or even approached in our economic history. The advances registered in April, May and June were noteworthy, not merely for their size, but also because all except one of the 18 industrial series constituting the final index make important contributions to the advance, it was said.

"In March," said the Cleveland bulletin, "the volume of industrial production was 45.4 per cent below the computed normal level and by July it was less than 11 per cent below. We may look at these figures from the other direction and note that in March the volume of production was only 54.6 of normal, while by July it had mounted until it was 89.2 of normal. This advance from 54.6 to 89.2 is an increase of 63 per cent over the March level. The percentage increase in the four months from March to July of this year is more than three times as great as that of any previous four months in our history, checking back by months as far as 1790."

NEGRO COUPLE SLAIN ON FARM NEAR LYERLY

Bodies of Man, Wife Found in Well in Yard of Home.

LYERLY, Ga., Oct. 21.—County officers today are making a determined effort to trace the slayers of Philip McCluskey, 24, colored, and his wife, Delia McCluskey, who were slain and their bodies thrown into a well in the yard of their home three miles west of here Thursday night.

The crime was committed some time during Thursday night, but was not discovered until Friday morning.

A coroner's jury was empaneled at the scene of the crime, composed of Coroner I. M. Henderson, Will M. Jones, W. H. Smith, J. E. Hawkins, M. A. Mosteller, R. N. Crawford, W. J. Smith and Dr. H. D. Brown. The jury was unable, however, to render a verdict because of lack of evidence, and adjourned to reconvene October 27.

The slain couple lived by themselves, having no children, and were well thought of in their community.

CHAPMAN IS NAMED PENNSYLVANIA AGENT

The Pennsylvania Rubber Company, one of the oldest manufacturers of automobile tires in America, announced Saturday the appointment of a new distributor for their custom-made quality tires in downtown Atlanta.

This new distributor will be Chapman's, located at 113 Spring street, N. W. This account is now in a position to sell and service Pennsylvania products to the wholesale and retail trade of Atlanta. Robert A. Chapman will be in charge of the store and many of his friends will remember him as the owner of Withers & Chapman and later as the president of the Chapman Tire Company, Inc. Mr. Chapman has had more than 10 years of experience in the tire business in Atlanta and his new store will be almost across the street from his old location.

Besides handling a complete line of Pennsylvania tires, Chapman's manufacture and sell retreaded tires with the new full circle moulds. This is a new phase of the tire business and the new moulds produce retreaded tires that should deliver 75 per cent of the mileage of a new tire at a cost of about half of a new tire cost. With the expected rise in the tire prices, this new process has developed rapidly in many other cities.

Chapman's will also sell and service Autolite and Westinghouse batteries, as well as a line of Texas and Pennsylvania oils and accessories at popular prices. A new line of automobile radios will also be found in this new store.

Worn Tires Seen As Major Cause Of Skid Crashes

Smooth tires and slippery pavements are a combination that causes a great majority of automobile accidents in the fall and winter season.

In case of emergencies requiring a quick stop, automobiles with smooth tires will skid considerably farther than those equipped with new tires with sharp road-gripping tread, such as those of the Goodyear all-weather tread.

The high traction factor of Goodyear's all-weather tread is provided by sharp-edged, diamond-shaped blocks that grip tightly to wet, hard surfaces, and dig into mud, snow and other soft surfaces.

There is also the ever-present danger of side slipping when brakes are applied to wheels equipped with smooth tires. This driving hazard is practically eliminated with new tires.

Then there is the inconvenience of tire changes in cold or rainy weather—always a strong possibility with worn tires. This inconvenience is best insured against with new tires.

The fact that tire wear is much slower in cold or wet weather than in summer makes it possible to enjoy the safety of new tires throughout the winter when weather is most severe and at the same time have tires almost like new for the following summer.

Prices, too, are still lower on most sizes than they were a year ago and there is every indication that prices will be higher next spring.

With James Tire Co.

CHARLIE MOON.

R. F. James, president of the James Tire Company, newly appointed distributors for the well-known Dayton Thoroughbred line of tires, announces the appointment of Charlie Moon to the retail sales staff of the company. Mr. Moon, a real veteran of the automobile tire business in Atlanta, is well known and popular throughout automotive circles, and this appointment adds prestige to the sales department of the company.

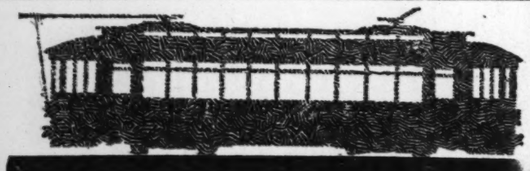

Brooks-Shatterly Points to Need Of Servicing Batteries

Most of the trouble with storage batteries on automobiles results from lack of proper care and attention, according to Mr. Brooks, of the Brooks-Shatterly Company, local dealers for USL batteries.

"A few years ago all the battery had to do was a furnish electric energy for starting, lighting and ignition, which in itself was quite a task," said Mr. Brooks. "But now, with present automotive equipment such as windshield wipers, windshield heaters, hot water heaters, fumers, gasoline gauges, automobile radios, cigar lighters and powerful spotlights the battery has a mighty big job in its hands, and more than ever deserves careful attention.

"If the car owner would have his battery tested and inspected every month or so he would not only enjoy more satisfactory service from his battery, but would very materially increase the length of its service."

Ford V-8 Wins Elgin Road Race

Fred Frame (left), winner of the Elgin national stock car road race. Frame drove a Ford V-8 car to victory in this race, averaging 80.22 miles per hour for 203 miles. This race was won against the world's most famous drivers, and is an indication of the power, speed and durability of the new Ford V-8.

Six Ford V-8 cars piloted by Dutch drivers triumphed conclusively over five European and two other American entrants in the fifth annual running of the grueling five-day international Alpine trial over 1,165 miles of Swiss, Italian and French mountain roads, according to official reports of the races just received here.

Three of the winning Fords driven by a Dutch team captained by Dr. J. J. Sprenger Van Eyck captured the coveted Coupe des Alpes, while the three other Fords won the first three places in the individual competition for the Coupe des Glaciers. The first two tied for first place with the best score of any of the dozens of contestants in the five classes competing.

The annual Alpine contest is probably the most severe test of motor car endurance and performance conducted in Europe. It is open only to stock cars as sold to the public. Its route from Merano via St. Moritz, Turin and Grenoble to Nice, includes the ascent and descent of 12 major passes, with steep winding roads, scores of dangerous "hair-pin" turns and a never-ending variety of road surfaces, which test alike the stamina of the cars and the skill of the drivers.

Most difficult of all the passes is the Stelvio, in the Ortler Alps, between Italy and Switzerland. It rises to 9,150 feet above sea level. The highway leading to it is the highest automobile road in the world. In the course of the 11-mile climb from the valley, the drivers were forced to negotiate 52 "hair-pin" bends before reaching the snow-capped top of the mountain.

The Ford cars and other competitors in the principal class were required to make the ascent of this difficult pass at an average of 28 miles an hour. Many were forced to stop along the way to replenish the water in their violently steaming radiators, but the Ford cars came up the pass in formation without a halt and continued their journey without adding water.

At the final inspection of the competing cars at the finish in Nice, where penalties were imposed for faults in condition, the Ford cars were passed without penalty and the drivers complimented by the judges upon the condition of the cars, both mechanically and in appearance.

Sensational Auto Radios Arrive

Mike De La Torre, radio director, left, and R. B. Wilson, service manager for the United Motors Service Company here, are shown with the two new and sensational United Motors auto radios that have just arrived in this territory. These new models are said to be the biggest forward step made in the advancement of radios for cars announced in recent years. They are super-selective and can be tuned down to a whisper, with all noises absolutely eliminated. Their outstanding features are the newest circuit developments, fast action volume control, six amplifying tubes and greater sensitivity. In addition to the United Motors auto radio, they are retail dealers here for the Philco and others for cars, and the Delco radio for the home. Their radio repair department is said to be the finest equipped in Atlanta, many very delicate devices being employed to check trouble. The public is welcome to their plant, 455 West Peachtree, N. W., at all times to visit them and watch this interesting work carried out.

FIRESTONE ANNOUNCES BUDGET TIRE PLAN

A new budget plan for the purchase of Firestone tires was announced Friday by Bailey Allen, local manager of the Firestone Service Stores. Firestone has in the past permitted purchase of tires on regular open accounts, but in view of the realized personal budgets of the nation it was decided to inaugurate a Firestone tire budget plan whereby tires can be paid for easily while being used, as payments are allowed from personal budgets.

Firestone Service Stores, Inc., maintain three stores in Atlanta, the key store being located at Spring and Baker streets with others at Ponce de Leon and Church streets in Decatur, and Whitehall and Gordon streets in West End.

In addition to the convenient budget payment plan on tires, Mr. Allen announced that Firestone batteries could be purchased under similar budgeted arrangements.

RESCUE WORKERS PLAN ANNUAL FIELD COUNCIL

The thirty-fifth annual field council of the American Rescue Workers, Inc., will be held in connection with evangelistic services in Atlanta October 24, 25, and 26, it, was announced Friday. General James William Duffin, commander-in-chief, will preside.

Old-time gospel meetings will be held every night at the Red Men's auditorium with General Duffin and officers of the rescue workers from all parts of the United States in charge. Major and Mrs. George W. Payne are Atlanta commanders and their rescue home at 420 Piedmont avenue, gave free lodging to 12,600 persons during the year ending October 2. They also superintended the distribution of 5,412 free garments and gave away 39,386 free meals in the year.

Solicitor J. B. Sanford, of Talladega, Ala., has a record of winning 72.92 per cent of the cases he has prosecuted in court. The state average is 55.93.

Approximately one-fourth the total cost of probation cases arising from misdemeanors in Indianapolis is spent on one-teenth the population, a survey has disclosed.

New De Soto Building Expected To Set Style for Dealers Everywhere

The first extensive building activity in the automobile industry since the beginning of the business recovery has been inaugurated by the De Soto Motor Corporation, it was revealed here today.

Ground has just been broken in Detroit for an ultra-modern structure to house executives and sales staffs of the De Soto Motor Corporation. The new building is being watched with particular interest by motor car dealers throughout America, because it will include what is expected to be the world's finest motor car show floor.

The structure will cost approximately $350,000 and the ground breaking was presided over by Byron Foy, president of De Soto Motor Corporation, W. P. Chrysler and other officials.

Mr. Foy asserted that the new building was made necessary by the greatly increased sales of his organization.

The model show floor will contain a permanent display of De Soto cars, according to present plans it will offer the last word in motor car display facilities. The entire front will have no obstructions of any kind but will be made entirely of plate glass.

Automobile dealers from all parts of America will be invited to view the new model showroom upon completion, Mr. Foy stated. Automobile executives predict that completion of the new De Soto building will stimulate building activity by dealers throughout the country.

The De Soto Motor Corporation, it was asserted, will make it possible for dealers everywhere to take advantage of the various display ideas incorporated in the new building.

Upon completion, the De Soto model showroom will be the first of its size in the country to be air conditioned.

The announcement of the new De Soto administration building was the second step in an expansion program recently inaugurated by Mr. Foy. Two months ago increased business caused De Soto to move its manufacturing facilities to a new assembly plant, directly adjoining the soon-to-be-completed administration building.

Fast-Growing Tire Organization

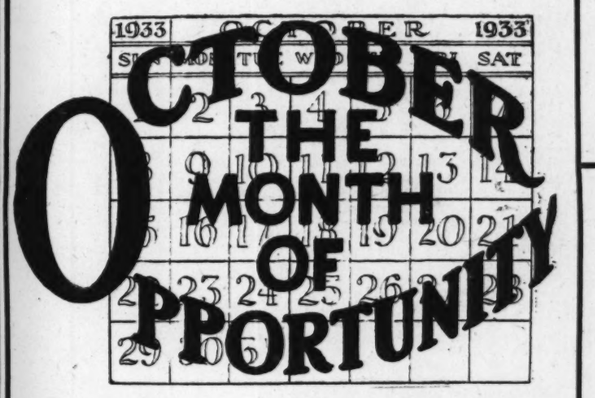

In order to meet their fast-growing tire sales and service business with the proper man power, C. C. Mason Jr. and S. Kominers, of the Mason-Kominers Tire Company, announce an office and sales force expansion, with the acquisition of more men. They are, left to right, first row, M. L. Mason, Dan Manry, J. C. Dickinson and S. Kominers; back row, H. L. Tanner, C. C. Mason Jr., W. J. Lane and Leon M. Pelot. The company, while only a few months old, is considered very highly by officials of the Goodyear Rubber Company, whose products it sells.

There's a new day in view.
There is gold in the blue.
There is hope in the hearts of men.

All the world's on the way
To a sunnier day
'Cause the road is open again.

There's a note of repair,
There's a song in the air.
It's the music of busy men.

Every plow in the land
Meets a happier hand
'Cause the road is open again.

There's an Eagle Blue
In the White House, too,
On the shoulder of our President there.

With a lusty call
Telling one and all—
Brother, Do Your Share!

There's a new day in view.
There is gold in the blue.
There is hope in the hearts of men.

From the plain to the hill
From the farm to the mill
All the road is open again.

Howard's Dean Tells Negroes Their Salvation Is on the Farm

By FRANCIS M. LEMAY.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Finding no permanent good to the negro in relief subsidy of his existence in the city, Kelly Miller, dean of Howard University, here, today made a plea that the national recovery administration aid members of his race to establish themselves on farms.

"The city negro has no definite function or assured status," Dean Miller said.

"The farm is the negro's best chance and the best help the government can render him in this emergency is to aid him to avail himself of this chance."

The 70-year-old dean, who has been connected with the negro university here as student and professor for 53 years, suggested that whatever funds are set aside for negro relief be devoted to establishing exemplary negro farm communities in the south, where the race would have business and social centers, with churches, a general store and playgrounds, and could develop a culture of its own.

Apprehension Expressed.

Apprehension was expressed by the educator over the fact that negroes during recent years have lost 4,000 square miles of land they formerly owned and tilled.

Citing that one-tenth of the national population is negro, and that two-fifths of the negro population is urban, Miller said members of his race "loiter around the outer edge of industry and are assigned to the manual and menial tasks which the white man does not prefer to perform. He has been attracted by the glow of the city allurements as the moth by the candle, only to be blinded by its light and consumed by its heat."

"Under modern improvement of machinery and efficiency of method," the educator continued, "the city can no longer furnish work enough for all. Prompted by the age-old law of self-interest, the strong will help themselves first. The negro will become the left-over, if not the left-out man, if he has the ability to compete, he will not be given the chance. This exclusion is due immediately to race prejudice, but not primarily so. It is the iron law of competition. The negro, as a minority group, is no more the victim of his color than of his weakness.

Reversion Seen.

"President Roosevelt intends the negro shall share in the national relief measures according to his need, not according to his race. But after the Blue Eagle has done his emergency task and folded his wings, the case will revert to its inevitable status. There is no comprehensive outlook for the city negro in such large numbers as have already gathered there. Certainly such large cities as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and other metropolitan centers, north and south, cannot hold any greater number of negroes in solution without causing a dangerous black precipitation. This is not pessimism but the plain description of actual conditions fulfilling themselves under our very eyes."

The country offers a different picture, Miller said, "not less deplorable at present but immeasurably more promising in prospect. Competition is less keen and conditions of living are easier to meet. The negro is more nearly on equal terms with his environment, being closed to the heart of mother nature, who is more kindly and congenial with him than the artificial sophisticated conditions of city life. The vicissitudes and hardships of country life must needs be anticipated, encountered and overcome. The negro in the city develops in the shade and acquires a puny and sickly growth. In the country alone he can find a place in the sun. No people who seek the shade and avoid the sun will ever amount to much in the final equation of things."

"Take Over Farms."

"The negro must outwork and under-live the white man in order to balance his racial handicap. He must take up what the white man resigns. He should take over the white man's abandoned farms, if need be.

"The many millions of dollars which the president's program will allot to the city negro will only effect ephemeral relief. They will not improve his permanent condition. On the other hand, like allotments wisely applied and efficiently safeguarded on carefully worked out rural schemes would result in permanent and lasting improvement of the black man's lot."

The dean said Boley, Okla.; Mound Bayou, Miss., and Log Cabin center in Hancock county, Georgia, represented typical enterprises attempted on a self-sufficient and self-sustaining basis.

FORD MADOX FORD.

It Was the Nightingale. An autobiography. By Ford Madox Ford, author of "Return to Yesterday."

"It was the nightingale and not the lark
Which pierced the envious hollow of thine ear."

The following is an interesting introduction even to a contribution of Mr. Ford's, whose writings have been among the most interesting and entertaining for years. "This is the richest biography in years—rich with humor, humanity, delightful writing and intimate anecdotes of the author's friends — and sometimes — enemies: Conrad, Arnold Bennett, H. G. Wells, Galsworthy and many others."

To advise one's friends and readers of your inclination "to tell it all" in an autobiography, especially when you are Ford Madox Ford, must in itself be a courageous thing to do, for who would miss the opportunity of possessing so rich a prize:

When the World War was over Mr. Ford found himself, like the masses, with an empty pocket book, but, not having lost his keen sense of originality and independence, he shows up in another role, that of a country gentleman, living in a small cabin, and with a new job—raising prize hogs—each of which he named after some literary celebrity. When one thinks of the author of so many entertaining contributions being followed around by the lowly of the earth, ducks, goats, cats and dogs, far away from family and friends, one's mind reverts to all the soldiers of fortune.

But somewhere in the United States was his old literary agent and the next news was that he was bound for Hollywood under contract, and from that time he once more became the literary star dividing his time between his Mediterranean home and New York.

In this volume he tells many things that the public has been waiting for and in his own original style. It was in France that the nightingale used to awaken him every morning at dawn, and it was at his home there this autobiography was written, and this same bird is responsible for the title of the book. (Lippincott's Book.)

THE LAND OF PROMISE.

It is not hard for the reader to tell from the beginning of a story whether it has been of interest to the writer—fiction or travels, but in this story by Edmond Fleg, with translation by Louise Waterman Wise (Mrs. Stephen S. Wise), and introduction by Ludwig Lewisohn, it is a foregone conclusion that it is enlightening, interesting and filled with real information.

The story goes that the author went to Palestine to collect material for a life of Jesus, but the Jewish settlements of this historic city, and the work being done by the people, so impressed him, he gave up his original project and decided to devote his time to the description of a land and its people living in alien country.

The author tells in an interesting story of what is happening there. He says the achievements are amazing. They constitute the second epic of Israel in Palestine. He describes all the various activities in a way that will appeal to the reader. One of the chief features is described as to what is happening in Palestine today, of the conflict of two loyalties—loyalty to French civilization and loyalty to the Jewish civilization, now being reborn in Palestine.

Mr. Fleg was born in Geneva, studied at the Sarbonne, in Paris, since which time he has lived chiefly in France. He gave up newspaper work for literature—poetry, drama, fiction, history and biography. Some writer says, "The love of man, the heartfelt pity for man fills all his work. A profound feeling for humanity animates it. That is why we love him." Illustrated. (Macaulay's Book, New York.)

THE SHAMROCK V.

Shamrock's Wild Voyage Home. By Captain Irving Johnson. One of the strangest, most hazardous yachting experiences imaginable—while this is not a boy's book it will be read by every boy, and everybody else, who has an opportunity to enjoy its pages. The ship and its owner are well known in America—one as the world-renowned racer, Shamrock V., and its owner, the late Sir Thomas Lipton, of England, for whom the United States was always ready to give a warm greeting of friendship.

It is a thrilling story that is told by this captain who aided in navigating the Shamrock back to England, after her defeat by the Enterprise. It is a story of narrow escapes, shipwrecks and near-starvation. This 1930 race for America's cup will not soon be forgotten—it was the fifth time that Sir Thomas Lipton with his wonderful Shamrock had entered the race, each time only to be defeated.

After his arrival in port, Captain Johnson made a tour of Europe relating his own thrilling adventures. He then returned to America, then to England again for a yacht race, sailing in the Wander Bird, and then there was the Fastnet race, and other thrilling adventures and narrow escapes. The book is full of breathless situations which will hold the reader's attention from the first to the last page. There are pictures of the Shamrock V. and the America's cup which the five Shamrocks failed to capture, and of Captain Johnson. The photographs and drawing are by Charles J. A. Wilson. The book is published by Milton Bradley Co. Springfield, Mass.

There's Always Another Year. By Martha Ostenso, author of "Waters Under the Earth." The readers of the novels by this popular author will agree that she has written a most appealing romance—one that will find its way into the hands and the heart of all her appreciative admirers.

The setting is far away on the prairies of Dakota—the author has lived there as a child. She describes earnestly the wild beauty coupled with the loneliness that perhaps was hers. So it is here that Martha Ostenso first introduces to her readers the Heron River Band, which delighted in playing "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here" to "My Country, 'Tis of Three." All through the romance there is the spirit of hope which must have been a life-saver then, and which is so much needed now, whether the characters are active in some story by a popular author, or in Washington receiving instructions from a well-known leader. (Dodd Mead & Co., New York.)

Bare Living. Hidden Adventures of a Fact Finder. By Elmer Davis and Guy Holt. The story goes that Eric Hale, who had been a member of a fault-finding commission under the Hoover administration, is astonished to learn that he is engaged to a beautiful girl, Alida, and is drawing a big salary on Wall Street. This story is made up of several colored threads and for this reason there is not a dull page in it. Another interesting condition in which the hero finds himself is that there are people who are looking for him and for various reasons he does not understand. He finds it necessary to hide and hide he did, but where? We leave his hiding place to the reader's imagination. (Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.)

NEW FICTION.

Thou My Beloved. By Elizabeth Stancy Payne. The book is dedicated to Elise Macy Nelson "Whose music has helped me to write books."

"Yet hear me, yet,
One word more thy heart behoved,
One pulse more of firm endeavor—
Keep thee, today, tomorrow, forever,
Free as an Arab of they beloved."
—Ralph Waldo Emmerson.

The author made countless friends the country over when she wrote "These Changing Years," and "The Quiet Place." Some writer who was deeply impressed by the undercurrent of this absorbing story of a woman's heart says: "This is a thoughtful and penetrating novel, fascinating in theme, and written in the vivid and sympathetic manner that has made the author one of the most popular modern writers." (Dodd Mead & Co., New York.)

The Outlaw. By Max Brand. Author of "Twenty Notches." The publication of a new western story, especially by Max Brand, will receive a warm welcome from the readers who love the west. In this story there is plenty of excitement, hard riding, cowboys and perhaps there is also an interesting romance tucked away while the great outlaw who was unknown unless the attractive cowboy who went around with a smile on his face was the bravado. You will have to read the whole story to find out who was the outlaw. (Dodd Mead & Co., New York.)

Red Rhapsody. By Cortland Fitzsimmons, author of "No Witness." The author is well known for his thrilling stories which, in the beginning, are puzzling and even baffling and hold the reader's attention, but what can be more exciting than an old house, haunted, which in days gone by had been cursed by a witch, etc. But this is a modern story in which a group of sophisticates are caught in the meshes of a horrible and spooky crime in which, however, the would-be ghost proves to be a real living example of what can be done, and how a real detective can unearth a crime-mystery. (Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York.)

Isa Glenn has returned to the tropics for the setting of "Mr. Darlington's Dangerous Age," which Doubleday, Doran will publish this month. She is the wife of an army officer, the late Brigadier General S. J. Bayard Schindel.

"Beaver, Kings and Cabins" is the first book covering the history of the fur trade in North America from its beginnings and bringing to light the colonial fur trade of the old south. (Published by Macmillan in September.)

Bess Streeter Aldrich's new novel, "Miss Bishop," is announced by Appleton-Century. Due to the fact that "Miss Bishop" has not been serialized in the magazines, its publication should prove an especially big event. Further, in the opinion of all those who have read the manuscript, this is the best novel that Mrs. Aldrich has written up to date.

On June 5, Mary Austin, who has recently written her autobiography in "Earth Horizon," received her degree of LL. D. from the University of New Mexico. Mrs. Austin's classic short story, "Papago Wedding," has been reprinted in Blanche Colton William's "Great American Short Stories" and will appear in another anthology next fall. Mrs. Austin's next book on the Houghton Mifflin list will be "One Smoke Stories."

In the 25 years since its publication, Corra Harris has received more than 50,000 letters in regard to her autobiographical novel, "A Circuit Rider's Wife," and a thousand copies of the book have been given away by a woman in Philadelphia. From the adverse circumstances of her life as the wife of an itinerant Methodist preacher, Mrs. Harris has emerged a cheerful, gallant woman concerned more deeply with living than with the formalities of certified religion. Henry Seidel Canby has proclaimed her the first realist in southern literature. A new edition of "A Circuit Rider's Wife," with an extensive preface, now appears on the Houghton Mifflin list.

It is not unusual for a publisher to make a new jacket for a book that is not selling. Word comes from Minton, Balch & Co., however, that they are making a new jacket for a national best-seller. Alice Grant Rosman's "Protecting Margot" is the book and it sold 25,000 copies in 36 days. The publishers expect to double that figure in the next six weeks.

Doubleday, Doran has brought out a new edition of "Arundel." Kenneth Roberts' famous story of Benedict Arnold's march on Quebec. The book, which has been called "America's greatest historical novel," has been completely revised by Mr. Roberts, shortened and reset.

Soviet Plant To Give Ford Two 'Ford' Cars

MOSCOW, Oct. 12.—(UP)—Henry Ford is soon to receive a gift from soviet Russia—two soviet-made "Fords," one a truck and the other a passenger car.

They were produced at the Gorki automobile plant, which was built two years ago and which today is turning out machines at the rate of 20,000 a year.

Last year the plant received, as a gift from Ford, a sample of his 1932 product. The plant directors decided to respond in the same fashion this year.

ICKES REEMPLOYS1,000 IN PUBLIC WORKS DRIVE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—While Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes has been criticized by many of the states for being dilatory in getting federal and non-federal work projects under immediate construction, a report today by the interior department of which he is secretary, shows that more than a thousand former federal employes have been reemployed in the activities of the department through the allocation of public works funds. This figure, which is mountnig each day, according to the secretary, does not include former interior department employes now working directly for the public works administration but only former department employes who would otherwise be off the government pay roll because of sharply reduced regular appropriations.

Department officials were prompted to make a survey of the situation because of the impression that seems to have gone abroad over the land that the administration here was letting out people while urging industry to take on additional workers. Such an impression, of course, would work against the success of the national recovery program if permitted to go unanswered.

Officials of Alaska, which come under the interior department, have reported that the Alaska road commission has put 245 former employes back at work. At St. Elizabeth's hospital, in Washington, an institution for the insane, 48 former employes have been put back to work with public works funds. Howard University and Freedmen's hospital, both colored institutions in the District of Columbia, have re-employed a total of 83. The geological survey has placed 30 former employes back to work, although on a rotative furlough basis.

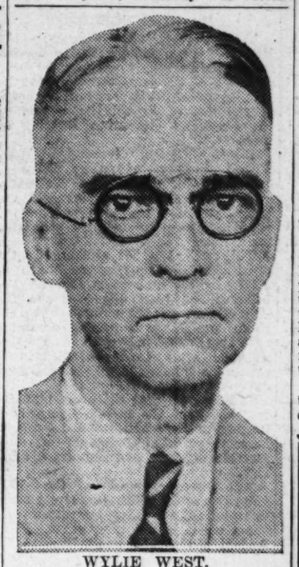

The bureau of reclamation has reemployed 176 former employes, in addition to 33 formerly furloughed. In the division of investigations, 17 of the personnel are former federal employes. The office of national parks, building and reservations has put more than 2,000 to work with public roads funds, many of them former employes. In the general land office, utilization of public works funds has permitted the re-employment of 25, and this will soon be increased to 100, Mr. Ickes said.

Public works operations in the Virgin islands have permitted the employment of 207, and this number is constantly increasing. In the office of Indian affairs, 103 former employes have already found work through allocation of public works funds and 100 more will be placed shortly, the public works administrator declared.

Collection of Indian Relics Given New Impetus in State

Interest in the collection of Indian relics is reviving in Georgia, with specimens flowing into the state capitol every week, Dr. S. W. McCallie, state geologist who is in charge of the extensive Indian collection on the fourth floor of the capitol building, reported Saturday.

Dr. McCallie's statement coincides with a new interest in archaeology on the part of college professors and others who have organized a state archaeological society.

There are many private collectors of Indian relics in Georgia who have really fine displays, Dr. McCallie said. Indian arrowheads and other specimens are found everywhere in the state, and the search for them is an exciting and gripping hobby for many persons, he said.

"The most prolific source of specimens is usually a large river or its tributaries, where the Indians camped, such as the Chattahoochee and the Etowah," Dr. McCallie said. "Frequently the searcher comes across a small elevation which, on being opened, reveals a store of relics. And there are large mounds, such as those near Cartersville.

"Relics are frequently turned up by persons plowing where Indians at one time held their encampments. The objects include arrowheads, spearheads, mortars and pestles, piece of pottery and similar things. Many of these finds have been turned over to the state museum, either as gifts or loans, but the state is unable to buy any of them, although persons call at my office occasionally seeking to obtain money for good specimens."

Dr. McCallie said that no later than Friday a man from Carrollton called by the office to exhibit some arrowheads and ornaments he found.

The geologist said that he will observe with interest the development of an archaeological society at Macon, the main object of the society being to keep persons from opening Indian mounds and selling the relics, but to have the mounds opened by scientific men who will use every precaution to preserve every bit of the information and specimens obtained, with a view of retaining them in the state.

$300,000 ARE ALLOTTED FOR CAROLINA RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—An allotment of $300,000 to aid North Carolina meet unemployment relief costs in October was announced today by Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator.

Hopkins said information was submitted to the effect that the money available from all sources is insufficient to meet immediate relief needs.

Today's grant made a total of $2,850,989 received by North Carolina from federal relief funds.

OFFICIAL REPEAL VOTE IN FLORIDA REVEALED

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Florida voted, 98,247 to 24,439, in favor of repeal of the eighteenth amendment at the October 10 referendum, complete reports to the state canvassing board revealed today.

Not one of the 67 counties reported more dry votes than wet votes as Florida became the thirty-third state to decide for repeal. The total vote was 122,686—must lighter than was expected in official circles.

MONEY TO LEND ON COTTON

The First National Bank of Atlanta welcomes the opportunity of co-operating with President Roosevelt's Commodity Credit Corporation, and with our correspondent banks throughout the Southeast in providing adequate financing for producers of the 1933 cotton crop.

The liberal basis of these loans, which will free to the cotton farmers of the South immense sums of money, will have the effect of immediately bringing about a large increase in the purchasing power of the South's great agricultural population on which the welfare and prosperity of our entire section so materially depends.

Since the day of its organization in 1865, this bank has loaned money on cotton—to the planters that raise it, to the mills that process it, and to firms that distribute cotton products. We are glad to continue to put Southern money to work for the benefit of Southern agriculture, business and industry.

Digest of Regulations of the Commodity Credit Corporation

1. Loans of 10 cents per pound will be made on 1933 cotton owned by the producer that is 7-8 inch or better as to staple; low middling or better as to grade.

2. Loans of 8 cents per pound available on cotton under 7-8 inch; low middling or better as to grade.

3. Uniform rate of interest 4 per cent per annum.

4. Cotton that grades below low middling not acceptable for loans under these regulations.

5. Warehouses in which the cotton is, or is to be stored, must bear approval of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

6. Standard loan forms are being prepared by the U. S. Government and will be available within a few days at all offices of this bank, and its correspondent banks throughout the Southeast.

"FINANCING COTTON SINCE 1865"

DALADIER SEEKS BUDGET VOTE TODAY

Over Seas

By BYRON DARNTON,
Associated Press Cable Editor.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—If repetition means anything, Adolf Hitler isn't talking through his hat these days in speaking of German honor and love of peace and a readiness to forego arms on a basis of equality.

He has pounded the table time after time in the past in telling the world Germany does not want to be a "second-class nation," ringed about by the restrictions of the treaty of Versailles.

For instance:

Practically the entire population of the historic Tilsit heard him say in a campaign speech in the summer of 1932 that the foundation stones of the government he would build would be honor, liberty and bread.

That was months before he crashed the political barriers and hung his hat in the chancellor's office.

His campaign carried him to the sportspalast in Berlin, where on January 20, almost on the eve of his promotion, he rapped the "system of defeatism enforced since 1928."

The real oratory along this line came after the chancellor and President Von Hindenburg told the members of the reichstag to go on home and await new elections. Along with this order Hitler issued a proclamation to the people in which he said:

"More than 14 years have passed since the fatal day when the German people, blinded by inward and outward promises, forgot the honor and liberty of the reich, thus losing all.

"Promised equality and fraternity we have not obtained, but liberty we have lost.

"However great our love for our army, we nevertheless would be happy if the world, by limiting its armaments, would never again necessitate our increasing our weapons."

The verbal guns boomed again the following day when the chancellor received newspapermen in his first press conference as a government official—when he uttered his famous "crucify me if I fail" statement.

Among other things he said:

"Anybody who knows war as I know it knows what a tremendous waste of effort, or rather what a waste of strength, is involved." (He crossed himself as he said it.)

"The results of a possible future war can only be conjectured, and nobody wants peace and tranquillity more than I do—than the German people do.

"We must insist, however, on equality with other nations and on our adequate place in the world."

A few days later he talked with an American newspaperman alone and told him:

"We are willing to go to any lengths to further the ideal of disarmament," but, "we insist that the same standards shall apply for all. Do away altogether with armies, if you please, and Germany will gladly scrap hers also.

"The world is suffering from the fact that through the treaty of Versailles the idea of two kinds of justice is to be perpetuated. This impossible division into victor states, which therefore have the right to live, and the vanquished, which therefore have less claim on life, is unbearable."

That was on February 22. An outstanding speech of his career was before the reassembled reichstag May 17. Here are some of the things he said in what the world considered as a "moderate" talk:

"There is but one great task before the world, namely, to secure the peace of the world.

"Germany wants nothing she is not ready to give to others.

"Germany would dissolve her entire military establishment and destroy what little armaments are left, if neighboring countries did likewise," but—

"Contrariwise, Germany must insist at least upon equality.

"I feel obliged to assert that the fear of German invasion can under no circumstances be the reason for France's or Poland's armaments.

"The only nations whose fear of invasion can really be justified is Germany, who not only has been denied weapons of aggression, but even forbidden to construct border defenses."

Hitler said this week Germany would "sign nothing" unless the claim of equality was recognized. He said virtually the same before the reichstag in these words:

"It is inconceivable that Germany will be violated in contravention of every right and every moral principle, but it is unthinkable and out of the question that such an act will be given legal validity by ourselves through a signature."

PRINCE IS JAILED AS NAZI PLOTTER AGAINST AUSTRIA

Princess Margot Also Is Held, Confined to Carinthian Castle for Indefinite Period.

By WADE WERNER.

VIENNA, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Austria's fighting 5-foot chancellor, Engelbert Dollfuss, locked a nazi princess in her romantic Carinthian castle tonight "for an indefinite period" and threw her princely husband into jail for six weeks.

Both of them, Prince Von Sachsen-Meiningen and his wife, Princess Margot, were declared guilty of a nazi conspiracy against Austria.

Police who arrested him in Carinthia because his automobile carried a Hitlerite flag in the streets of Klagenfurt revealed they confiscated many incriminating documents, including a letter to Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, the German propaganda minister, from them.

Contents of the letter were not revealed immediately.

It was officially emphasized that Princess Margot will be a prisoner in her own castle and will not be permitted to receive visitors or otherwise communicate with the outside world.

"And," it was added pointedly, "care will be taken to keep the German consul away."

There was another startling development today in the nazi-troubled Austrian situation. That was the thrashing of an Austrian prince for his "fumbling fascism."

The Austrian prince, Ernst Rudiger Von Starhemberg, was bitterly attacked by a former cabinet minister as "a menace to Austria." The prince is the fascist vice leader of Chancellor Dollfuss' patriotic front.

Prince Von Sachsen-Meiningen aroused suspicions at the police station where he was taken when he asked permission to telephone his wife at his castle near Pitzelstaetten, near Carinthia.

Police said they overheard him instruct her to "destroy the documents" and thereupon the authorities notified officials in Pitzelstaetten.

Twelve armed police were rushed to the castle. They arrested Princess Margot, searched the house and grounds, and found the documents.

She was questioned extensively at Klagenfurt, but was later returned to the castle under the guard of two detectives.

Recently the prince attracted considerable attention by hoisting a German flag on the castle.

The exact nature of the alleged conspiracy was not revealed, but police said they found the entire office files of the Klagenfurt district nazi headquarters in the castle, along with propaganda material the prince was said to have brought from Munich.

State Court's Ruling On NRA Outlawed

SARASOTA, Fla., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Holding that state courts have no jurisdiction in NRA enforcement cases, Circuit Judge Paul C. Albritton tonight refused to reinstate an injunction prohibiting L. L. Cochrane, local barber, from displaying the Blue Eagle in his shop.

On application of other barbers here, Judge Albritton recently issued the injunction, but it was dissolved later by Circuit Judge W. T. Harrison, sitting here in the resident judge's absence. The other barbers claimed Cochrane should be restrained from displaying the NRA emblem because he charged prices below the scale agreed upon at the time shops here signed the NRA code.

Judge Harrison held the prices had nothing to do with compliance with the NRA as long as other provisions were met. Judge Albritton tonight declined to reinstate the injunction, saying he could find no authority for state courts ruling on NRA matters.

Mexican Planes Sent To Quell Uprising

NOGALES, Ariz., Oct. 21.—(UP) Half a dozen Mexican military airplanes have been sped to the state of Sonora in fear of a Yaqui Indian uprising.

The United Press learned today that the planes were dispatched to Guayamas, where 800 warriors are concentrating on Bacatet mountain. Government sources said an uprising was feared.

Approximately 1,500 other Yaquis are living peacefully in the same vicinity, it was said. Recent dispatches from Mexico City told of mysterious military activity in Mexico, but the cause was not explained.

The Southern Pacific de Mexico has doubled its soldier guard on trains passing through Yaqui country, it was announced, while the Mexican government is discouraging motorists traveling in the district.

Severe 'Quake Felt By Hawaii Island

HILO, Hawaii, Oct. 21.—(AP)—A severe earthquake shook the island of Hawaii at 9:10 a. m. (2:40 p. m., eastern standard time) today. Acute tremors in business and residential districts of Hilo reminded inhabitants of repeated predictions that the Kilauea volcano was ripe for eruption, but no damage was reported.

Bleriot Speed Cup Is Won by Italian

ANCONA, Italy, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Captain Pietro Scapinelli today won the Bleriot cup for airplane racers, completing a flight of 328 kilometers (203.688) miles in 31 minutes 44 1-5 second at an average speed of 619.3 kilometers (384.6 miles) per hour.

Scapinelli used the Macchi seaplane, powered with 2,400-horsepower engine, which was used when Lieutenant Colonel Guglielmo Cassinelli established a world record of 393.33 miles an hour over a 100-kilometer course here October 8.

This was the first attempt of Scapinelli for the Bleriot cup, which will be awarded definitely to the first pilot reaching a speed of 1,000 kilometers (621 miles) per hour during a minimum of 30 minutes of flying. In the meantime it will be held temporarily by pilots surpassing 600 kilometers (372.6 miles) per hour.

Japanese Emperor Entrains To Witness Army Maneuvers

Nipponese Show Keen Interest in Practices, Due to Proximity of Site to Vladivostok and Soil of Russia.

By GLENN BABB.

TOKYO, Oct. 22.—(Sunday.)—(AP) Emperor Hirohito departed by special train this morning to assume personal direction of the army's annual maneuvers, conducted this year on the shores of the Sea of Japan, the section of the homeland closest to Russia in Asia.

Premier Saito, General Sadao Araki, minister of war; Admiral Mineo Osuhi, minister of the navy, and other cabinet members will entrain later for the scene of maneuvers in Fukui prefecture, scheduled for October 24, 25 and 26.

The army has not announced the strategical problems expected to be solved by the maneuvers, but marked interest has been displayed in the site chosen. It is pointed out that Fukui prefecture is nearest on Japanese shores to Vladivostok, and where a soviet army might be expected to attempt a landing in case of a Russo-Japanese war.

It is known that the army plans to test many of the new weapons it is forging in its ambitious arms replenishment plan, airplanes, tanks, anti-aircraft defenses and motorized artillery.

The forces engaged in the 1933 maneuvers will be comparatively small in relation to those assembled for sham warfare in former years. Army leaders say this is partly due to the small area offered by mountainous Fukui for maneuvering troops. It is also pointed out that a large proportion of the standing army is in Manchuria.

Only two full divisions are to be engaged in the Fukui campaign, the ninth, based at Kanazawa, commanded by Lieutenant General Yoshikatsu Aramaki, and the eleventh, from Zentsuji, in Shikoku island, under Lieutenant General Keiichi Harada. These divisions furnished the first troops sent to Shanghai during the trouble in February, 1932.

Underlying the maneuvers campaign is the desire of army leaders to obtain approval of the cabinet and parliament for the largest military estimates in Japan's history in the 1934-35 budget.

These estimates, according to authoritative sources, amount to at least 620,000,000 yen, nearly 50 per cent larger than the appropriations for the present fiscal year. They include the costs of a huge program to provide new weapons and a bountiful supply of munitions.

Competent non-Japanese authorities say they believe there is considerable real uneasiness behind recent statements from the Tokyo war office describing soviet military preparations in eastern Siberia as justification for intensifed preparedness on Japan's part.

Russan forces east of Lake Baikal are said to exceed 140,000 men, especially strong in the air arm. Japanese claim that some 300 airplanes are assembled in Vladivostok, Khabarovsk and other cities, including scores of heavy bombers capable of bombarding Tokyo and returning safely to their bases.

The emperor will be away from Tokyo nine days. In preparation for his visit the police have taken utmost precautions to assure his safety.

TRADE GOLD MINE IS SEEN IN SOVIET

Cleveland Professor Says Recognition Would Bring $350,000,000 in Orders.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 21.—Recognition of soviet Russia by the United States would bring $350,000,000 in orders to the industrial plants of this country, Kenneth H. Donaldson, professor of mining engineering at Case School of Applied Science, here, has told the state department at Washington in a report on Russian trade conditions.

Professor Donaldson was in Russia from July, 1931, to March, 1932, as consulting engineer for Oglebay, Norton & Co., a Cleveland concern which had mining and ore concentration contracts in that country. He worked in the Ural mountain region, in Moscow and in Leningrad.

Sent to Payer.

His report was submitted to the state department through Harry F. Payer, Cleveland, assistant secretary of state. It is part of the mass of information the Roosevelt administration has been gathering in its study of the question of recognizing the soviet government.

Professor Donaldson, after submitting an outline of his plan to Mr. Payer, went to Washington, where he conferred with state department officials and presented a full report of his findings.

"My estimates," Professor Donaldson said following submission of the report, "were based on my observations during the time I was in Russia and my conversations with soviet officials."

Professor Donaldson contends in his report that it is feasible to export $350,000,000 worth of goods annually from the United States to Russia if Russia is allowed to pay in raw materials. His report lists iron ore, manganese ore, platinum, furs, semi-precious jewels, fish, linens, oil, pulp wood and lumber as materials Russia could use for payment for goods bought in the United States.

Orders.

The $350,000,000 in orders Professor Donaldson says would come to the United States were divided as follows:

Freight cars and locomotives, $90,000,000.
Pipe and pipe fittings, $12,000,000.
Machinery, $90,000,000.
Steel, $62,000,000.
Non-ferrous metals $13,000,000.
Airplanes, trucks, buses, taxies and repair parts and tires, $35,000,000.
Hand tools, $12,000,000.
Household equipment, $13,000,000.
Cotton cloth, $12,000,000.
Clothes $11,000,000.

Code Hearing Slated On Papershell Pecans

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—A public hearing on an agreement of fair competition for the papershell pecan industry will be held here Monday.

The agriculture adjustment administration said the proposed agreement applied to distributors, processors and associations of pecan growers who pack, process and distribute papershell pecans to wholesalers, brokers or other commercial buyers.

In its form now before the A. A. A. the agreement does not include individual farmers who market papershell pecans grown by them.

The agreement will seek to eliminate unfair trade practices, including price cutting. Papershell pecans are grown principally in southern states.

JAPAN'S SEA FORCE NEARING EQUALITY

Strength of Oriental Navy Is Greater Than Relative Figures Indicate.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(UP)—A survey of the relative naval strength of Japan and the United States has been made for Collier's by William G. Shepherd. The purpose of the survey is to sift out the half-truths that have at different times confused the public.

"We have kept ourselves 200,000 tons short of what we might have laid down before December 31, 1936," writes Shepherd. "Our total allowance under the treaties is a little over 1,000,000 tons.

"To Japan, every ton granted to her by the treaties she signed, to be laid down before that limiting December day three years from now, seemed as precious gold.

Used Up.

"She's used them up, now, three years in advance.

"Japan has the third largest navy in the world today. The United States is second. But the truth is that Japan's navy is incredibly stronger, comparatively, than mere figures can show.

"It approaches the American navy in real strength. She has 756,242 tons in existence and 129,428 tons projected, or already building, a total of 885,670. But they're good tons in the form of new and modern ships. Only 102,853 tons are over age; that is, over 20 years.

"We have over three times as much over-age tonnage as Japan. Our figures go like this: Out of 1,038,660 tons, there are 330,110 tons that are over age.

708,550 Good Tons.

"This gives us 708,550 tons that are under age and only fairly new. Japan has 653,389 tons that are under age. Japan today has only 55,161 tons of less under-age fighting ships than we have.

"That's all technically speaking. But let's put it down in number of ships, so that we, as laymen, can get a layman's picture.

"Japan has 220 completed ships. The United States has 372. But 288 of the American machines are what might be called used cars, while the Japanese only have 56. And the American machines are not new models, by any means."

Nazi Ballot To List Prominent Statesmen

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—(UP)—Modifying Adolf Hitler's first plan to have none but recognized nazis run as candidates in the general election next month, the government announced tonight that the names of prominent statesmen now supporting the party would be included on the ballot.

As an example, the former Catholic deputy, Albert Hackelsberger, former governor of East Africa, and the former people's party leader, Heinrich Schnee, have been offered the opportunity to run for Alfred Hugenberg's seat.

Hugenberg, leader of the nationalists and Germany's most powerful press magnate, has not yet signified his intentions of contesting the seat.

MISSISSIPPIAN DIES OF CRASH INJURIES

DOTHAN, Ala., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Mrs. J. R. Pearson, 72, of Scooba, Miss., died in a hospital here late last night from a fractured skull received in an automobile accident near here.

Mrs. Pearson was in an automobile with Mr. and Mrs. A. Donham and Mrs. H. T. Barnhardt, of Panama City, when the machine left the highway and struck a tree.

The other three members of the party were in serious condition.

The party was en route to Panama City from attending the funeral of the Donhams' daughter, who was killed in an automobile accident last Saturday. The funeral was held in Arkansas.

Courthouse Worn Out Before Final Payment

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Many things get worn ont before they are paid for—even courthouses.

Just as agitation for a new city-county building in Oklahoma City is reaching fever heat, the county treasurer is scraping up the last $10,000 due on the old courthouse in December. A bond issue of $100,000 was voted for the building in 1903. For the 30 years, interest has run the total cost of construction to $214,750.

30 Minutes on Squash Court Needed To Work Off Energy of 2 Cocktails

LONDON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—It takes the average person a half hour on the squash court to work off the energy supplied by two dry Martini cocktails, says Professor E. C. Dodd, courtauld professor of bio-chemistry at the University of London.

"Perhaps squash racquets is one of the most exhausting of ordinary games, and requires the greatest output of energy," he said. "At the end of half an hour the average person will have utilized some 300 calories—equivalent in terms of food to, say, two slices of bread and butter, or, alternatively, to two dry Martini cocktails.

"For every pint of beer a person drinks he will have to play squash racquets for half an hour. A glass of champage is equivalent to about 10 minutes of squash, and a double whisky and soda would require the full half hour to allow for the expenditure of the necessary amount of energy.

"Remember," the professor continued, "that a large whisky corresponds in food value to three boiled eggs, yet very few who had dined out would take six boiled eggs for a night cap."

"It is much easier to take in calories in the form of food than to get rid of them by exercise," the professor concluded. "As a means of dissipating energy, Turkish baths and warm or tepid baths have no effect, while massage only reduces the weight of the masseur."

Exchange Trade Seen In Soviet Recognition

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—In the event of recognition of soviet Russia by the United States, commerce department officials expect trade between the two countries will consist largely of an exchange of American-manufactured articles for raw Russian products.

What Russia wants from the United States:

Industrial, metal working, construction, conveying, oil well and refinery machinery and equipment; trucks, buses, automobiles, typewriters, business machinery and electrical appliances.

What the United States imports from Russia:

Undressed furs, crude drugs, manganese ore, fish, sausage casings, anthracite, lumber and pulpwood.

LABOR DISORDERS CONTINUE IN CUBA

Matanzas Province Is Center of Disturbances Among Rail Workers.

HAVANA, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Cuba's labor situation became acute tonight in the face of new disorders in the interior and threats of additional strikes in the capital.

Railroad workers continued to push their demands for an adjustment of the seniority rule and two trains were derailed within the past 24 hours.

Meanwhile the government sought to stamp out what it considered a plot against it and a number of alleged oppositionists and communists were imprisoned.

Reliable reports in Havana said railroad strikers admitted planting a bomb that destroyed 400 feet of rails and damaged a locomotive and two baggage cars near the town of Epalme, Matanzas province, early this morning.

Another train was derailed at Jovellanos, Matanzas province, when a switch was tampered with.

A small uprising was reported in the town of Zulueta, in Santa Clara, but the nature of the disturbance could not be learned.

Two corporals and 10 privates of the army were arrested at the town of Colon, in Matanzas province, charged with activities against the government, and there was considerable fighting among students in Matanzas city.

Tension was reported at the military barracks in Santiago after a new detachment of officers took over Oriente province military district on orders of Colonel Fulgancio Batista.

Reports said the soldiers were dissatified with the change of officers.

In the capital, bakers and bread deliverymen were still on strike and street car employes held themselves in readiness to walk out if they are asked to do so by the railroad workers.

Milk deliverymen were undecided about their strike action and planned to meet to determine whether they would cease all milk deliveries in Havana.

Berlin's Withdrawal Is Presented to League

GENEVA, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Germany's official notification of her withdrawal from the League of Nations was presented by the German consul early today to J. A. M. C. Avenol, secretary general.

In presenting the notification, the consul told reporters the withdrawal also would effect the League's sister organization—the International Labor Bureau.

It was added that Trew Delenburg, German assistant to the secretary general of the League, was resigning today.

All other German functionaries of the League and the labor office probably will tender their resignations, it was said, but there will be negotiations whereby it was considered probable some would stay, as was the case when Japan withdrew from the League.

The note said:

"Sir: On behalf of the German government I have the honor to inform you that Germany hereby declares she withdraws from the League of Nations in accordance with Article I, Paragraph 3, of the covenant."

FULTON RELIEF CASES DECREASE 8 PER CENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—A decrease of 8 per cent of relief cases handled in Fulton county, Georgia, which includes Atlanta, was reported by the federal emergency relief administration for September as compared with the previous month.

In September cases totaled 8,675 compared with 9,401 in August.

Total obligations incurred from public funds by the county during September increased 11 per cent from $150,960 to $167,639.

ENGINEERS' SOCIETY GETS $20,000 BEQUEST

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The American Society of Civil Engineers was bequeathed $20,000 in the will of J. Waldo Smith filed today.

Smith, who died last Saturday at his New York home, constructed New York city's $185,000,000 Catskill mountain water supply system.

A brother, Frank Webster Smith, of Winter Haven, Fla., was bequeathed one-fourth of the residue, while a nephew, Charles Webster Smith, also of Winter Haven, was left $10,000.

MARYLAND TO OPEN PROBE OF LYNCHING

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Oct. 21. (AP)—The first of next week had been set as the tentative date for the start of the formal investigation into the lynching of George Armwood, negro, by a mob here Wednesday night.

State's Attorney John B. Robins last night fixed the time of the inquest into the negro's death as Monday or Tuesday, after Coroner Edgar A. Jones had announced he had summoned a jury and was ready to hear witnesses.

KEATON, FORMER NURSE RE-MARRIED BY JUSTICE

VENTURA, Cal., Oct. 21.—(UP) Buster Keaton, solemn faced motion picture comedian, and his former nurse, Mae Scrivens Hawley, were re-married here today by Justice of the Peace Malvern Dimmick.

The ceremony made legal in California the marriage which was performed in Ensenada, Mexico, last January, before Natalie Talmadge received her final decree of divorce from Keaton.

Nicholas' Romance Survives Forgiveness of King Carol

Rumanian Monarch's Brother Returns to Bosom of Family Without Sacrificing Love That Shattered Royal Ties.

By RICHARD MASSOCK.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Prince Nicholas, of Rumania, is returning to the bosom of his family without, his friends here believe, sacrificing the romance that estranged him from his royal brother, King Carol.

His morganatic wife, Mme. Lucia Deletj, is believed to have gone back to Rumania to be near him.

Despite reports that she remained abroad, it was learned from an authoritative source that she had quit Paris simultaneously with the return of the prince to Bucharest. Their luggage left the hotel here, which had been their home in exile for nearly two years, in one load. It was all marked for Rumania, employes said.

Mme. Deletj is believed to have returned to Rumania by train, while Nicholas, an ardent aviation enthusiast, went back by airplane.

For two years the couple seemingly enjoyed an existence almost middle-class in its simplicity and the prince seemed satisfied with the hotel apartment he called home. They rarely went places, but when they did they generally were together.

His wife even accompanied him to the tracks when Nicholas drove, as he frequently did, in automobile races.

The couple spent some weeks in Swiss resorts this summer after the prince returned from an official airplane tour of European capitals, during which he was received by the heads of various governments as a prince in good standing.

Reconciliation of Nicholas with King Carol, whose strenuous objections to his brother's marriage in 1931 led to the young couple's self-imposed exile, was indicated by the tour, apparently undertaken as a mission from Carol himself.

Further confirmation of the report that Nicholas, at least, had been forgiven, came in dispatches from Bucharest announcing that Nicholas would join Carol and their brother-in-law, King Alexander, of Yugo-Slavia, on a hunting trip in Transylvania.

10 PERSONS HURT IN AUTO CRASHES

No One Critically Injured in Long List of Saturday Accidents.

Ten persons were injured, none critically, in a series of automobile accidents in various sections of Atlanta Saturday, according to police and hospital reports.

W. A. Payton, 40, of East Point, was struck by a hit-and-run driver at Whitehall and Humphries street early Saturday night. He was taken to Grady hospital, where attaches said he had a broken right leg and cuts and bruises. He also was suffering from shock. Payton is a produce peddler.

Miss Evelyn Steed, 22, of 594 Seminole avenue, received a broken collarbone and cuts about the legs and arms when the car in which she was riding with Carl W. Brannon, of 351 Park avenue, collided with a machine driven by N. S. Carlisle, of 634 Hill street, at Cherokee and Woodward avenues. Brannon also was slightly hurt. Police made cases of reckless driving against both drivers. Miss Steed was taken to Grady.

Hurt in Double Crash.

H. F. Anderson, R. F. D. Box 298, Atlanta, was badly cut about the hand and ankle when his car figured in a double accident Saturday afternoon. Anderson said a street car, operated by J. H. Carson, rammed his machine from the rear and forced it into the side of the railroad bridge on Lakewood avenue, practically demolishing the automobile. A. M. Watkins, of 21 Becknell street, a passenger on the trolley car, said he was injured about the back, but physicians at Grady hospital, where he was taken, said they could find no injuries.

A case of reckless driving was made by police against Edward King, negro, of 881 Smith street, S. W., after his car struck Harold Prather, 7 years of age, of 635 Washington street, at Washington street and Georgia avenue. The child was treated at Grady and released.

Two Newspapermen Hurt.

Two Atlanta newspapermen, Emory L. Waldrip, of 933 Hill street, S. E., and James A. Bellflower, of 869 Hardee street, were involved in an accident shortly after noon Saturday when Waldrip's automobile was rammed from the rear by a truck driven by Inman Bullard, negro, address not recorded. Waldrip said the accident occurred at Piedmont and Ponce de Leon avenues when the negro drove into his machine while crossing the intersection. Bellflower was slightly injured about the back and legs.

While riding his bicycle at Fraser and Fair streets, Theron Williams, 14-year-old son of H. J. Williams, of 868 Ormewood avenue, S. E., was struck by a car operated by James White, negro, of 394 Fraser street, according to police reports. He was slightly hurt. Police made a case against White.

Injured on Way to Grady.

Already on her way to Grady hospital, Mrs. Emma Dickson, of 1120 Fair street, received injuries Saturday morning when she was struck by a truck which had just figured in a collision at Butler and Gilmer streets The truck, driven by J. H. Lusk, of Doraville, overturned on the sidewalk after striking another truck operated by John Williams, negro, of 99 Woodward avenue, S. E. Lusk's machine knocked Mrs. Dickson down and injured her back, for which she was treated at Grady. Mrs. Lusk, in the truck with her husband, was hurt and also was treated at Grady.

Cases of reckless driving were lodged against William Truitt, negro, of 761 Fraser street, and against Thelma Griffin, negro, of 618 Fraser street, after their cars crashed together on Woodward avenue. Truitt's machine careened after the collision and knocked down a shed built against the store of Max Goldberg, at 49 Woodward avenue.

Egypt's Prince To Wed American Woman

LONDON, Oct. 22.—(UP)—The Sunday Express said today that a marriage had been arranged between Prince Ibrahim Fazil, cousin of the King of Egypt, and Mrs. Kate Stevens Hofer, of New York.

FUNDS ALLOTTED FOR U. S. PROJECTS

$61,644 Out of Total of $6,412,690 Will Go to Savannah.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(UP)—The public works administration tonight announced the allotment of $6,412,690 for federal projects in various sections of the country.

The largest allotment, $3,300,000, was made to the coast and geodetic survey of the department of commerce for field surveys and triangulation throughout the country. The data to be collected is necessary in order to provide efficient and economical engineering projects through the modernization of maps and charts. It was estimated that the allotment would provide 1,300 man-years of employment.

Howard University, a government negro school here, was allotted $1,260,000 for the construction of a library and an additional classroom building.

The public health service of the treasury department was allotted $683,190 for the construction of small mess halls, quarantine stations and plague laboratories in various sections of the country.

Saving of $29,975.

This allotment will result in a $29,975 annual saving in operations and maintenance. It will furnish about 3,600 man-months of employment.

The allotments follow:

Alabama: Mobile, mess hall, $3,600; quarantine station, $28,900.

California: San Diego, quarantine station, $36,450; San Francisco, quarantine station, $39,000; plague laboratories, $12,200.

Delaware: Reedy Island, mess hall, $78,000.

Florida: Miami, quarantine station, $9,000; Pensacola, quarantine station, $17,160.

Georgia: Savannah, mess hall, $25,200; quarantine station, $36,244.

Kentucky: Louisville, mess hall, $6,000.

Louisiana: Carville, mess hall, $8,191.

Maine: Portland, mess hall, $26,760; quarantine station, $4,200.

Massachusetts: Boston, quarantine station, $12,000.

Montana: Hamilton, plague laboratory, $44,875.

New Mexico: Fort Stanton, mess hall, $37,464.

New York: Buffalo, mess hall, $6,000.

New York City: Quarantine station, $72,180.

Oregon: Astoria, quarantine station, $4,916.

Pennsylvania: Pittsburgh, mess hall, $6,000.

Puerto Rico: San Juan, quarantine station, $32,500.

Texas: Galveston, quarantine station, $41,050.

Virginia: Fort Monroe, quarantine station, $9,800.

$433,000 Allotment.

An allotment of $433,000 was made to the international boundary commission of the state department for the construction of an international flood control waterway at Nogales, Ariz., and improvements of existing channels to carry off flood waters in that area.

The allotment provides for the completion of the American section of the project. The Mexican government has not made a definite appropriation for its share but it is expected to do so in the near future. It was estimated that 3,600 man-months of employment will be furnished.

The general accounting office was allotted $506,000 for additional expenses for auditing expenditures authorized by the NIRA.

The bureau of Indian affairs was allotted $100,000 for the improvement of Indian villages in Alaska. The improvements will consist of building of roads and the grading and drainage of lands. Approximately 1,200 man-months of employment will be furnished by the allotment.

An allotment of $1,000 was made to the bureau of mines for repairs on a building at McAlester, Okla.

St. Elizabeth's hospital here was allotted $80,000 and the national training school for boys, $30,000.

Chinese Go in Heavily for Nudism Much to Consternation of Officials

PEIPING, China, Oct. 21.—(UP) China, slow to adopt most of the ways of the west, has gone in heavily for nudism. A United Press survey disclosed today that several refuges for the undraped had been established throughout the country, to the horror of silken-gowned authorities.

Some Chinese nudists have complicated the problem of officials by combining the fad with religion. Habitues of a colony near Haichow, in northern Kiangsu province, explained that they believe sitting around all day in the nude reciting prayers is a sure path to eternal life—the goal of these unconventional Chinese's highly formal bretheren.

Leaders of the Kiangso nudists declare their group constitutes a religious cult and should be free from official interference. Government officials appear to be in no hurry about dealing with the problem, for they announced quaintly:

"The authorities have decided to ban the religion as soon as an investigation, which is now in progress, has been completed."

Other large colonies are located near Hongkong and Shankhai. Some authorities look for the bleak Chinese winter to put a stop to nudism in China.

FRENCH PREMIER TO STAKE POWER IN PARLIAMENT

Will Ask Immediate Action on Financial Reforms To Patch Six Billion Francs Deficit in Government Treasury.

SALARY SLASHES TO BE ADVOCATED

Deep Cuts in Pension System Also Proposed. Heavy New Taxes Would Be Imposed.

By RALPH HEINZEN.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—(UP)—Premier Edouard Daladier, determined to patch the six-billion franc hole in the national budget, will risk the life of his government on the issue of economy at tomorrow's session of the chamber of deputies.

The premier determined today, despite sniping from all sides, particularly by the socialists, that he would go to parliament with his financial reforms and ask for an immediate vote.

As a result, the cabinet's position tonight was regarded as perilous, despite the personal sentiment that holds Daladier in high esteem by most politicians.

Daladier will stake his power on a vote on Article 37 of the finance bill, which slashes the wages of government employes 6 per cent. The government also proposes deep cuts in the pension system, and wants to reduce salaries of practically every minor functionary in the state.

The premier will plead particularly for centrist support, stressing the grave economic situation that necessitates a balanced budget, and he will fight to the last breath for the financial reforms he considers essential if this year's tremendous deficit is to be overcome.

His political strategy, it appeared tonight, would be to offer consideration of any minor modifications in the bill, and thus split the opposition, possibly finding a real majority in the chamber.

One of the most highly considered of French statesmen, it is by no means impossible that if the government falls—and if Daladier makes his exit gracefully, without antagonizing too many socialists—he may eventually be recalled to leadership.

If Daladier falls, Camille Chautemps, once premier for an hour, seems to be favored.

A wide and vociferous section of the Paris press would like to see a "concentration" cabinet such as that of Poincare, Tardieu or Laval, but this result seemed unlikely.

In addition to the slicing of governmental expenses, the Daladier government has introduced a measure providing for heavy new taxes, including stiff imposts on tires and gasoline.

Reporters Inspect Van Der Lubbe's Trail

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Judges and newspapermen followed the trail today which Marinus Van Der Lubbe said he took February 27 in firing the reichstag building, and the question was raised whether the young Dutchman alone could have started the blaze in 20 minutes.

The court, which is hearing incendiarism charges against Van Der Lubbe and four others, lingered along the route for two hours.

Reporters took 50 minutes for a casual inspection of the trail, whereas testimony has been offered that Van Der Lubbe not only found his way through the dark building but placed firebrands in the brief period.

Van Der Lubbe has steadfastly maintained on the stand that no one helped him set the fire.

Two Athens Teachers Hurt in Tucker Crash

Miss Frances McNaught and Miss Mary Morse, teachers at the Georgia State College of Agriculture, at Athens, were severely injured Saturday afternoon when their automobile got out of control and overturned into a ditch near Tucker, on the Lawrenceville highway.

The two women were admitted to the Emory University hospital, where they were taken in a private ambulance summoned from Decatur. Hospital attaches said neither Miss McNaught nor Miss Morse was seriously hurt, though Miss Morse's condition was worse than her companion's. They were cut and bruised and Miss McNaught was knocked unconscious.

3 HELD IN FLORIDA IN COUNTERFEIT PROBE

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 21.—(UP)—Charged with passing worthless money, three men were held here today on bonds of $5,000 each following preliminary hearing.

Detectives said the men, A. M. Ryals, 74; Sebron Whatley, 55, of near Winter Haven, Fla., and Brother Lewis Whatley, 44, Tampa, allegedly brought the worthless money from New York and passed $4,000 in four months.

Lewis, at whose home the men were arrested, attempted to exonerate his companions, officers said, but government officials testified at the hearing that all were involved.

"Rained Out" at Fair Al Sees Repeal Dec. 6

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Although "Al Smith Day" at the World's Fair was rained out, the guest of honor took an indoor bow at the exposition and declared Monday would do as well.

Smith accepted the streaming day, which prevented the public appearance he was scheduled to make, with good humor. The outdoor festivities were postponed until Monday, when he will speak, and when a brown derby, the Smith symbol, will get any wearer through the gates free.

"I think the possible date for repeal is December 6," said Smith, "giving us about two weeks to corral the Christmas supply."

Southeastern C. of C. To Meet In Atlanta November 19-21

Group Will Move To Establish South's Claim to Broader Recognition in National Affairs.

A golden opportunity will be presented to establish the south's claim for broader recognition in national affairs, through the meeting of the southeastern division of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in Atlanta, November 19-21, W. R. C. Smith said Saturday in letters sent to a number of prominent businessmen.

"But," Mr. Smith warned, "we must be ready to assume our part of the responsibility. This means proper organization through our own chamber of commerce in a big, practical way. Let's make southern business articulate—nationally."

Two worth-while things suggested by Mr. Smith to maintain the high standard of achievement of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce are:

"1.—Get behind the movement for a canal across Georgia and Florida. That will be worth many millions to these states. Statistics do not tell half the good results that will follow. We are already almost in sight of success. Let's help Guy Woolford and his chamber of commerce committee put it over and make the most of it for Georgia and the southeast.

"2.—Put the south in its rightful place in the councils of the nation—in trade, industry, transportation and government."

Mr. Smith pointed out that "from Washington's time to 1860 we had a leading place and our men brought into the Union 95 per cent of the national domain since the Revolution. John Forsyth, of Georgia, obtained Florida from Spain and Mirabeau Lamar, of Georgia, and Sam Houston, of Virginia, brought in Texas. War changed that and for three generations we have played second fiddle. Let's not do that any longer. We fought for the country in the Spanish War and the World War and we have a right to a voice in national affairs."

Atlanta Achievements Cited.

Letters from Mell R. Wilkinson, civic and business leader, in connection with the chamber of commerce sectional meeting review the accomplishments of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and declare that "our work is not done. Atlanta is not finished. Let us build a greater chamber of commerce for a greater future."

Mr. Wilkinson said that "the chamber of commerce is Atlanta's dynamo, the rallying point of the Atlanta spirit. What could Atlanta do without the chamber of commerce? What could a body do without a heart, or modern machinery without a dynamo?"

The chamber of commerce, Mr. Wilkinson said, obtained the federal reserve bank, obtained Camp Gordon, raised war funds and did many things to help the government win the war. It organized the freight bureau, saving the city many millions, and the convention bureau which has brought to the city a million persons who spent $30,000,000 here, he said.

Also, Mr. Wilkinson recalled, the chamber proposed and largely carried the bond issue of 1910 which provided sewage disposal plants, water mains, sewers, the garbage crematory, the main building of Grady hospital, and got rid of 11,000 surface closets, reducing the death rate from 21 to 15 and saving the lives of many thousands.

Boys' Corn Clubs Organized.

The chamber organized the boys' corn clubs, bringing several thousand farmer boys to Atlanta to be entertained in homes, giving a tremendous stimulus to corn culture, organized the Southeastern fair which brought a million persons to Atlanta and greatly stimulated agriculture, called the hook-worm conference, starting measures which largely eradicated that plague, and raised $500,000 for Emory, $80,000 for Tech, and $822,000 for the Forward Atlanta movement, which brought 679 concerns employing 17,000 persons with a pay roll of $30,000,000, Mr. Wilkinson said. He added that the chamber held the great aviation meet of 1933 and sponsored the NRA campaign.

The southeastern meeting of the national chamber will include the following subjects: Agricultural adjustments in the south, southern business and the NIRA, agricultural credit in the south, involving farm mortgages, production credits and marketing operations, the public works program, credit for industry and commerce in the south, organizing business sentiment on national issues, the south's attitude to agricultural adjustments such as processing taxes, acreage reductions and marketing, bank and credit problems of the south, distribution problems in the south, and southern aspects of business recovery.

The last-named subject will involve things southern businessmen feel work hardships on business operations in the south in competition with business elsewhere, according to L. P. Dickie, manager of the southeastern division of the national chmaber. These things include labor conditions, wage differentials, transportation, inefficiency or efficiency of labor, distance to markets and other handicaps in competition.

Harriman to Speak.

Henry I. Harriman, of Boston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will speak on the subject, "What Is Ahead in Legislation for Business."

The program begins with a conference Sunday night, November 19, between presidents and secretaries of trade associations and chambers of commerce who will discuss internal problems of organization.

On Monday, November 20, the meeting will hear from the highest governmental authorities who will give the government's side of the various problems. On Tuesday, November 21, there will be rebuttal by businessmen who will tell of the changes needed in the south, changes needed in administrative features, and changes needed through amendments to the laws.

Resolutions outling united business opinions on the problems will be presented on Tuesday night.

WESLEY TO PRESENT PASSION PLAY FRIDAY

"The Passion Play," portraying Christ, His disciples, King Herod and all of the characters, including 500 Roman soldiers and civilians, will be presented in motion pictures at 7:30 o'clock Friday night at Wesley Memorial auditorium. There will be no charge for admission, but a free-will offering will be taken.

The pictures present the spectacle just as if the audience traveled to Bavaria to witness the original production, it was said. The reproduction in life-motion photography unfolds in the most convincing and pleasing manner the scenes and incidents in the Christ life heretofore pictured in words only and not understood by all, it was said.

First Highway Bids To Be Called Monday

Calls for bids on the first group of projects to be launched under the state $10,000,000 federal emergency highway program will be issued Monday by the state highway board and it is expected that the first letting will take place two weeks from the issuance of the call for bids.

Chairman J. J. Mangham, of the highway board, said Saturday that the projects would involve an expenditure of between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000 depending on how many detailed projects are approved Monday by federal engineers.

No intimation of just which projects will be started first was given but it was stated definitely that there would be no Atlanta work in the first letting.

MARX SPEECH TO OPEN SOCIAL WORK MEETING

Conference Will Be Held at Y. M. C. A.; Prominent Speakers on Program.

An address on the subject, "Individual Responsibility in Community Life," by Dr. David Marx at 8 o'clock Monday night will open the city-wide conference of social work at the Y. W. C. A., L. D. Sharp, chairman of the conference committee, announced Saturday.

The conference Tuesday will be divided into three sections. The morning program, starting at 9:30 o'clock, with Kendall Weisiger presiding, will include talks on the subject, "The Challenge of Leisure," as follows: M. E. Coleman, school official, "Training for Leisure;" Mrs. J. C. Malone, "Summer Activities of School Children;" W. A. Sutton, city school superintendent, "Enrichment of Adult Life;" Grace Hartley, "Teaching People in Distress to Get More Out of Life."

The afternoon program at 2:30 o'clock will include a symposium on the "Health Needs of the Community." Speakers will be Dr. W. E. Barber, president of the Fulton County Medical Society; Dr. J. P. Kennedy, city health officer; Dr. W. N. Adkins, county health officer; Dr. J. Rufus Evans, DeKalb county health officer; Dr. R. D. Robinson, president of the Fifth District Dental Society; Dr. Massey Clarkson, district sanitary engineer of the state board of health; W. A. Hansell, assistant chief of construction of Atlanta. Dr. L. D. Bristol, of New York, health director of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, will speak on the "Hospital Needs of the Community."

In the night meeting at 8 o'clock Dr. Comer Woodward, dean of Emory, will speak on the history of relief. Miss Gay Shepperson, of the Georgia relief commission, will speak on current trends in relief. Miss Ernestine McGill, of the Atlanta school of social work, will speak on the place of private agencies in modern relief work.

Building of Georgia-Florida Canal 'Military Necessity,' Say Sponsors

Military necessity has been brought forward as an argument for a canal across south Georgia and northern Florida connecting the Atlantic ocean and the Gulf of Mexico, for which $125,000,000 is being sought from the public works fund.

It is proposed to build the canal from St. Mary's on the Atlantic to the Gulf of Mexico. Its gulf terminus would be about 40 or 50 miles south of St. Mark's, Fla.

The canal, 166 miles long, would originate in the St. Mary's river at Fernandina, Fla., in Cumberland sound, or in the Satilla river near Brunswick, Ga. It would then pass through the St. Mary's river with a series of locks near Folkston, Ga., which would raise ships to a level of 114 feet on a plane with the highest portion of the great Okefinokee swamp. The canal would then pass through this swamp. A second series of locks would drop the canal to sea level and connect with the Gulf of Mexico.

Backers of the project say that the Gulf of Mexico from a military standpoint is the strategic center of the United States. They set forth that the proposed canal would create the same situation which was brought about by the German kaiser when he built the Kiel canal that connected the Baltic sea with the North sea.

T. Guy Woolford, chairman of the Georgia canal commission, states it this way: "Assuming that our navy was confronted with a superior force, all that we should have to do would be to lie at the mouth of the canal on the gulf. Should the enemy attempt to pass into the gulf our navy could slip through the canal and attack the foreign fleet in the rear."

It is estimated that the canal would cut off 500 miles for coastwise shipping from the Atlantic to the gulf. It would tie into the Atlantic coastal and intercoastal waterways connecting these with gulf intercoastal passages.

Six years would be required to build the canal and eventually 25,000 men would be employed. The canal would pay for itself in 40 years at 4 per cent interest on a small toll charge.

Surveys have already been completed by the engineers and canal commission to locate camps which would be equipped to handle 10,000 men at the beginning of construction.

Those seeking the funds say this is a federal project and therefore the loan could be made direct without reference to the states concerned.

REALTY BOARD SCORES RELIEF RENT-PAYING

Tenants Given Impression They Can't Be Dispossessed, Resolution Claims.

Objection to the rent-paying methods of the federal relief agencies in aiding persons on the relief roll was expressed in a resolution adopted by the Atlanta real estate board Saturday morning, which was mailed to relief administrators in the city.

The resolution, signed by Morris Ewing, president, stated that relief administrators left the impression with tenants on the relief rolls that the tenant has the right to stay in the property until he is legally dispossessed and then to repeat the process in another house. Federal agencies are paying half a month's rent for some persons on the relief roll, but the real estate board claimed that tenants have been given the impression that it is not necessary to move when ordered to do so.

Miss Louisa DeB. Fitzsimmons, Fulton county relief administrator, Saturday night said the real estate board had misunderstood the position of the relief agencies. She said she would issue a statement following a meeting of the relief commission Monday at the capitol, at which plans for a new method of distributing relief are to be discussed. Ronald Ransom, chairman of the commission, and Miss Gay B. Shepperson, secretary of the commission, will have charge of the meeting.

'Cop' Runs Over Negro And Then Arrests Him

Motorcycle Patrolman R. F. Lawson Saturday night made a case of drunk and disorderly against Homer Denson, negro, of 479 Techwood drive, after the officer's machine had knocked the negro down on Techwood drive near Pine street, according to police reports.

Patrolman Lawson reported that he was riding on Techwood drive and that several negro men were standing in the street between Mills and Pine streets. Denson was struck and slightly injured by the officer's motorcycle as Lawson passed, the report said. Lawson also fell to the pavement, but was not hurt. He then booked Denson for drunk and disorderly and took him to the police station.

N. C. & ST. L. TO GIVE LOW CHICAGO RATE

The N., C. & St. L. railway on Saturday announced low round-trip rates from Atlanta and points on their W. & A. division to Chicago. Tickets will be sold for $8.75 for the round-trip and sold only on October 28. A special train will leave the Union station at 2 p. m. on the 28th arriving in Chicago early the next morning. Tickets returning will be limited to leave Chicago prior to midnight of October 30.

This rate is the lowest that has ever been named for the round-trip to Chicago from Atlanta and offers patrons an opportunity to visit Chicago and the Century of Progress Exposition at minimum cost. Inasmuch as the exposition will be continued until November 12 it is expected there will be several hundreds from Atlanta and adjacent territory to take advantage of this rate.

Also, those desiring all-expense tours in Chicago may avail themselves of very low tours operated in connection with this rate.

NEW YORKER RETURNS WITH LIQUOR ORDER

QUEBEC, Oct. 21.—Law is coming to the aid of thirsty Americans, reporters discovered when they boarded the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain here yesterday and interviewed a New Yorker headed for home with a contract for 60,000 cases of nine-year-old Scotch whisky in his pocket.

The bearer of good tidings was Louis S. Law, New York representative of the Savoy hotel, London, who spent a week in London getting hold of what thirsty New Yorkers will get rid of in much less time.

"We managed to get stocks of the same whisky that has been used in the Savoy for years," Mr. Law said, "and despite the fact that it is almost impossible to buy whisky in Scotland any more, we are sure of at least 60,000 cases of well-aged liquor bottled in bond and thus safe from cutting."

RICE IS BIG CROP OF FAR EAST FARMS

COLOMBO, Ceylon, Oct. 21.—The traveler in the far east will be amazed at the vast amount of rice that is grown and consumed in the orient. It is in reality the world's most important crop. A crop of much as 180,000,000,000 pounds is produced annually. It furnishes food for a billion persons. Its value yearly reaches $7,000,000,000, which is three times the value of the world's raw cotton. More than 200,000,000 acres are devoted to its growth.

Another amazing fact is that there are between 5,000 and 7,000 kinds of this cereal. Americans who come here on the Franconia's around-the-world cruise next March should observe some of the 200 or more varieties that grow here in Ceylon, Japan, China, India and the Philippines have 1,000 distinguishable kinds.

Rice does not thrive in dry weather, nor when young can it out-grow weeds. For this reason it is planted in diked fields of mud and when the sprouts are tall enough water is let in, thus killing the weeds without injuring the rice. Many localities produce two crops a year.

EMPRESS OF BRITAIN TO SAIL ON CRUISE

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—During the past summer the cruise idea has taken the traveling public by storm. The largest of these to leave New York will be he 42,500-ton Canadian Pacific flagship Empress of Britain, which is scheduled to sail December 23 on an all-day Christmas-New Year's cruise to the Carribbean, visiting Kingston, Jamaica; Havana, Cuba, and Nassau, in the Bahamas. The Empress of Britain, which will sail on her third world cruise upon her return from the West Indies, will be the largest liner ever to have visited the West Indian islands.

Another well known liner which will cruise to the West Indies will be the 20,000-ton Duchess of Bedford, the largest of four sister "Duchesses" regularly engaged in various cruises and on the St. Lawrence route to Europe. She will sail from New York on January 20 and February 21 covering two identical 28-day itineraries calling for visits to Bermuda, San Juan, St. Pierre, Fort de France, Bridgetown, La Brea, Port of Spain, La Guaryra, Curacao, Cristobal, Kingston, Havana and Nassau.

DOHERTY ACQUIRES PALM BEACH HOTEL

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 21.—Colonel Henry L. Doherty, president of the Florida Year-Round Clubs, announced here today that he had completed negotiations for the acquisition of the Alba hotel in Palm Beach, one of Florida's most luxurious resort hotels. Mr. Doherty will add the Alba to his extensive properties which include the Miami Biltmore and Roncy Plaza hotels, the Miami Biltmore Country Club, the Roncy Plaza Cabana Sun Club and the Key Largo Anglers Club.

The Alba, constructed during the height of the Florida boom at a cost of between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 will be operated as the Palm Beach Biltmore and will open for the season of 1933-34 as soon as extensive improvements have been completed, Colonel Doherty said. It was intimated that a Palm Beach unit of the Year-Round Clubs will be organized this season in connection with the acquisition of the new hotel.

Mayor Scott Candler, of Decatur, who has fined a great number of speeders in his city, was given a copy of charges Saturday morning by Atlanta officers for exceeding the speed limit. The officers said the mayor was traveling along Edgewood avenue at 45 miles per hour. He will appear before Judge A. W. Callaway in recorder's court Tuesday afternoon.

Confederate veterans are requested to come to Judge Jeffries' courtroom, Fulton county courthouse, at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon to get their tickets to the Valdosta reunion.

Seyeral freshmen of the Emory Medical school were entertained at a smoker in the Piedmont hotel Friday night by the Beta Nu chapter of the Phi Delta Epsilon medical fraternity. The speaker of the evening was Dr. Joseph Yampolsky, president of the Georgia Pediatric Society and the Fifth District Medical Society.

Mrs. J. M. Bawson, of Waco, Texas will address the business women of the Druid Hills Baptist church at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the church building.

Rev. Harold Shields, pastor of the Gordon Street Presbyterian church, who has been conducting a series of revival services in Conyers, will return to his pulpit at services this morning and tonight at his church.

Fellowship Club of the Gordon Street Baptist church presented a blackface comedy Friday night at the J. C. Harris school. The play was "High Brown Breach of Promise," a mock trial skit, which was written by Shelton Parmer. It was sponsored by Circles No. 2 and 4 of the Gordon Street Presbyterian church.

Wallace Jackson Jr., 4, of a South Gordon street address, was recovering Saturday at his home from injuries received Friday afternoon when he was knocked down by the automobile of the Rev. John F. Blackburn, of 1542 South Gordon street. No case was made. The boy was only slightly hurt.

Peace warrants were taken out by two persons in municipal court Saturday. Roy McClesky asked the protection of the court against the nagging of Mrs. Ethel McClesky and Mrs. Howard C. Johnson sought protection from "the annoyance" of her husband.

G. B. Slaton, ambulance driver for Grady hospital, was named defendant in a divorce and alimony proceedings in superior court Saturday by his wife, Mrs. Bonnie Kate Slaton. She charged him with beating her and threatening intense physical pain.

East Point will hold an election next Saturday for a successor to the late J. C. McKenzie, justice of the peace. Five men are entered in the contest: George N. Crane, W. E. Harclerode, W. P. Middlebrooks, Sam N. Thompson and J. T. Upchurch.

Judge Luther Z. Rosser, who collapsed Friday while serving on the bench of the municipal court of Atlanta, was sufficiently recovered Saturday to be removed from the Emory University hospital to his home, hospital attaches said. The judge suffered from an abdominal complaint but his physician said his condition was not serious.

Marion Shy, eight, of 421 Candler street, who was injured Friday when he ran from behind a parked car into the rear of an automobile driven by Miss Marie Nicholson, of 65 Ormond street, was reported as resting comfortably Saturday at the Emory University hospital. He was cut and bruised but had no broken bones, it was said. The accident occurred at Candler street and McLendon avenue.

The Constitution Saturday was requested to state that the Clyde Dobbs who was indicted Friday by the Fulton county grand jury for swearing in the presence of a lady is not the Clyde Dobbs of 778 Cascade avenue who is with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Old-fashioned fiddlers will gather at the Reno school, Grady county, on Friday night for a convention and barbecue, proceeds to go for the benefit of the school, F. O. Martin, principal, announced Saturday.

St. Paul M. E. church will observe home-coming day at the 11 o'clock service Sunday morning. A program has been arranged in pageant and song that will cover the history of the church from the time when it was a Sunday school under a tree on Fair street up to the present time. A special invitation is extended to all former members and one of the features of the program will be a roll call of the old families of the church.

Mayor James L. Key Saturday was reported improved at his Ponce de Leon avenue home from an attack of "banquet indigestion." He is expected to return to his office Monday. Acting Mayor Alvin L. Richards continued to occupy the mayor's chair Saturday.

Compilation of a mass of data secured by a special council committee regarding the advantages or disadvantages of public ownership of public utilities over private ownership will begin this week, it was announced. Alderman E. A. Gilliam is chairman of the committee. The committee is to file its report with the council.

Oscar H. Williamson Jr., deputy city clerk, who has been confined because of an attack of pleurisy for several days, returned to his duties Saturday.

Council committees will not meet this week because of the fact that there are five Mondays in this month. Committees meet the week before the first and third Mondays of each month, which means that the week beginning October 30 will be the next committee week.

New officers of the Atlanta Wesley Federation will be installed at the monthly meeting at 7:45 o'clock Tuesday night at Druid Hills Methodist church. The officers include James Cox, president; Walter Poland, vice president; Miss Zola Marshall, secretary; Miss Pauline Brackett, treasurer, and Miss Cleo Shell, corresponding secretary.

BRYAN'S 101-YARD RUN DEFEATS TECH, 7 TO 0

BUCKY BRYAN'S 101-YARD RUN WINS FOR WAVE

Star Runs Kickoff Back. Mintz Adds Extra Point.

By Ralph McGill.

"Buckity" Buck Bryan, running faster than an antelope from old 101 Ranch, raced 101 yards to a touchdown and eternal gridiron glory Saturday afternoon at Grant field to give Tulane a 7-to-0 victory over Georgia Tech.

It was the long kick-off opening the second half which the mud-covered ghost took a yard back of his goal line, picked up his forming wedge of mud-covered mates and behind their good blocking, went on into the open and the headlines which greet a hero.

There was one unknown figure, lost to fame because of his muddy mask, who supplied a block at about the Tulane 30-yard line, which shook Bucky Bryan free.

It was "Life-Saver" Mintz who supplied the final block, a smashing dive across the hips of the flying Tommy Spradling, who was closing in on Bucky Bryan. It removed Tommy Spradling from the play and from there on it was a romp with the bands playing and the crowds screaming.

Just a few seconds of smashing football drama, and the greatest thrill that can come, a kick-off hauled back for more than 100 yards to a touchdown.

This Buckity-Buckity person had been shackled by Georgia mud all afternoon. But when he got his one chance he and his mates delivered.

The Tech safety man would ordinarily have stayed back after the kick-off. He might have been able to pull down the flying Tulane runner before the score. But the kick from the toe of Dave Wilcox was so high and so far back that he allowed himself to be drawn up into the line that went forward to meet the wedge.

And all but one Tech player was removed by that Tulane wedge—all but Tommy Spradling. And "Life-Saver" Mintz saved Tulane with that flying block that wiped out Spradling.

After that, and before, it was just a battle of defenses with no threat of a score.

THREE CHANCES.

Georgia Tech had three chances to score. Jack Phillips raced from his own 48 to the Tulane 10-yard line early in the second quarter.

And from there the Tech attack slipped and slid and failed through the air.

The second chance came in the third period when PeWee Williams and Tommy Spradling banged through to block Bryan's kick. Williams recovered on the Tulane 8-yard line.

When the fourth play had been run Jack Phillips was a foot shy of the goal line.

The third one came shortly afterward. Phillips' punting had kept the Tulane attack starting at, or near, its goal line for most of the game. And again Williams was through and half-blocked a punt.

FALLS ON 13.

Tech might have scored there but when Jack Phillips got it he collided with one of his own players and fell with the ball at Tulane's 13-yard line.

The first play was a pass, and it was intercepted to remove Tech's last threat.

Tech had the power, I think, to have won from Tulane Saturday. But something happened which makes the followers of competition in sport believe more and more in the jeering jars of fate.

Exactly 15 minutes before game time a sweeping rain began falling. It continued all the first quarter, soaking the field and making it impossible for a running game to be employed with success.

It removed all the power from the Tech backs, sending them sliding here and there, mostly on their faces. It changed entirely the complexion of the Tulane offense. Tulane, with an attack based on handling the ball, realized the futility of attempting to handle the wet, slippery ball.

The Green-clad team stuck to straight football. Only once, and then late in the game, did Tulane employ a pass. Not once did the Green quarterback call for a lateral. They stayed in there and slid with Tech.

That is all but once. That was when the antelope from the old 101 Ranch ran 101 yards to a touchdown with "Life-Saver" Mintz clearing the path for the final dash.

SHORT BUT IMPORTANT.

There was a run. It lasted no more than 12 seconds, or 13 at the most, and yet it nullified 60 minutes of effort by Georgia Tech's wet, muddy and forlorn backs.

Neither team could carry the ball from scrimmage. It was the 101 antelope who did the damage.

Georgia Tech, with that one Tulane play erased from the record, would have had an edge in the game. Because never before has Georgia Tech used the punt as an offensive weapon as well as Saturday.

The running game was nullified but Jack Phillips punted in the rain with masterful skill. Take a look at the running story.

It will show that Tulane had Tech punts downed in her territory in this order: At her 21, the 26, the 26, the 22, the 20, the 14, the 10 and so on.

Twelve times Tulane had the ball at her 20-yard line or closer. Twice it was deaded at the 2-yard line. Tech gained constantly on the exchange of punts. This will usually bring about a break.

It did bring two to Tech. One kick was blocked. Another was half-blocked. But each time the Tulane line stopped the attack. It is difficult enough to score from the 10-

THIS PASS FOLLOWED PHILLIPS' 42-YARD RUN AGAINST TUL ANE. A 4TH DOWN EFFORT, IT WAS INCOMPLETE.

Tulane's Cheer Leader Breaks Leg; But Leads Cheers!

Donald Kerr, one of Tulane's cheer leaders, has a tie with Bucky Bryan, the sophomore back who ran back the touchdown that beat Tech Saturday, in the matter of thrills.

Donald Kerr got four breaks, He has but one leg. The other is wood or cork or whatever it is they make spare legs of these days. That doesn't prevent him from being a great boxer, a rope climber and an athlete of ability in several sports.

He was on the way to Atlanta in a car with some fellow students. The car was wrecked. The only casualty was Kerr's wooden leg. It was broken. That was the first break.

The next one was boarding a train and finding Dr. A. B. Dinwiddie, president of Tulane, aboard. Dr. Dinwiddie financed him to Atlanta.

The third one came when it rained. Don Kerr could get but one foot wet. The other cheer leaders had two soaked feet each.

And when Bucky Bryan made the touchdown run then Don Kerr got his last big break. He had led the cheers that helped inspire Bucky Bryan.

So, it was quite a day for Donald Kerr, one of the most delightful young men that has visited Atlanta in the annual football pageants.

ATTELL RECALLS "BLACK SOX."

Abe Attell sat and watched the Tulane-Georgia Tech football game yesterday at Grant field with a pair of eyes that still have that sharpness and keenness which made him one of the greatest boxers to ever hold a world's title.

Abe Attell was featherweight champion of the world, probably the greatest of all featherweights unless it was Terrible Terry McGovern or Georgia Dixon. And was the peer of them.

He has had quite a career, has Abe Attell. He lived and fought in the greatest days of the fight game when Stanley Ketchel, "the Michigan Assassin," was fighting. When there were great fighters in every division who kept fighting until they were through with no thought of one fight a year and movie and vaudeville contracts to make the dollars come faster.

And Abe Attell came through all the "Black Sox" baseball scandal of 1919 when the Cincinnati Reds won from the Chicago White Sox and the gamblers' coup followed which rocked the baseball world.

They tried to hang the gambling arrangements and the bribery of the "Black Sox" on Abe Attell but it failed to stick. And later on he was granted a manager and second's license on the recommendation of Jim Farley who happens to be rather high up in the political and administrative world at present.

Abe Attell has come along well. There are many old fighters of his day who are gone into graves in potter's field or lived on charity.

But not Abe Attell. He was dressed in the latest fashion as dictated by that fashion magazine for men, Esquire. And he had a very nice diamond set in platinum on one finger and he looked quite opulent, indeed.

And there isn't a mark on him left by the fight game.

'GATORS DEFEAT TARHEELS, 9-0

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Oct. 21.—(UP)—The Florida Alligators had little difficulty today in winning a 9-to-0 victory over North Carolina in an unimpressive interconference football game.

In one of the few spectacular plays of the game, Henderson, Florida halfback, spurted 35 yards to make the only touchdown in the first period. A pass from Henderson to Goodyear was good for the extra point.

Florida's other two points came in the last period on a safety. A. Brown, playing substitute center for Florida, blocked the attempt of Martin, a North Carolina substitute, to pass from the end zone just before the game ended.

FERRAZZI STARS.

Ferrazzi, regular Florida center, and Starbuck, Florida tackle, played especially strong defensive games, while Barclay, Carolina guard, and Martin, back, showed up well for the visitors.

A crowd of 10,000 witnessed the game. In the stands sat United States Senator Park Trammell and Governor Dave Sholtz. Skies were clouded and in the last period, it began to rain.

Quick kicks by Henderson, especially in the first period, proved troublesome for North Carolina. All through the game the teams resorted to punting frequently.

FLORIDA THREATENS.

Florida threatened to score twice in the second quarter but lacked the punch to put the ball across. Starbuck recovered McDonald's fumble on Carolina's 21-yard line, but Beckwith fumbled two plays later. With two minutes of the second quarter to go, Schuman blocked McCachen's punt and recovered on Carolina's 7-yard line. The Tarheels held, however, and the 'Gators made only four yards in four tries as the half ended.

The same teams that started the game came back in the second half. The third quarter was unimpressive as the teams kicked and tried passes.

Centenary Battles Texas to 0-0 Tie

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 21. (AP)—Undefeated since 1931, the Centenary College Gentlemen were forced to make two glorious goal line stands against the University of Texas here today to keep their record untarnished. The two teams played to a scoreless tie under a sweltering sun.

After outplaying the Longhorns in the first half, Centenary fagged in the last two periods to allow Texas to run them all over the field. The Steers, however, lacked the punch to push over a counter.

Alabama Crushes Tennessee, 12 to 6

By Bob Murphy.

KNOXVILLE, Oct. 21.—Tennessee came to the end of the title trail today when an angry, bruising Alabama team cast aside its crutches, bandaged up the gaping wounds, and went out to pick up where the Huberts, Winsletts, Browns, Holmes and Singtons left off.

Alabama proved its right to football greatness on Shields-Watkins field this afternoon before a milling, swirling throng of over 20,000. They accepted all the bad breaks in the book, spotted Tennessee a touchdown lead in the first half and then came back with an inspired attack in that last half that paid handsome returns on a 12-to-6 verdict—the first 'Bama has chalked up over Tennessee since 1930.

Tennessee, with Wynn, Palmer and Maples out of the lineup, and Milton Frank unable to start the game, was the better team in the first half. They had drive, finesse, and all the qualities that Neyland's strategy can provide.

Tennessee scored near the end of the first period when Beattie Feathers climaxed a Vol aerial assault by plunging over from the 12-yard line.

VOLS SCORE.

Tennessee supporters fully expected to see the Vols protect this 6-point lead until the end. But Tennessee came to the end of the victory trail with such suddenness that it was impossible to keep clean the record of no defeats on Shield-Watkins field since 1924.

A dazzling 34-yard run by Bubber Walker in the third quarter tied the count, and Milton Howell broke the fighting hearts of the Tennessee eleven in the final canto when he lowered his head and crashed over from the 4-yard stripe.

They broke down the gates and milled their way into the stadium this afternoon to not only see Tennessee lose its first game on the local field since 1924 but accept its second successive defeat since Neyland has been in charge of Tennessee forces and bow for the first time before a Notre Dame attack.

The run that Feathers made seemed great, but it faded into insignificance after Bubber Walker, the bare-headed knight from Alabama, crashed through the very heart of the Vol defense, cut toward the side lines and headed for the promised land.

EFFECTIVE RUN.

The run that Howell made was less spectacular than either of the other two, but it was just as effective. And the same Howell exploded a punt today that went 84 yards from scrimmage across the Tennessee goal line. It was one of the longest punts in southern football history.

Penalties played a big part in the game. A 15-yard penalty put Tennessee in position for the first touchdown of the game. Another similar penalty placed Alabama down near the last half mark in the final period. And Tennessee almost used a penalty to at least tie the score in the fading moments of the game. As it was, Tennessee drove 90 yards down the field and was halted on the 6-yard stripe. Tom Hupke, one of the great linemen of southern football, was the man who always checked hard-running Vol backs in those crucial moments.

BETTER TEAM.

Alabama had the better football team today and deserved to win. They had every reason to quit and go back on their heels in the first half, but Alabama didn't.

It was Howell, and Hupke and Walker that wrecked the Vol ship, but they wrecked it in a game that will go down as one of the most thrilling ever played here.

Gate-crashing, fights and confusion accompanied every colorful gesture the two great teams made. Police

93,000 FANS SEE MICHIGAN WIN

By James L. Renick.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Ohio's bid for Big Ten football honors failed to match the desperate effort of Michigan to remain in the title battle today, and the blue-accoutered Wolverines sent the Buckeyes home with a crushing 13-to-0 defeat.

The Wolverines started a march toward the Western conference promised land for the fourth consecutive year before a colorful, surging throng of 93,508 persons, the largest gathering that has ever jammed the Michigan bowl since its construction in 1927.

Youthful Harry Kipke, the Wolverine mentor, reached into his master's time-worn bag of tricks and came out with Fielding H. Yost's "old 83," end-around plays and others that were throwbacks to the active days of the "grand old man."

It was "old 83," with a few minor variations to get around the new rules, that led directly to the first touchdown by young Bill Renner in the final minutes of the first half. And it was an off-tackle play, another of Yost's favorites, that accounted for the second and final score by speedy Herman Everhardus in the dying minutes of the game.

The Wolverines outplayed their annual foe during most of the 60 minutes, Ohio accounting for only three first downs as compared with eight for Michigan. The Buckeyes had only one scoring chance, the result of a fumble in the second period, but failed to capitalize.

Behind well-nigh perfect interference and blocking, Michigan backs scampered around and through Ohio's line, but fell back to the favorite Michigan style of attack, forward and lateral passing; when they needed sizable gains.

Michigan twice missed scoring chances, when attempted field goals in the third and fourth periods went wide.

The Wolverines kept Ohio's vaunted running attack well in check.

GENERALS DRIVE FOR TOUCHDOWN IN THIRD PERIOD

Sawyers Scores on Pass To Hand 'Cats First Defeat.

By Frank H. Fuller.

MAHER FIELD, ROANOKE, Va., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Washington and and Lee's Generals out-rushed their favored rivals from the start to finish, today packed their scoring punch into a spectacular 93-yard touchdown march to defeat the previously unbested University of Kentucky, 7 to 0 in one of the major upsets of the 1933 football season.

Joe Sawyers, fleet and wiry halfback and spark plug of the Generals' offense, launched the touchdown march with a 41-yard return of the kickoff at the start of the second half. The thrusts followed in rapid fire order with Sawyers taking a shovel pass to sprint around left end for the final 10 yards, scoring standing up. Mattox kicked the goal from placement.

RUNNING PLAYS HALTED.

The Wildcats, their running plays halted by a charging Washington and Lee line, turned to the aerial game with almost disastrous results. Arnold, substituting for Seaton in the Generals' backfield, intercepted one pass on Kentucky's 12-yard line but the Generals lacked the punch and Mattox missed a field goal just a few feet. Mattox intercepted another deep in Kentucky territory but again the Wildcat line held.

Pritchard, Kentucky backfield ace, drew the stands to their feet late in the final period when he cut back from a left end run and sprinted 25 yards. Kercheval fumbled and Bailey and Simth were on him for an 8-yard loss, but each hurled a bullet-like pass to Ruppert who was stopped on Washington and Lee's 40-yard line.

Pritchard, and Bach battered through for a first down. Bach made a short pass to Kercheval, but the Wildcat back was thrown for a 3-yard loss. Bach was then trapped by thre Generals for a 9-yard loss on an attempted pass, and Seitz, substitute for Sawyers, intercepted Bach's next heave to end Kentucky's last opportunity as the game ended.

Washington and Lee gained 128 yards by rushing while Kentucky made 80. The Generals were thrown for losses totaling 22 yards and dropped Wildcat backs behind the line for losses of 29 yards.

The Generals attempted seven passes, completing four for a total gain of 43 yards. Kentucky tried 19, completed eight for a net gain of 72 yards and had five intercepted.

WILDCATS LEAD.

In first downs, the Wildcats led with eight against seven for the Generals. Three Kentucky first downs were made on passes and the aerial game accounted for two of the seven made by Washington and Lee.

Kercheval's great kicking for Kentucky to a large extent nullified the superiority of the Generals in rushing. He kicked ten times for 444 yards, an average of 44.4. Sawyers booted the ball six times for Washington and Lee for an average of 33 1-2 yards; Arnold punted five times for an average of 36 yards and Seaton kicked once for eight yards.

The victory today avenged a 53-to-7 defeat handed the Generals last season by the Kentucky eleven.

Yale Eleven Beats Brown, 14 and 6

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 21.—(AP)—In a struggle featured by brilliant offensive football and flavored by numerous long, extended marches goalward by both elevens, the Yale Bulldogs trimmed their old rival, the Brown Bear, 14 to 6, in the Yale bowl today.

Captain Bob Lassiter, long-legged Eli halfback, scored both of Yale's touchdowns, the first on an 8-yard sprint around end after a 51-yard drive in the initial period; the second on a 2-yard dive through the center of the Brown line in the third after he and the other scampering Yale backs had twisted and squirmed their way 67 yards to put the ball in scoring position.

Brown, coming back like a champion in the third period, made two desperate attempts to cross Yale's goal, once piling up on the 1-foot line, before Harold Walker fought his way across from the 7-yard line to score in the final quarter. The touchdown climaxed a march of 40 yards.

Washington State Ties California

PULLMAN, Wash., Oct. 21.—(AP) Aided by the mighty passing arm of Phil Sorboe, their quarterback, Washington State's Cougars outplayed California's Bears in their conference football game here today, but lacked the drive to give them more than a 6-to-6 tie score.

Thus was upheld Washington State's tradition of never having been beaten on the home field since Coach O. E. Hollingbery took charge in 1926.

NORTHWESTERN BEATS INDIANA TEAM, 25 TO 0

Hoosier Losses So Great Statistics Show One Yard Minus.

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 21.—(AP)—To the accompaniment of forked lightning, blinding sheets of rain, and semi-darkness, Northwestern overwhelmed Indiana today, walloping the Hoosiers, 25 to 0.

After being held in check for the first two periods, Northwestern's Wildcats ran over the Hoosiers in the third to register 22 points. By this time the rain was falling in a steady downpour and the playing field was in semi-darkness.

Northwestern started the scoring when Indiana fell victim of a safety.

This break marked the beginning of the rout of the Crimson. Auguston, an elusive back, substituting for Ollie Olson, broke loose on a 52-yard gallop for a touchdown. Duvall place-kicked the extra point.

The Hoosiers were hopelessly outclassed, with Northwestern gaining 220 yards. Indiana suffered so many losses from scrimmage that its statistic total showed one yard minus. Northwestern rolled up 11 first downs to a blank for the Hoosiers.

GRIDDERS INELIGIBLE.

Twenty-two of this year's freshman football candidates at the University of Missouri were found to be on the ineligible list.

Oregon State Ties Trojans in Upset

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 21.—(UP)—Little Oregon State which last year was downtrodden by every coast team except Montana broke the string of Southern California victories today when it battled the Trojans to a 0-to-0 tie.

Four times the mighty Trojans marched to scoring territory and four times Lon Stiner's Beavers held. The Beavers played the entire 60 minutes with only one five-minute substitution.

Outstanding hero of the game was Norman "Red" Franklin, Oregon State left half, who not only carried the brunt of the Beaver offense but stopped the vaunted Trojan passing attack and kept the famous "Cotton" Warburton from unleashing any of his long runs.

It was Franklin who finally shattered all Trojan hopes when he intercepted Howard's pass on the last play of the game and returned it 15 yards to U. S. C. territory as the game ended.

Little Warburton was a constant U. S. C. threat in the backfield but desperate work by Beaver secondary men hauled him down when time and again it appeared he was off on another of his scintillating runs.

On running back punts, the yard lines rolled under his flying feet like a treadmill, but Warburton found he had to share honors for backfield play with the brilliant red-headed Franklin.

Southern California outgained Oregon State nearly three to one, but the goal line punch was not forthcoming when needed.

It was a punting duel for the most part, with Franklin standing off Warburton, Griffith, Howard and Clemens with his spirals. Both teams averaged slightly more than 33 yards.

Gibson Will Lead Pirate Team Again

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 21.—(AP)—George Gibson today was re-appointed manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates' baseball team.

Announcement that "Gibby" will be retained for the 1934 season was made by William E. Benswanger, president of the club.

AGGIES UPSET VANDY ELEVEN WITH 7-7 TIE

Both Teams Lack Scoring Punch on Two Other Opportunities.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Mississippi State's rugged Maroon eleven turned loose surprise strength today as it fought the favored Vanderbilt Commodores to a 7-to-7 tie in a Southeastern conference game.

In the leading role of the Maroon's flashy exhibition was Bobby Herrington, diminutive captain and quarterback, whose kicking, passing and running amazed the 7,000 spectators.

FIRST SCORE.

It was the first time any Mississippi State team had scored on a Vanderbilt eleven and the deadlock dealt the Commodores a blow in their first conference competition. Tennessee and Alabama had defeated the Maroons in earlier Southeastern games.

Vanderbilt scored its touchdown within a few minutes after the second period opened. Recovering a blocked punt on their own 46-yard line, the Commodores marched to the Maroon goal on three forward passes, with Gene Beck, fullback, going across after taking a short heave from Bobby Oliver. Rannie Throgmorton added the extra point from placement.

In the closing minutes of the first half Mississippi State opened up a drive from Vanderbilt's 34-yard line and scored in six plays when Cassibry cut throgh on a reverse for six yards. Cassibry place-kicked the extra point.

The outstanding run of the battle was a 41-yard dash by Herrington. On a sweep around end early in the second period, the Maroon leader almost got away for a touchdown, but was pulled down from behind by Scoggins on Vanderbilt's 30-yard line.

LACK PUNCH.

Both teams lacked the necessary punch on two other scoring opportunities. In the third period Mississippi State recovered a fumble on Vanderbilt's 15-yard stripe but lost the ball on another fumble. Later in the same quarter, the Commodores recovered a fumble on the Maroon 26-yard line but lost the ball on downs on the 8 and Mississippi kicked to midfield.

Mississippi State was credited with seven first downs, Vanderbilt six. The Maroons gained a total of 183 yards, the Commodores 133. Vanderbilt completed 3 of 10 passes, Mississippi State 3 out of 9 attempts.

HARVARD UPSET BY HOLY CROSS

STADIUM, CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 21.—(AP)—The finely conceived attack that Harvard has been saving for its major campaigns was shattered into bits as the burly Holy Cross Crusaders battered their way to a 10-7 victory today before a three-quarter capacity crowd of 45,000, largest of the Crimson's seasons.

Clashing against a Purple line of 200-pound Tarzans, every one of the new Harvard half and full spinner plays was smeared before it could get into its deceptive stage and the Crimson end sweeps, with one 8-yard exception, were forced back against stonewall tackles by the sparkling defensive wing play of Captain Charlie Reiss and Tom Kelly.

With its running attack stalled, Harvard had to go into the air to make good one of its four scoring chances, which resulted from two blocked punts, an intercepted pass and a fumble.

'Ole Miss' Parades Home-Coming Day

UNIVERSITY, Miss., Oct. 21.—(AP)—The University of Mississippi shot her entire gridiron works before a record Home Coming Day crowd of approximately 8,000 fans this afternoon and rolled over Sewanee, 41 to 0, to continue the bid of the Floodmen for recognition in the conference this season.

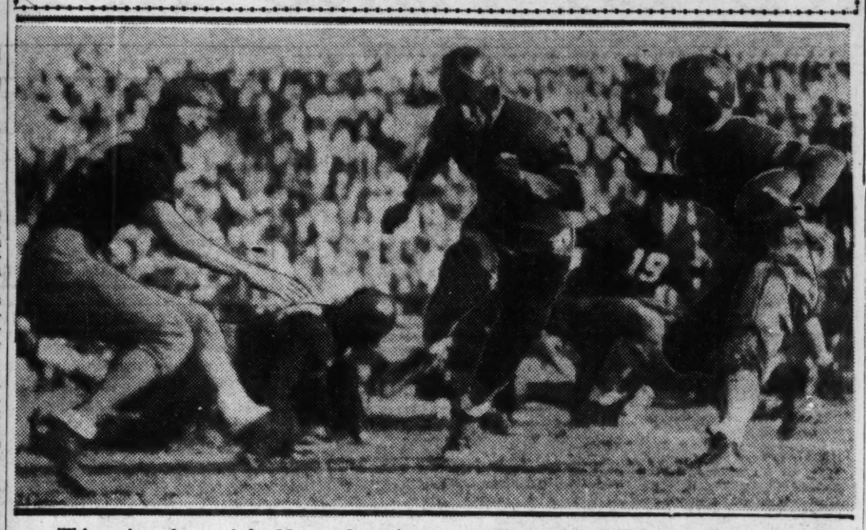

Ole Miss offense, with Brad White, Earl Hutson, Ches Curtis, Ray Casper, Ruby, Rogers, and Gunter, each playing stellar roles in the backfield, looked much more powerful than at any time this season, while a heavy charging forward wall made openings in the Sewanee front almost at will.

Petrolle Defeats Fuller in Boston

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Billy Petrolle, veteran Fargo (N. D.) welterweight, easily outpointed Sammy Fuller, of Boston, in a 10-round scrap at Ridgewood grove tonight. Fuller went down for nine counts in the second round and again in the seventh. Petrolle weighed 142 1-4, Fuller 140.

Allen Ambles Along for Mercer

This action photo of the Mercer-Georgia football game in Macon Friday, which the Bulldogs barely won, 13-12, shows young Henry Allen, of Lafayette, Ga., going over Georgia's right tackle for a 20-yard gain during the Bears' 64-yard drive to their second touchdown in the fourth period. Allen started this drive off by lugging the kickoff back 26 yards and later, from the 10-yard line, he carried it over. Had the Bears been able to make the extra point after this score, they would have tied Georgia 13-13. A big crowd saw the game. Photo by Turner Hiers.

Mercer-Georgia Game Reveals Bears' Strength

Sam Brown's Run Feature—Russell Had Only Injured Lee Left As Game Ended.

By Jimmy Jones.

Looking back over that titanic football imbroglio that Mercer and Georgia put on Friday afternoon at Macon, one finds, in quiet and dispassionate deductions, that not only some very good football, but some that was worth remembering transpired during the contest.

For Coach Harry Mehre, of the Bulldogs, it must have been a nightmare, so swift and intense was the attack that Mercer set forth early in the game. Harry was in a tough spot, no doubt, with what was before and behind his team. And there was Mercer out there, thought to be an easy mark (although not by Mehre), putting the pressure on hard from the beginning.

Georgia found little solace, outside of the fact that it turned out a victory instead of a tie or a one-point defeat. And that would have been very tough on Georgia in view of its record and its chances this season, allowing for the fact that it would have been a tremendous upset to Mercer's credit.

Sam Brown's 42-yard run which contributed to the second Georgia touchdown—the one that won the game—was a feat of beauty. It appeared that Mercer's line had him trapped several times, but the elusive Sam managed to get through, down to the Bears' 8-yard line where Buck Chapman, the powerhouse fullback, punched it over.

And what was more remarkable was that Mercer was able to come back and drive 64 yards for a touchdown with a sophomore quarterback, young Henry Allen, of Lafayette, Ga., at the helm. Allen, likewise, was in a tough spot. Dropped suddenly into the shoes of the veteran and capable Trommerhauser, who had gone out with a twisted shoulder, Allen ran the team and himself, incidentally, most admirably.

ONE-MAN PLAY.

It was rather amusing the way Allen set himself to his task. He ran a play into the line and it gained ground, a few yards. He ran another of the same type between tackle and guard and it pushed the ball further down the field. Finding the vulnerable spot, Allen kept hitting the same sector until it netted a touchdown, carrying the ball himself the last 10 yards after Davino was stopped. A more experienced quarterback might have mixed up the plays more and yet might not have got the ball across the goal line. The fact that Allen kept driving one spot was in itself deceptive, for Georgia's line thought surely he might change his tactics for a pass or an end sweep now and then. But Allen was a one-play quarterback and his teammates, pleased with the youngster's own individual work, let him have the say in the huddle.

Lake Russell and his two assistants, Tiger Bennett, a former Georgia guard by the way, and Skeet Horner, deserve no end of credit for the smart defense that was set against Georgia and the effectiveness of the running attack thrown with it.

Russell, whose skill and foresight as a defensive coach already has won him considerable notice, fashioned a special defense to stop Georgia's Notre Dame attack. He has used a similar defense against other teams, but never one quite like that of Friday. He had his center, the brilliant Lichter, pulled back 8 yards out of the line, roving on passes and shifting up on line plays. He set his fullback in behind the strong-side tackle. At defending halfbacks were Trommerhauser, who played a fine defensive game, and Popeko, with Zinkowsky bringing up the rear as safety man.

FLOATING SET-UP.

This six-man line and secondary gave Mercer a floating set-up that was able to shift with Georgia and stop cutbacks and passes. Georgia did not complete a single pass on the Bears.

Russell was at a disadvantage in the matter of reserves, his squad nummering only 26 players and he had only a 155-pound end and Lee, incapacitated back, sitting on the bench when it was over. The Mercer coach combated the psychological effect of Georgia's three teams, by changing his own two whenever the Bulldogs changed, thereby putting fresh players against fresh players and buoying the sturdy but tired defense.

Mercer's pass attack might have gone better with Bob Lee in the game. But the boy had a badly bruised cheek bone and Russell would take no chances on him. He figured that the game wasn't worth the boy and thereby stamped himself as the human coach that he is.

That the Bears were keyed up for Georgia there is no doubt. They were a better football team to begin with than they were credited with being. Their showing against Army and Navy, teams equipped with great reserves, should have been a warning of that. But throughout the training for those games the Bears were subconsciously pointing for Georgia. They couldn't get that game out of their minds, however much Russell coached them for the Army game. Their showing against the Cadets was very good, but the Bears still had Georgia on their mind.

GREAT LINE PLAY.

No line probably will give a better exhibition against Georgia's splendid array of forwards than did Mercer's.

COLGATE BEATS N. Y. U., 7 TO 0

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The Red and White Colgate football team was hard pressed today to defeat a fighting New York University team, 7 to 0, before 25,000 spectators at the Yankee stadium.

Hampered by a loss of 110 yards in penalties—5 of them 15 yards each for unnecessary roughness—Coach Andy Kerr's cohorts struggled desperately during the second half to preserve the margin of victory produced by End Joe Bogdanski, who scored a touchdown on a short forward pass.

Behind a strong, charging line, Colgate backfield men advanced 212 yards through the New Yorkers' line.

His nose rambles a bit but that is a relic of Stanley Ketchel's camp. Not the Assassin's fists, however.

Stanley Ketchel dumped his sparring partner in the horse trough and when the irate partner tossed a playful brick after him it struck Attell on the beak just as he stepped out of the door. It smashed the beak and it has been quite flat since that time and has a tendency to wander.

"THE BLACK SOX" SCANDAL.

Attell views the legal actions which followed the exposure of the bribed Chicago White Sox players, as "an effort to hang it on a guy who had nothing when they all knew the guy who did it but knew he couldn't be convicted."

"Why, say," said Attell, "when I went to Cincinnati for the series that year I was betting on Chicago, the 2-to-1 favorite.

"And my friends came around and said, 'Abe, Abe, don't do that. It's in the bag. It's all set for the Reds.'

"Sure, I knew about it. It cost $100,000 to swing that deal and pay off the players. But Abe Attell didn't have that much dough. And they all knew it. Most of my friends knew about it before I did. I really got down two bets on Chicago before I found out. And then it seemed that everyone knew it. In Chicago even the newsboys were saying it was in the bag.

"I won't mention the fellow's name that swung it. You know who it was. He got bumped not so long ago. Well, he won $450,000 in that series and it was his $100,000 that swung it. And because I had worked with him some they tried to hang it on me. But I'm telling you it was all swung and in the bag before I learned about it.

"And I guess the best proof that I wasn't in on that is that I have worked around fights and race tracks since then and no one ever tried to say I pulled anything fast."

Abe Attell is on his way to Texas where he will help conduct a track at Houston. He worked all the summer season at the Rockingham plant.

The ex-champ has been smart. The fellow that won $450,000 is gone and all the Black Sox ball players are out of the money. It was probably a break for him he wasn't in with the "Big Brain" who swung the deal.

Because Abe Attell is wearing diamonds and going strong—still in the money.

WHAT'S IN A NAME.

A gentleman signing himself "Pigskin Pete" claims to have discovered why Wallace Wade, at Duke, always has good tackles. He gets them with the first name of "Freddie." The fan writes:

Fairfax, Ala., Oct. 18, 1933.

Mr. Ralph McGill, Sports Editor,
The Constitution,
Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Sir: There's nothing in a name? Mr. Shakespeare! You're telling me? Either you've been grossly misquoted, or else you don't know your football history.

A 200-pound tackle under any other name might perform just as sweet, but if you'll ask Mr. Wallace Wade, the big block and tickle man up at Duke University, he probably prefers them named "Freddie." Why? Listen: Freddie Pickhard and Freddie Sington, All-Southern and All-American, respectively, under Wade at Alabama, and now, Freddie Crawford, All-American calibre at Duke.

Messrs. McGugin and Mehre can have their ends (Bomar, Wakefield, Creson, Nash, Smith, Shiver, et al.), and Mr. Alexander his fullbacks (Harlan, Wyckoff, Lumpkin, etc.), but Mr. Wade, he'll take tackles. Me? I'll take sarsaparilla. What's yours?

The moral of this story is, little boys, eat your spinach and drink your milk, change your name to Freddie, and some day, maybe, you'll be a big All-American tackle.

Yours, "PIGSKIN PETE."

All of which is just as good an explanation as any. If your son is named Freddie send him to Duke and he will make an All-American tackle.

FORWARD PASS ON THIRD PLAY DECIDES GAME

Tobin, Tackled Fiercely, Loses Ball and Foes Are Off.

By George Sierer.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 21.—(AP)—In one swift, rapier-like scoring thrust in the first minute of play, a brainy Carnegie Tech eleven today knifed out a 7 to 0 victory over a big Notre Dame team that just couldn't get goin.

It was "Harpster football"—the gridiron art as taught by Tech's 26-year-old coach—that brought the Tartans their astonishing triumph over a creaking, groaning Irish machine before a crowd of 57,000.

And it was a lightning forward pass from Quarterback Angelo Bevevino to Right End Libbus Lewis on the third play of the encounter that brought the only score of the fray and Carnegie's third win out of three starts.

The whole story of the game is told in that first feverish moment after the opening whistle blew for Tech's captain, Red Stewart, to kick off to the towering, powerful looking visitors from South Bend.

Halfback Johnny Tobin, of Hunk Anderson's starting "shock troops" gathered in the ball on his own 11-yard line and scuttled to the 27-yard line before a swarm of Tartan tacklers brought him to earth in a resounding crash that knocked the oval from his hands.

Like a flash, Carnegie's right guard, Bunny Burzio, who was to be a pain in Notre Dame's neck throughout the battle, was on the pigskin, and Tech was off.

Steve Terebus, right half, lost a yard at right tackle, but on the next play, Bevevino, who once was a Notre Dame freshman quarterback, rifled a pass to Lewis, who pulled it in on the 10-yard stripe and galloped across for a touchdown. Very business-like, Stewart place-kicked the extra point.

After that first flash, not a scoring threat developed on either side, Carnegie playing safe and Notre Dame displaying probably the most woeful offensive in Irish history.

The lineup:

NO. DAME (0)	Pos.	CARN. TECH (7)

Boys Played Well, Says 'Alex'

"The boys played good football with the exception of that run by Bucky Bryan," was Coach Alexander's tribute to his mud-covered squad after the 7-0 loss to Tulane yesterday.

Coach Alex thought the Greenies did excellent blocking on the run, particularly the last "take-out" by Pepper Mintz, on which Tommy Spradling, pursuing Tech end, was bowled over several yards behind the flying Bryan.

"That was a fine run for a wet field, too," Coach Alex added. Some one informed him that Bryan was a 10-second man.

"It looked like he made it in 7 seconds," Alex stated.

Coach Alexander also thought Jack Phillips played great ball while in there and might have turned the tide of battle had he been able to elude one more tackler on that 42-yard dash.

The field was too heavy for Phillips to do any of his hard line bucking, the footing being insecure. The big boy couldn't get started.

Alexander also thought that had Tech recovered the ball closer to the goal on the fumble, she might have scored. The ball was on the 13. Tech tried a pass and it was intercepted. Asked what difference the wet field made in his opinion, Alex stated:

"I don't know; on a fast field, Bryan might have given us trouble around the ends with his speed."

But this is counterbalanced by the fact that Jack Phillips would have given the Tulane line trouble on a faster field. Chick Galloway almost got away for Tech in the last minute of play, but bumped into a blocker.

Tech outrushed the Greenies, 103 yards to 52, the mud playing havoc with both offenses. Phillips and Dean averaged 37 yards on 16 kicks and Bryan and Simon, of Tulane, 36 yards on 19 kicks.

Purdue Defeats Chicago in Rain

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—(UP)—Purdue University today handed Chicago a 14-to-0 defeat before 15,000 spectators in a heavy downpour of rain.

It was the first conference game of the season for the Maroons. The Boilermakers played Minnesota to a 7-to-7 tie last Saturday.

The veteran Purdue backfield, Pardonner, Hecker, Carter and Purvis, proved too much for the Maroons and the Chicago line was torn to shreds.

The Boilermakers had a decided edge. Purdue made 282 yards from scrimmage, while Chicago was limited to 61. Fumbles, because of the unfavorable playing conditions, were frequent. Purdue managed to recover four out of five of its fumbles, while Chicago retrieved but one out of four.

TIGER RETURNS TO OLD PLACE IN GRID PICTURE

Garry LeVan Leads Team; 35,000 Cheer Great Victory.

By Edward J. Neil.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 21.—(AP) Princeton came back today, riding the might of half-dozen dazzling sophomore ball-carriers, back to the days when the roar of the Tiger was the most fearsome sound on the football fields of the east.

While 35,000 yelled in mad delight from the tiers of the huge Palmer stadium, the youthful pupils of Fritz Crisler, headed by a 150-pound package of explosives named Garry Le Van, battered Columbia's powerful Lions into a 20-to-0 defeat and wrote down the first major victory Princeton has scored in five years.

GREAT DAY.

Not since Princeton beat Yale 12 to 2 in 1928 have the ivy-covered walls of Old Nassau heard such frantic cheering, nor the faithful who stuck through one year of disaster after another seen a Tiger eleven so saturated with power, skill, and fight.

The Tigers ran up all their points in the first two periods as Le Van, a little fellow from Steubenville, Ohio, whose pockets must have been full of rocks when he weighed in at 153, personally accounted for two touchdowns, one on a glittering 55-yard runback of a punt near the close of the opening quarter.

It was Columbia's first defeat of the season, the worst since Lou Little took over the Lions' helm three years ago to do for the New Yorkers what Crisler, brought here from Minnesota as the first non-graduate head coach in Princeton history, apparently has done for the Tigers.

FIRST PLAY.

The first play probably decided the result as Sam Maniaci, Columbia fullback, grabbed the opening kickoff, and raced back 24 yards before Ken Fairman, a fine end, smashed him down so hard he fumbled. Fairman smothered the ball on the 29-yard line. The Tigers promptly cut loose with everything in the book. Columbia reeled backward, was scored on, and never again did get back in the ball game.

The game ended a two-game home-and-home series that resumed a rivalry begun in 1874. Columbia won last year, 20 to 7, but has beaten the Tigers only twice in 14 matches.

The lineup:

COLUMBIA	Pos.	PRINCETON
McDowell	L. E.	Fairman

Phillips Goes 42 Yards on Tech's First Threat in Tulane Game

JACK PHILLIPS, IN CIRCLE, ALMOST SCORES FOR TECH SATUDAY, BUT WAS STOPPED AT 10-YARD LINE. Photo by George Cornett yard line or thereabouts when the sward is green and dry. When it is wet, soggy and slippery it is well-nigh impossible.

BUCKY BRYAN'S RUN WINS GAME

EXTRA-PUNCH.

The game might have had one extra-punch. On the last play of the game Chick Galloway was almost away. Likely he would have scored had the footing been dry. As it was he bumped into one of his own players and was caught from behind.

And the whistle blew.

The figures will show that Tech gained 103 yards from scrimmage to 52 for Tulane. It lacked but one yard of being exactly twice as much yardage.

Tech carried back punts 125 yards to 120 for Tulane. And this becomes all the more amazing when one considers that Tulane is credited with 100 yards on the one-touchdown play.

This means that Tulane returned punts a mere 20 yards. Shorty Roberts lugged them back 125 yards yet you will find his name in no headlines. It was Bucky Bryan who in one run gave Tulane 100 yards in kicks returned, who did the damage.

The first downs were restricted to two, each team getting that many and getting them in the second quarter. The punting was superb for the rainy day. Jack Phillips averaged 37 yards on 16 punts and Tulane's two kickers had an average of 36 yards on 19 tries.

THE PAY-OFF.

Tech won in everything but touchdowns. Which is the only thing that counts.

There were two great runs. Jack Phillips ran 42 yards and was caught at the Tulane 10. Bucky Bryan ran 100 yards and was not caught at all.

And therein lies the story of the game.

It was perhaps the best game Tech has played. And the mud and the rain made it so that we know very little about either team.

There is just one thing we do know. And that is that Bucky Bryan can run.

MERCER AT PEAK AGAINST GEORGIA

The old theory that two big, tough tackles can stop or clog a Notre Dame attack was certainly true in the cases of Messrs. Olsen and Camp. They were smashing through and stopping many plays before they reached the scrimmage line and the secondary was coming in to aid them. The guards, Bell and Reddick, also played exceptionally well, observers thought, as did Cotton Harrison and Nat Reasar at ends.

Russell thought Chapman, of Georgia, one of the finest fullbacks he ever saw. With his 200 pounds of brawn, his great speed, his blocking and defensive ability, he is a "natural" for All-American if Georgia goes undefeated, Russell thinks. But what Lake liked best about the Winder Warhorse was his superb ability as a defensive back. Chapman also can pass and kick.

"In fact, he can do everything that a first-rate fullback ought to do," Lake declared.

CODE IN SPANISH.

In the belief that American football will be widely played throughout Mexico and possibly in some other Latin-American countries within a few years, Jose Pirata, quarterback of the University of Mexico eleven, is translating the rules and code of the game into Spanish.

Ralph McGill's Running Story of Tech Game

At a quarter to kick-off time an old-fashioned deluge struck Grant field, heralded by a clap of thunder.

It brought dismay to the several thousand already in the stands and they fled to the exits, cursing the weather man who had promised clouds but no rain.

It continued and the teams and officials took the field promptly on time.

The field was soaked. Cascades of water trickled down the concrete steps. The water splashed high as the players trotted to their positions and a vagrant sun began to shine through the clouds.

WILCOX KICKS OFF.

J. Wilcox kicked off 24 yards and Tulane had it at her own 36.

Two line plays got nowhere and Bucky Bryan punted to Shorty Roberts, who took the wet ball and returned it nine to his own 38.

Phillips got 8 at right tackle but Galloway lost 6 on a reverse. So Phillips punted and the water splashed high as the ball was downed at Tulane's 21. It was a good kick.

The rain and the sun were still at work. But rain had ruined a good football game. Tulane lost 6 and kicked to Tech's 48, a gain for the Jackets. Running plays were ruined by the rain and mud.

From the 48 Tech got nowhere and Phillips punted to the 9 but it was called back and Tech penalized 15 for holding. Phillips, from his 35, got the ball back to Tulane's 26, another good boot.

On second down came the first Tulane fumble. Bryan dropped the slippery ball and punted on next play.

Shorty Roberts took it running backwards, a daring maneuver, but he held it as the crowd yelled. Hardy got one leg and it was Tech at her own 36.

Phillips punted to the Tulane 26. It was that sort of game. Spradling came in for Slocumb at left end. Tech was evidently planning to pass, when the ball was hers again.

BATHROOM SCENE.

The rain was about through. Time was taken out and the players dried off with towels. It was a bathroom scene right before everyone.

Tulane kicked out and Roberts was downed at his own 41.

The rain picked up again and seemed to be winning with the silly sun, which was still trying to shine.

Tech's punt stopped at Tulane's 17. Phillips was doing some excellent kicking with a wet, muddy ball. He was keeping Tulane down there.

As an example Bryan's punt was returned 7 yards to Tulane's 49. It had been a gradual gain on each exchange.

Phillips, a country boy, couldn't roll up his sleeves, so he had them torn off at the elbows. The boy was going to work.

The first pass, this one to Galloway, was incomplete, but Tech was offside. It was still first down. So Phillips kicked to Tulane's 22.

The quarter was up with the kick. Neither side had even threatened to score; the mud had made it one of those kicking affairs.

There was not the suggestion of a first down in that quarter.

SECOND QUARTER.

Bryan tried twice, but he was temporarily shackled by Georgia rain.

Shorty Roberts, the big thrill in the small package, hauled the Tulane punt back 11 yards to Tulane's 43.

Phillips, trying for a corner, missed with his kick and it was over the line and Tulane's at her own 20.

Tulane's offense, which involves handling the ball quite a lot, was in leg irons made of mud.

Roberts took the inevitable punt and got back six despite his fumble. It was at his own 44.

Bryan made a free catch at his own 14.

And then, after two tries had made a yard, "Pepper" Mintz came a tearing out of the mud for 9 yards and the first down of the game.

And then, after Bryan had made 3 at left tackle, Mintz contributed the second fumble of the game and Bryan kicked to Roberts, who got it back to the Tulane 49.

PECKING AWAY.

The boys were just pecking away here and there, trying to find some footing and a place to run.

Phillips fumbled but it was after he had dropped to one knee and it was still Tech's ball.

And then, ladies and gentlemen, old Dame Fortune appeared.

It was one of those Tech accidents, so called, which helped win the Auburn game. Your reporter prefers to call them alert football.

Phillips dropped back to punt. The ball came back a bit low. He juggled the wet ball.

It was up to him to decide whether to risk the kick. He sized up the field and set out around his own right end. He was loose and cut back to center and then to his right again, going down the sideline.

Bucky Bryan evaded three Tech men, a neat bit of football, and stopped Phillips at the Tulane 10-yard line, an even 42-yard gain.

The first play was Roberts on a spinner and it got nothing. A forward pass, Phillips to Spradling, was good for 3 yards.

Phillips was stopped in the line.

FINAL TRY.

And then came the fourth and final, a desperate pass by Phillips which was incomplete in the end zone to Slocumb.

The first threat was over.

Bryan was stopped but "Pepper" Mintz got 11 yards at his own left end for Tulane's second first down. Bryan fumbled, the third one for Tulane, and lost 3. Mintz got them back but Bryan punted and Roberts returned 5 to his own 35.

Chick Galloway mud-horsed it 9 yards off his right tackle and Phillips made the first down. Tech's second. That made the first downs all even.

Then came Tech's first lost fumble—Roberts fumbled and Hardy recovered. The Tulane stands screamed with joy but the whistle ended their joy and the half.

Each team had made two first downs. Tech had made the one touchdown threat. But Tech had kept the ball on the fringe of Tulane territory for most of the game.

Phillips and Mintz were the offensive stars.

THIRD QUARTER.

Tech came out with silk pants and bright new jerseys.

And then it came, bang!—the thrill that comes once in a lifetime no matter who does it—a 100-yard run for a touchdown with Bucky Bryan carrying the kick-off back for a touchdown.

The kick was high and fast and Bryan came surging right down the middle behind his wedge, shot clear at the Tech 45 and set out with Spradling closing in.

And then, perfect football again, "Pepper" Mintz sliced in and blocked out Spradling and Bryan ran on for the touchdown—100 yards and a few inches. The first time Atlanta ever saw it done and the last time, it is hoped, it will be seen by a hostile team. Mintz added the point and it was 7 to 0 for Tulane.

Tech kicked of again and Tulane was stopped, Bryan punting to Tech at the Tech 43.

Phillips punted, after three plays and got but five yards, to Tulane's 12.

ANOTHER THRILL.

Bryan and Loftin got 6 yards and then another thrill exploded unexpectedly.

Spradling and Williams blocked Bryan's kick and Williams fell on it to give Tech the ball at Tulane's 9-yard line.

It was Tech's second chance.

The Green Wave drowned Phillips without a gain when he tried at left tackle.

Chick Galloway made 5 yards at his own right tackle.

On the same play he made two more yards and it was fourth down and 2 yards to go.

Phillips hit the line at his own right guard and was tossed back when within a half-yard of the goal, the Tessier brothers stopping him.

Bryan kicked out and Roberts hauled it back 8 yards to Tulane's 28. But the officials conferred and imposed a 10-yard penalty on Tech, the foul occuring on Roberts return.

Phillips' pass to Galloway was incomplete and Phillips punted to Tulane's 8-yard line. There was no return.

Bryan kicked out of bounds at his own 40.

Roberts lost 4 and then fumbled a short pass behind the line. Phillips punted to Tulane's 1-yard line where it was deaded by Spradling.

It was another chance to block a kick with a touchdown probable.

It was half-blocked by Williams and Phillips caught the ball and held it despite a collision with Galloway.

It was Tech's ball on the Tulane 13.

INTERCEPTED PASS.

A pass, flat to Tech's right, was intercepted by Joe Loftin at the 13.

It was a short-lived chance but another was coming up. Bryan's kick was hurried and he punted to Roberts, who returned 6 to Tulane's 39.

Martin replaced Galloway.

Two players, Martin and Davis, got 5 yards and Martin slipped and fell on a reverse at right tackle, losing 3.

Phillips punted for the corner and Spradling again deaded the ball at Tulane's 1-yard line. Tech was using the punt as an offensive weapon with much more effectiveness than running plays.

The quarter ended with the kick. There were no first downs in the third quarter.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Bryan got off a good kick from that tight position, booting it 41 yards to his own 42. He placed the kick well to avoid any danger of return.

From there Martin lost 3 at his own right end. Hardy got him. Davis failed at left tackle and Phillips punted out of bounds at Tulane's 17. Tulane gained on that exchange. It was the farthest out from their own goal that Tulane had been in the second half.

Phillips stopped Bryan for a 2-yard gain and Mintz added 2 more. And then Bryan got his toe under one and booted it out at Tech's 38.

Dean replaced Phillips. This meant that Tech had realized the futility of trying running plays and was sending in the best punter in Tech livery. Tulane had pulled out of the hole with Bryan's two kicks.

Dean juggled the pass from center while in punt formation and then dropped it but fell on it for a loss of 6 yards.

Tulane was in good position for the remainder of the quarter if it was to be a kicking duel.

Dean punted 43 yards to Tulane's 28 but this was far enough out to be safe in so far as kicks were concerned.

Bryan, after two plays, kicked 32 yards and Roberts returned 11.

WET BALL HANDLING.

Roberts had been doing a lot of good work as safety man back there. He had caught the wet balls and returned them well for short distances, helping materially in the punt superiority which Tech had most of the game.

Dean tried a buck and gained 2 yards. Two Tech passes were incomplete. The time was flying fast and Tech was trying to pull the game out of the fire.

The penalty set them back 5. They were muddy and desperate. Dean's punt was rushed but he got it out of bounds, 36 yards to the Tulane 17.

Loftin and Mintz had a net loss of 3 yards on two tries. Bryan lost 2 at right end. It was fourh down and Tulane sent Bob Simon, a tackle who had gone in for Bob Tessier, back to punt.

He did it, bagging the ball down to Tech's 46. It was a 57-yard punt.

Dean fumbled and recovered for a loss of 5 yards. Two plays failed and Dean tried a pass which "Pepper" Mintz intercepted. He ran it 7 yards to Tech's 33.

This was the second time Tulane had been in Tech's territory, a fumble having been previously recovered at Tech's 47.

Mintz and Bryan lost a yard in two tries.

And then came Tulane's first forward pass try. Mintz to Kyle. Dean batted it down. It was a "safety" try in that it was short over the center.

Bryan punted over the goal line and with 6 minutes left to play Tech started a last drive.

Galloway failed to gain. Dean passed to Slocumb for 9 yards. Another one, to Gibson, was batted down. Tech claimed interference but it was not allowed. McDaniel batted it down.

MINUTES FLY.

Dean punted 31 to Tulane's 40, where it was downed.

Tech took out time. Perkerson replaced Davis. There were two minutes left to play. It was Tulane's ball at her own 40.

Loftin failed to gain. Bob Simon, back to punt, fumbled and Mintz recovered. He got it off on the next try.

Peterson picked up the ball and ran it back 30 yards, almost getting away, but being downed at the Tulane 30 as the game ended.

Tulane had won with one of those flashing runs, 100 yards to a touchdown.

It was Tulane's fifth straight victory over Tech in 10 games and squares the series, Tech having won the first five.

IOWA WHIPS BADGERS, 26-7

IOWA STADIUM, IOWA CITY, Iowa, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Three long years of bitter disappointment were wiped out today by a powerful and deceptive Iowa football eleven, which overwhelmed Wisconsin, 26 to 7, before 39,000 home-coming fans.

The largest crowd ever to attend a football game in the state of Iowa was thrilled as Iowa gave an exhibition that sent old grads into a frenzy of joy they had not known since the championship days of 1921-22.

From the opening whistle the hard-charging Iowans dominated the play except for one brief spell in the third period when Wisconsin passes were indirectly responsible for a lone touchdown.

TUSKEGEE TIES NORTHERN FOE

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—The Golden Tiger of Tuskegee and the Green Bulldog of Wilberforce battled to a 0-0 stalemate in a quagmire of mud on Soldier field before a loyal crowd of 4,000 which braved the elements to witness the bitter struggle Saturday afternoon.

Quarterback Mobley, of Tuskegee was easily the outstanding backfield star of the day, with Jack Hart, of Wilberforce, and Jenkins, his teammate, running a close second for the honors.

A punting duel between D. Rains, of Wilberforce, and H. Adams, of Tuskegee, featured a large portion of the game, due to the fact that running with the ball and passing was hazardous in the mud and rain.

The Tuskegee forward wall reveled its tremendous strength in the final quarter when Wilberforce was held for no gain on four successive thrusts at the Tiger goal line from the 1-yard marker.

PANTHER TEAM IS BOTTLED UP MOST OF DAY

Tenner, End, Crosses Goal Early in First Period.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Pittsburgh's prowling Panthers were blasted out of the national football picture by a powerful Minnesota eleven which scored an astounding 7-to-3 victory over the favored easterners today. Attendance was 28,000.

A whirlwind attack that shook Francis "Pug" Lund loose for a near touchdown run of 60 yards in the third quarter followed a furious assault in the first period when Minnesota gained a lead that Pitt couldn't overcome.

In the waning minutes of the second period, the Panthers made a costly fumble on the Gopher 4-yard line. Sebastian missed the pass from center for a 5-yard loss. Weinstock, on the next play, kicked a field goal from placement.

Minnesota launched a driving, hard-hitting offensive that sent Bob Tenner, Gopher end, over the Panthers' goal before the first period was eight minutes old. Bevan, guard, kicked the extra point.

Barring their second period threat, Pittsburgh, which crushed Navy last week, found its attack stemmed in every quarter.

Gobblers Defeat Richmond, 7 to 0

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Virginia Tech, successfully but with difficulty, continued its defense of the state title today with a 7-to-0 victory over a stubborn University of Richmond eleven in one of the season's hardest-fought games in Richmond stadium.

Al Casey's punting was Tech's mainstay both in defense and offense. His long kicks retaliated for the telling running attack of the Richmond Spiders.

The only touchdown went to Tech midway the third period after the Techmen were given the ball on the Spider 5-yard line on a penalty for slugging. Ray Mills place-kicked the extra point.

Philly Head Denies Chuck Klein Sale

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Gerald Nugent, president of the Phillies, of the National league, refused tonight to either affirm or deny a report that Chuck Klein, slugging Phils outfielder, had been obtained by the Chicago Cubs.

Buckler, Johnson Lead Army to Victory Over Illinois, 6 to 0

FIRST PERIOD ASSAULT GIVES CADETS EDGE

Stancook Bucks Ball Over From Seven-Yard Line To Win.

MUNICIPAL STADIUM, CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 21.—(UP)—Jack Buckler and Paul Johnson raised havoc with a heavier Illinois line to give Army a well-earned and hard-fought 6-to-0 victory over Bob Zuppke's football team here today.

Taking advantage of a poor kick in the first period, the West Pointers opened up an offensive that swept the Illini off their feet. Taking the ball on their own 42-yard stripe, Johnson, Ashland, Ohio, fired the first gun in the Army attack with a sprint around end for 9 yards.

After Stancock made a first down on Illinois' 46, Buckler took to the air and passed to Brown for another first down. A 10-yard dash by Johnson and another pass by Buckler to Burlingame put the ball on the 7-yard marker.

From there Stancock pounded the line until he went over for a touchdown from the 2-yard line. Brown failed to kick the goal, but it didn't matter, as the scoring for the afternoon was over.

Last-Minute Rally Aids Navy Victory

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 21.—(AP) With the score tied and backed up against the goal line by a driving University of Virginia team, Walter (Red) Baumberger, 165-pound Navy left halfback from Glendale, W. Va., intercepted a forward pass in the middle of the fourth quarter and ran 95 yards today for a touchdown to give the Midshipmen a 13-to-7 victory.

Virginia had marched 21 yards from the Navy's 36-yard stripe and seemed headed for a touchdown when Eugene Munger, right halfback, faded back and shot a pass intended for John Leys, the Cavalier's left end. Baumberger, standing on his own 5-yard line, leaped high in the air, seized the ball and started down the field along the sidelines. About midfield he reversed to his right, slipped pass two Cavaliers and dashed across the goal line. Harold H. Tarsen, Navy substitute fullback, failed to kick goal.

Morehouse Beats Paine College, 18-0

Morehouse College turned back Paine College, Augusta negro school, today 18 to 0.

The teams appeared evenly matched in the early part of the game, but the powerful Maroon attack was too much for the fighting Augusta school, and Paine was gradually worn into submission.

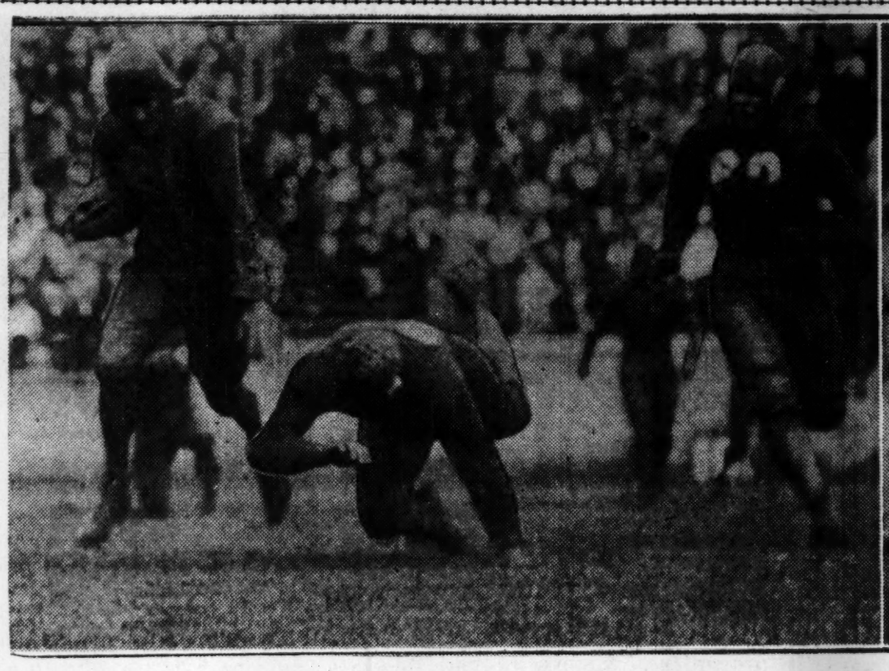

Lamar led the attack and thrilled the fans with his broken field running.

Singin' in the Rain--- But Not for Tech

Bucky Bryan's Dash, Tulane's One-Legged Cheer Leader Steal Show.

By Jimmy Jones.

The cinder track that circles Grant Field was turned into a moat by the cloudburst that came just before game time. All it needed to complete a perfect aquatic picture was a couple of swans swimming around on it.

Some boisterous gentlemen who bought seats on the 50-yard line were dangling their legs just above the water and singing, River, Stay 'Way From My Door.

It was a great day for the mudders when the Jackets and Greenies took to the lagoon that was a football field and the rain-soaked gallery finished hoisting umbrellas and magazine covers for protection from the pelting rain drops.

The rival coaches, Mr. Alexander, of Tech, and Ted Cox, of Tulane, were looking around in their backfields for a good mudhorse. But they couldn't tell the mudders from the sprinters, what with all of them looking like so many plaster models. The cloudburst had come so suddenly that the players didn't have time to put on mud cleats.

One gentleman of the press, whose vision wasn't beclouded by the rain drops, swore that he saw a Tulane player in the Tech huddle. . . . And that a little later, Tech got even by putting two men in the Tulane huddle.

The first quarter soon developed into a game of kick-as-kick-can with both teams exchanging punts furiously. Bucky Bryan, of Tulane, and "Shorty" Roberts, of Tech, rival safety men, would make a swell pair of centerfielders. They handled the slippery ball perfectly and usually managed to splash back a few yards with it.

Once "Shorty" Roberts stopped running and began using the American crawl stroke.

The only relief from the punting came when big Jack Phillips broke loose from his moorings and splashed 42 yards down to Tulane's 10-yard line. Tulane held and the boys returned to their soccer, kicking the ball around some more. The punters had to shake the mud off their fingers as if it were fly-paper before taking the snap.

The first half ended 0-0 when neither team could overcome the water hazards.

Between halves, the Tulane band, clad in green like Robin Hood's merry men, gave the crowd a serenade.

They marched around the field, led by a capering drum major who was about the hottest thing of the season in his line.

Everytime the trombone player "trommed" a note, water would fly from the slide. The drummer had kept his drum covered with a piece of canvas and it was dry and taut. A standard bearer carried the stars and stripes at the head of the column.

Tulane, very original in such things, brought along a one-legged cheer leader. He gyrated around fairly well, too. There was no evidence of the red-headed Betty Co-ed who used to lead the Tulane cheers. Maybe the red heads have gone out of style, along with the republican heads.

The Tech band came out and did a waltz around the field, too, making it a draw.

The Jackets emerged for the second half with dry jersies and silk pants —not the transparent kind, however.

Not even the elements could discourage scouts. There were three just in front of the press box, trying to keep their notes dry. There were Sam McAllister and Donald Jones, of Auburn, scouting Tulane, and Al Howard, of North Carolina shadowing Tech.

"Tich" Tichenor, who scouts the officials, was in the press box jotting down notes on their work. At the next meeting of the southern officials, "Tich," the spotter, will present evidence both good and bad. Some of it will make the officials' ears red.

They will be calling Bucky Bryan, the Shreveport Flyer, "100 Yards" Bryan now. He took Tech's opening kickoff on his own goal line and did the stretch downfield in nothing flat. Several Tech men were left flat in his path by Tulane blockers.

Tech recovered a fumble on Tulane's 13-yard line and Jack Phillips and Galloway started mauling the line. But the Wave held and kicked out, amid the great glee of the New Orleans cheering section.

The Tulane Wave was pretty good, but nothing compared to the one that old J. Pluvius put on the field.

Across the field sat the sponsors, looking very sweet and calm with their flowers. They can give them to Bucky Bryan if Tulane wins this football game. (And he did.)

John Scafide, former star guard of the Wave Rose Bowl team, was sitting among the spectators, watching the battle in the mud. Don Zimmerman was not present.

LANIER ELEVEN BEATS SMITHIES

A place-kick by Captain Jones, following a touchdown, was the margin of Lanier High's 7-to-6 victory over Tech High, Saturday night at Ponce de Leon park before a crowd of 3,000 spectators.

A 36-yard forward pass, Edwards to Jones, followed by Edwards' short line plunges, gave Lanier a touchdown in the third quarter.

Tech High drove to a touchdown early in the fourth period but Ellis' placement was low and wide, giving the Macon Poets a one-point victory in a renewal of relations between the bitter rivals.

SMITHIES LEAD.

Tech High outgained Lanier both in yardage and 10 first downs to 7, but the Poets, after getting a 7-point lead in the third period, elected to play a defensive game for the most part. The move proved a wise one, although Tech High twice drove within scoring distance but was held for downs.

George Edwards, the speedy Lanier halfback, was the outstanding player in the game. He made a majority of the Lanier gains and threw a long pass to Jones.

Heywood Dowling and Norman Perry were the offensive stars for the Smithies. Newlands, Smithie fullback, did some excellent blocking throughout the game.

A 16-yard sprint and four short gains by Edwards were the outstanding plays in the first quarter. Early in the second period Perry dashed 18 yards behind fine blocking and later made another 26-yard sprint for the only sensational offensive plays.

Failing to get within scoring distance in the first half, Tech High opened up with a spirited drive in the third quarter that carried the ball to Lanier's 2-yard line, here it as lost on downs. Lanier punted and the Smithies drove back to the 18-yard line and again lost the ball on downs.

TOUCHDOWN DRIVE.

Lanier's touchdown drive started on its own 18-yard line. Edwards ripped off 7 and 17 in successive plays. Edwards then passed 36 to Jones on Tech High's 7-yard line. Edwards lost fine, but kept hammering away until he made the touchdown on fourth down with a dive of more than 4 yards.

whistles blew almost as often as the officials' whistles and the officials were doing a lot of whistling today.

Bert Bibee, center; Pug Vaughn, halfback, and Beattie Feathers stood out for the Vols. Hupke, Walker and Howell hogged the Alabama honors.

STATISTICS.

The first downs were equally divided with each team making eight. However, the Tide led in the major departments of play. Alabama gained 169 yards from scrimmage against 139 for the Vols. The Tide lost 12 yards from scrimmage for a net 143, while Tennessee lost 16 for a net 127.

Feathers averaged 39 1-2 yards to lead the punters, while Howell punted for an average of 36 yards.

Walker led the individual yardage with 71 yards, and Howell was next with a net 47, with a loss of 10 yards, making a total of 57. Feathers led the Tennessee team with 39 yards.

It Was Quite a Day, Yesterday! Wasn't It?

The Upsets Fell Thick and Fast and Hardly a Human Being But Suffered.

By Ralph McGill.

What a day was yesterday!

It was expected to be one of those football days where the upsets and the unexpected run pell-mell over one another.

And it exceeded even its fondest dreams. Did yesterday. What a day.

They would suggest that Bernie Bierman resign, would they? Well, take that and that and that. And that.

Minnesota, coached by Bernie Bierman, gave the powerful Pitt Panthers, rated the strongest team in the east, a 7-to-3 shellacking.

(You will suggest that Bierman resign, eh? Take that.)

And Southern California, dear old Southern Cal, coached by Howard (The Great Coach Speaks) Jones, was tied by Oregon State, rated as one of the deuces in the west coast football deck.

And THAT was a surprise. Because the word was that Howard Jones had it again.

RECORD CROWD.

Michigan was expected to win but hardly by two touchdowns. And some 90,000 people saw the game. That's a crowd. Try that in your stadium sometime. It's the sort of crowd that business managers of athletic associations dream about.

Vanderbilt was thought to be weak but not weak enough to be tied. 7 and 7, by Mississippi State. There is scant comfort in that score for the Commodore partisans. Because both Tennessee and Alabama, scheduled for the Commodores, won by three touchdowns from the Mississippi Staters with subs in the lineup. It appears to be a very bad season for the Gold and Black of Vanderbilt.

And Auburn—rated a cinch to win—lost, 19 to 6, to George Washington. That was the team which Clemson tied. And Clemson is the team which Tech romped through to win as she pleased, the score being 49 to 2 when it could easily have been 89 to 2.

(And then you wonder why the football dopesters go home and speak harshly to the wife and maybe refuse to speak to the children. If any. It's days like yesterday that do things like that.

IRISH FADING.

Notre Dame lost, 7 to 0, to Carnegie Tech. The South Bend team, once known as the South Bend Simoon, not only lost but was out-smarted, out-played and failed to complete a single forward pass. Dismiss that with a gesture. What we need is a revolution. Or do we have one?

And Illinois was supposed to beat Army. But Army wins, 6 to 0.

And Navy, rated as a stronger team than Army, barely beats Virginia, 13 to 7. Virginia is the team which Ohio State beat, 75 to 0, with the subs in there most of the way. You explain all these things.

Alabama's 12-to-6 victory over Tennessee was not unexpected. It was one of those games that might have gone either way. It seems that Alabama's cripples could play. Tennessee's couldn't.

And W. & L. won, 7 to 0, from Kentucky. This was a mild upset.

UNBEATEN TEAMS.

Florida won, as expected, from North Carolina.

This leaves Florida and Georgia the only undefeated teams in the Southeastern conference. Georgia meets Florida on November 4, the next week after the N. Y. U. game, which is scheduled for next Saturday at Athens.

And when Harry Mehre, Georgia's head coach, saw all the upsets of Saturday, he said, "Ask me if I am tickled to death to have won by one point from Mercer on Friday." He is tickled.

As I said, what a day was yesterday. You can have days like that. I'll take spinach.

Alert Iowa Eleven Defeats Wisconsin

IOWA FIELD, IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct., 21.—(UP)—The University of Iowa proved to the Big Ten today that its early-season victory over Northwestern was no fluke, by beating a fighting University of Wisconsin team 26 to 7.

A crowd of 42,500 that packed every seat in Iowa's stadium for the first time since it was erected in 1929 watched Iowa charge Wisconsin off its feet and break through at unexpected moments with brilliant scoring plays.

Iowa won because every member of the team was alert to intercept Wisconsin passes, and make breaks that put the Hawkeyes in scoring position.

HOWARD WINS.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 21.—(UP)—The Howard Bulldogs launched a counter air attack this afternoon to defeat the Southwest Lynx for the second consecutive year. The score was 26 to 7.

AUBURN LOSES AT WASHINGTON BY 19-6 SCORE

Tigers Unable To Bolt Rush of Heavy Colonial Team.

By Don J. Kirkley,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Auburn's powerful Plainsmen were chained to their own goal posts today by a mighty George Washington team that turned on full power in the final period to romp home to a 19-to-6 decision in the first meeting of the two teams.

Driving off to a fine start and a touchdown in the first three minutes Auburn got away as if the game were in the bag, to watch the tide turn the other way in the next three quarters and blast the hopes of Alabama Poly, tied in 1932 for the championship of the Southern conference.

HUSKY COLONIALS.

George Washington's husky Colonials proved their might with ease, chalking up 17 first downs to five and piling up 286 yards gained from scrimmage as contrasted with 87 for Auburn in their three touchdowns.

After the first few minutes, the game was played far inside Auburn's territory. Firpo Phipps, vaunted leader of Auburn's attack, was smothered by a hard-tackling, fast rushing Colonial line which broke up Plainsmen plays almost as fast as they began.

A Colonial fumble opened the gate to the only touchdown for Auburn. Holmes recovering the sliding ball on George Washington's 31-yard stripe. Phipps and Rogers moved it up and over and Ariail's wide kick left the score 6-0, Auburn.

Early in the second period, the Colonials took the lead, with Baker intercepting a pass and plowing 15 yards from midfield to put the ball on Auburn's 39. Two plays later, Baker broke off left tackle for 34 yards and touchdown on a reverse spinner and added the extra point by a placement.

Twice in the third period, Auburn staved off scoring threats inside its 5-yard line, George Washington hammering at the Plainsmen's goal after Leemans had intercepted an Auburn pass on the Alabamians' 35-yard marker.

PASSES FUTILE.

Auburn's passing game was futile. Seven were tried, two intercepted and none completed. George Washington used 12, saw Auburn snatch one and picked up 49 yards on the three completed. One was a 32-yard heave from McCarver to W. Parrish that left the ball on Auburn's 12-yard line at the end of the third period.

Duke Finds Tartar In Davidson Team

DAVIDSON, N. C., Oct. 21.—(AP)—After an early scare, Duke's regulars were rushed onto the field and in an impressive second period performance rolled up 13 points, which proved to be the victory margin over Davidson here today. The Blue Devils won, 19 to 7.

Eyeing the Kentucky game next Saturday, Coach Wallace Wade started Duke's second team but jerked it after Davidson had marched to the 2-yard line. Again in the second half, when the Wildcats scored, he sent his regulars in.

In the second period Cornelius led two long Duke marches for scores. Cox made the touchdowns, going over from the 8-yard line for the first one and driving 1-foot for the second. Davidson fumbled the opening kickoff of the second half and the Blue Devils went 16 yards to score, Alexander making the touchdown.

Oklahoma Rallies To Beat Iowa State

NORMAN, Okla., Oct. 21.—(AP)—A hard-tackling Oklahoma eleven rallied from an impending defeat in a fourth quarter offensive to score two touchdowns and win its first Big Six conference game from Iowa State, 19 to 7, here today.

A series of fumbles threatened to nullify many of the Sooners' promising drives.

Equipoise Races Winooka Nov. 7

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 21.—(UP)—Cornelius V. Whitney's Equipoise, the undisputed American handicap champion, and Winooka, the Australian horse, will meet in a match race on November 7 at Belmont park.

Whitney wanted the race at one mile, while Rufe Naylor, manager of Winooka, held out for six furlongs. They compromised and set the distance at seven furlongs.

Georgia Is Prepared for Invasion of N. Y. U. Eleven Saturday

VIOLETS WON LAST SEASON AT NEW YORK

Tech Meets North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Petrels Play Here.

By Jack Troy.

When Georgia's Bulldogs are good they are very good, but when they are MAD they're better. And they are mad enough right now to go Violet picking in a big way this coming Saturday at Sanford field, Athens, when New York University's preshrunk Violets will be in full bloom.

This is the game, the publicity bureau at Athens reported, when the violet shirts of the New Yorkers are to form an eye-pleasing contrast with the surrounding shrubbery and blooming flowers of the south's prettiest stadium.

But that is all forgotten now, no doubt, in view of Georgia's narrow escape from the bruising clutches of the Mercer Bears.

CLEAN RECORD.

It is all very well to have football toggery and scenery to match, but Georgia has an unsmirched football record to keep at least a foot ahead of the gridiron sheriffs.

And, consequently, you can make out your own ticket. The Georgia-N. Y. U. game leads them all in the deep south Saturday. N. Y. U. won last year's game, 13 to 7.

Georgia Tech travels into a land heavy with the aroma of tobacco, meeting North Carolina's Tarheels at Chapel Hill.

The only Southeastern conference games bring together Florida and Tennessee at Knoxville, Auburn and Tulane at New Orleans, and L. S. U. and Vanderbilt at Baton Rouge.

ALABAMA, FORDHAM.

Alabama heads east to meet Fordham's formidable Rams in an intersectional game; Kentucky plays Duke in an inter-conference contest; Mississippi engages Clemson in another inter-conference affray; Sewanee comes up against Cumberland at Sewanee; Mississippi State takes on Southwestern at Starkville, and North Carolina State meets Davidson at Raleigh.

Mercer's Bears, who held Georgia to a 13-12 victory last Friday, meet Furman's Purple Hurricane at Greenville. Oglethorpe plays at home, facing Erskine at Ponce de Leon park.

Other interesting games include Centenary and Texas Christian at Shreveport, Chattanooga and Mississippi College at Chattanooga, Centre and Xavier at Cincinnati, Howard and Milsaps at Birmingham, Birmingham-Southern and Jacksonville Normal at Birmingham Friday, South Carolina and V. P. I. at Blacksburg, William and Mary and Georgetown at Washington.

SPEER BATTLES JONES TUESDAY

Frank Speer will seek to climb another notch nearer the top in the wrestling game when he meets Paul Jones at the city auditorium Tuesday night on Matchmaker Henry Weber's mat program.

The former Jacket football star has been making rapid strides in the wrestling game and is one of the outstanding figures on the mat today. He defeated Jack Zarnos in his last match here and displayed an improved repertoire of wrestling tricks. Speer is anxious to meet Jimmy Londos, the champion, and has been training faithfully for his match with Jones to improve his chances for a championship test.

Speer's opponent is one of the most popular wrestlers ever to appear here and is known as the Texas Hook and Scissors King. He uses skillful tactics rather than brawn in the ring and this is advanced by many as a reason for his popularity.

he ancient argument of mat fans which involves brawn against skill will be answered in a measure by the Speer-Jones match. They are exponents of the "opposites" on the mat and a furious battle should result.

A good semi-windup match will be announced by Matchmaker Weber which should rival the main match for action.

Wrestling fans are urged to purchase their tickets in advance by Matchmaker Weber to avoid the last-minute rush at the box office. Tickets have been placed on sale at the Piedmont Hatters.

Middle Georgia Defeats Teachers

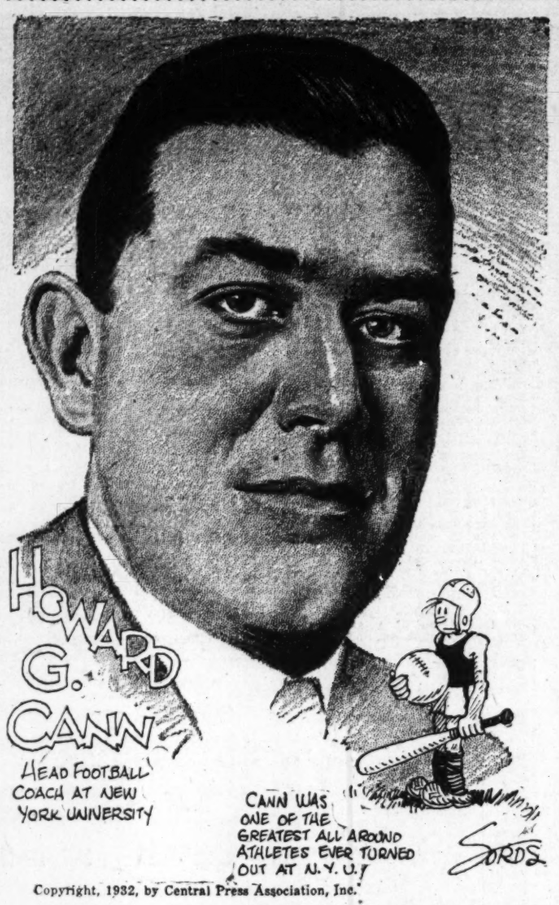

TROY, Ala., Oct. 21.—Middle Georgia College defeated Alabama Teachers College yesterday, 19 to 6. Middle Georgia completely outclassed the Teachers. Linder, Scarborough, Watson scored the three touchdowns for the Georgians. The playing of Captain Tennett and Goins, of the Middle Georgia team, was outstanding in the line.

Returns Saturday

Copyright, 1932, by Central Press Association, Inc.

Coach Howard Cann, of the New York University eleven, who will return to Georgia, where he achieved athletic fame during his collegiate days, next Saturday, when he leads his Violet eleven against the Georgia Bulldogs at Athens. Cann was a member of the Violet basketball team which won the national A. A. U. championship tourney at the city auditorium here in 1919. He was also voted the most valuable player in the tourney and has been hailed by many as the greatest basketball player of all time. Cann succeeded Chick Meehan as head coach of the Violets and led his charges to a 13-7 victory over the Bulldogs last year in New York.

Boyer Sees Worm's-Eye View of Petrel Game

OFFICIAL FORGETS TO LOOK; IS BLOCKED OUT

By Jack Troy.

The next time Major Count Boyer, Atlanta football official, works a game wherein the members of one team are wearing white jerseys similar to those worn by the officials, he plans to wear scarlet or purple or anything else that won't confuse the other team into thinking he is engaged in doing else than tooting his own horn when necessary.

The Major—he is a major in Uncle Samuel's reserves when he isn't just plain Count and a football official—was looking the other way when an Oglethorpe player, glimpsing the white jersey in the mass of Stetson and Oglethorpe boys, applied one of those pluperfect blocks.

THREE-POINT LANDING.

Major Boyer was left with his thoughts, reclining on his back on the damp greensward, gazing up at the stars through the haze of fog and lights on Ponce de Leon field.

"Forty years," he moaned, "or maybe it is 20 have I been officiating and never before have I been the object of a block and tackle.

"Do you want to see my operation—I mean, my wound?"

Whereupon, the major hauled his trouser leg well above his knee and bared to all who cared to see purple and blue marks—the heritage of a well-applied block.

Now, there must have been some reason, Major, why you were the innocent target of a conscientious tackle, other than the fact that you wore a white jersey and I wore a big red rose?

THROUGH STREET.

"Yes," the major admitted, "there is no fool like an old fool.

"I mean," hastily, "that for the first time as an official I was helping another try to detect holding in the line and plumb forgot to watch out for stop lights."

It seems that about the only block applied by the tackle in question was the one that laid Major Boyer away among the swe' peas.

And so Major Boyer has decided that he will put the old army drill formation into his officiating henceforth—eyes right, left and straight ahead—simultaneously.

Okay, Major.

Monroe Victorious Over Griffin, 21-7

GRIFFIN, Ga., Oct. 20.—Red Barron's Monroe Aggies defeated Griffin High, 21 to 7, here last night. Reddick and Kite were outstanding for the visitors, while Wright, who scored in the first quarter, played well for Griffin.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Central Press Association

Alex Morrison says:

Fancy insets in the faces of wood clubs are an advantage only so long as they don't become loose.

Allowing the clubhead to get wet is generally the cause of this loosening.

Your caddy may drag your clubs through wet grass or, you may be careless about making practice swings where there is moisture. This moisture also spoils the wood in your clubhead.

The heads can be dried after each shot and a coating of oil and shellac can be applied after a severe wetting but the best protection yet devised is the cloth or leather coverings now on the market.

They are well worth the price, not as another accessory, but as something mighty useful to preserve the heads of your wood clubs.

Three Players Tie In East Lake Meet

Keith Conway, Berrien Moore Jr. and J. C. Thompson shared first prize in the regular Saturday afternoon blind bogey tournament Saturday afternoon on the East Lake courses, with net scores of 84.

Second place was divided between E. R. Neely, R. E. Richards, H. J. Hopkins and George Rudolph and J. O. Wilson was given a prize of one golf ball.

Ring Cards

Sergeant Harry Nixon, light-heavyweight champion of the army, headlines the weekly wrestling card Monday night at the Howell Mill Road arena. He will meet "Dutch" Green.

John Dameron is scheduled to meet rugged Red Dugan in the semi-windup match. Lloyd Brown meets Bob Owens in the opening 45-minute three-falls match.

The arena is located on Howell Mill road and DeFoore avenue. The program will start promptly at 8:15 o'clock.

The main match on Promoter Frank Bettis' card Thursday night will bring together Sully George Harbin and George Rominoff at the Lakewood Heights arena.

The semi-final will bring together Dutch Green, of Washington, D. C., and Sergeant Harry Nixon. Bob Anderson will wrestle Red Dugan in the opening match.

WEST LAKE.

"Sarg" Nixon will meet Jack Doyle in the main go of the wrestling card at the West Lake arena Friday night.

Bob Rubble will meet Dink Almand in the semi-windup. Bob Anderson meets Red Dugan and Tiger Deadwilder meets Kid Tarpley to complete the card.

BAYLOR ENGAGES BOYS' HIGH HERE IN PREP FEATURE

Tech High Journeys to Charlotte; G. M. A. Has Off Day.

By Roy White.

Boys' High and Baylor Military Academy, of Chattanooga, will top the week's prep football card Friday night at Ponce de Leon park. Tech High pays its annual visit to Charlotte, N. C., to play Charlotte High, Saturday afternoon, and G. M. A., the other member of the city's Big Three, will have a much-needed off day.

Other games for the week are centered about the North Georgia Interscholastic conference, which has developed one of the keenest races in the history of the association.

Decatur, the champion for the past two years, plays Russell High Friday afternoon at East Point. Russell was runner-up to Decatur last year, and has lost but one game this season.

Marist, the most improved team in the conference and undefeated this season, plays North Fulton Friday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park, and Druid Hills plays Commercial Friday afternoon, the place to be decided later.

Griffin High, one of the leading teams for championship recognition, plays Gainesville High in Gainesville in another important N. G. I. C. game.

Boys' High will meet another of the strongest teams in Chattanooga when the Baylor Military Academy eleven comes to town Friday afternoon to battle the Purples Friday night at the ball park.

The Purples defeated Baylor, 14 to 0, last year during midseason and went on to win the city, state and southern prep championships.

Baylor according to all reports has a much improved team, particularly in the backfield. The Chattanooga team has plenty of scoring power and will be hard to stop.

Boys' High continues strong on the defense, but the offense is somewhat of a puzzle to the coaches. The Purples looked good against Monroe, failed to score against Gordon Institute after twice being within the shadow of the goal, came back strong and scored four touchdowns against the Central High eleven of Chattanooga, and was stopped cold Friday night by G. M. A., in one of the season's biggest upsets.

Coaches Doyal and Mizell will be in no mood for play this week, and will send the Purples through one of their hardest weeks in preparation for Friday's game. Particular attention will be given to the running attack.

In Carlisle Smith, Boys' High has one of the best passers in all prep history, and that has been the chief offensive weapon of the Purples. His punting has been above the average, and he also runs well with the ball. The remainder of the Boys' High backfield has played in and out football all season.

WINOOKA MAKES EASTERN DEBUT

By Orlo Robertson.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Thoroughbred racing, on the wane in New York and Illinois, will continue in full stride next week in Maryland, where three stakes and Winooka's delayed eastern debut at Laurel top the national program.

Winooka, the Australian invader, will display his speed in open competition for the first time in this country Wednesday, meeting three or four of America's ranking sprinters in the especially arranged $2,500 challenger purse of six furlongs. On the same day top-notch jumpers will take to the field in the twenty-second running of the $2,500 Chevy Chase handicap, over a two-mile course.

Saturday, three days before the last race of the season is run at Laurel, there will be a double feature. The pick of the turf's juveniles, including Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Singing Wood, winner of the $100,000 Belmont Futurity, and E. R. Bradley's Bazaar, victor in the Hopeful, will clash in the $2,500 Spalding Lowe Jenkins mile while many of the country's leading older horses will match strides in the $7,500 Washington handicap, decided over one and one-quarter miles.

The return of racing to Texas under legalized betting is a triumph for W. T. Waggoner and his two sons. Tom, like his father, is primarily a cattleman, but it was oil, pouring from more than 1,000 wells on the state's second largest ranch, that gave the pioneer the money to indulge in his hobby—horses.

Pigskin Puzzlers

Asked by EDDIE COLLINS
FORMER NOTRE DAME STAR

Copyright, 1933, by Central Press Association, Inc.

1—When does a scrimmage take place?

2—How many players required to be on line of scrimmage?

3—Where are the backfield men located?

4—End of O team who has gone out of bounds to evade opponents catches forward pass from player of O team on 8-yard line and crosses goal line for touchdown. Ruling?

5—On a sneaker play, right end of O team, who is standing with one foot on side line, catches forward pass from his quarterback and runs for touchdown. Ruling?

Erie Ball To Play In P. G. A. Meet

Erie Ball, assistant professional at the East Lake Country Club, will leave the city Wednesday for Pensacola, Fla., where he will participate in the annual Southeastern P. G. A. tournament Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The event was changed from the late spring to this month in order that more of the professionals may have an opportunity to enter.

THREE NEW BOWLING LEAGUES OPEN PLAY HERE

The Bible class and Sunday School league are scheduled to have representatives at a meeting at the office of Blick's bowling center, Monday evening, at 7:30 o'clock, and then to begin bowling at 8 o'clock, after a brief business meeting. On Friday the Ladies' Amateur league and the Dixie Ten Pin league will swing into play against scheduled teams, bringing the league total to 27 different bowling groups participating as leagues, with over 200 teams of five players each represented each week.

There are three ten pin bowlers in the city boasting averages in excess of 200. They are, namely, John Bell, 207; Aloyisius Sossong, 205, and George Foster, 203, all members of the City Ten Pin league. Incidentally, John Bell set a new local three-game record last week with his massive total of 718 for a set of ten pins.

Tom Armstrong leads the Eastern Air Transport Ten Pin league with an average of 192. Marxsen, who bowled a 267 game for the new high mark of the Georgia Ten Pin league for a single game, is tied with Witham for high average, with 187.

Much additional interest is noted along the duck pin firing lines from the feminine viewpoint, for there are now more women bowlers than have participated in past seasons. With six teams in the Ladies' Commercial league, six teams in the First National Bank, four in the Southern Railway, four from the Junior Chamber of Commerce, four from the Power Club, and four from the Amateur Ladies, the women are whaling away at the pins with high averages and big games in view.

Continuing the brilliant bowling that has kept him out in front of the city's best bowlers so far this season, Frank Burns is burning the alleys with his inshoots as he boasts an average in excess of 116 for 15 games, to top all bowlers in the city who have bowled as many games. This average is taken from the City Duck Pin league records, where can be found the names of Atlanta's best pin-spillers.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Stocks began the day in fairly good spirits, but lively selling that centered around issues which have had greatest speculative appeal promptly squelched the improvement before it had gone very far.

Heavy liquidation of alcohol stocks and of metals, though to a lesser degree in the latter, sent the list spinning downward around the turn of the first hour and prices ended an active Saturday market with many net losses of 1 to 7 points. The average decline was 2.4 which more than cancelled Friday's recovery. Sales totaled 1,260,160 shares; it was the busiest week-end session since July. With liquor issues and metals weakening, other groups lacked stamina to do much resisting and the market declined actively late in the final hour. Closing prices were somewhat above the lows.

Forecasts of imminent Russian recognition encouraged moderate buying of farm implements and a few other industrial stocks, the theory being that Russia was a good prospective customer of certain American companies.

Many observers felt that unrest in the agricultural middle west had had a rather depressing effect on sentiment. Wall Street's guess was that President Roosevelt would have something to say about the farm price situation in his radio address to the nation tomorrow night. Perhaps in anticipation of such a development grains rallied, but by the close wheat had lost most of its advance. National Distillers Products flopped 8 1-2, closing about a point above the low. U. S. Industrial Alcohol, American Commercial Alcohol, Commercial Solvents and Schenley closed 2 5-8 to 7 1-4 lower. Celanese and Johns-Manville lost more than 4 and U. S. Smelting slumped 6 5-8. Allied Chemical struck an airpocket that gave it an extreme loss of 10 points, two of which were recovered.

Declines in U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, American Can, Bethlehem, General Electric, Sears-Roebuck, Southern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Santa Fe and Standard Oil of New Jersey ranged from fractions to about 1 1-2. American Telephone yielded nearly 3 net, while Case, National Biscuit and Union Pacific had slightly larger losses.

Textile Mills Strike Ends in South Carolina

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Governor Blackwood was informed today textile mills at Bath and Clearwater, in Aiken county, would resume operations Monday after closing yesterday when workers struck.

Charles H. Gerald, secretary to the governor, said an official of the Loring organization, which operates the mills, telephoned the governor they would reopen Monday.

Gerald said the official asked for additional state officers to insure order. Arrangements were made to send a second detachment of state patrolmen to the strike area, where nine patrolmen are now on duty.

WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR CURRENT WEEK

North and Middle Atlantic States: Rain beginning of week and rain over south and snow or rain over north portion again about Thursday; Colder Monday, a slight moderation about Wednesday, colder again Friday.

By VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The bond market displayed a firmer trend in early trading today, but prices slipped back when the sharp selling wave hit the stock list.

Enthusiasm was low in most departments and sales totaled only $5,012,000, par value, considerably less than last Saturday's aggregate. The average for 60 domestic corporate issues eased one-tenth of a point at 74.9. This average, at the beginning of the week, stood at 76.

Dealers reported that announcement of forthcoming conversations with the soviets looking to the establishment of trade and diplomatic relations between America and Russia was received cheerfully but with some reservation. The unrest in the agricultural districts, however, was said to have been somewhat disturbing to investment sentiment.

Small gains were held by bonds of American Telephone, American Smelting, Canadian Pacific, Central Pacific, Cincinnati Gas, Goodrich, New Haven, Shell Union Oil and Union Pacific. Losers of fractions to around a point included some liens of Alleghany Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corporation, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island, Erie, Great Northern, Hudson & Manhattan, International Telephone, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Pennsylvania, Postal Telegraph, Southern Pacific, Southern, Utilities Power Light and Warner Bros.

United States government securities eased moderately and foreign obligations were again irregular. Bonds of France, Dutch East Indies and Germany firmed a point or more. Swiss government 5 1-2s lost 2 3-8 points.

JOAN BLONDELL'S HOME IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21.—(AP)—A Siamese cat was burned to death and Joan Blondell Barnes lost her eyelashes to the flames when fire destroyed the Laurel canyon home of the film actress and her cameraman husband last night.

The husband, George Barnes, and his wife fought the flames with a garden hose.

Rain Fails To Dampen Crowd Spirit at Flats

Despite Inclement Weather Rival Bands Stage Colorful Parade Between Halves.

By Al Smith.

The elements sneaked up on the crowd at Grant field yesterday afternoon and within ten minutes everybody in the stands was soaked to the skin.

That downpour of rain caught everyone by surprise, but the crowd was quick to act. The spectators, with the exception of a few hardy souls who undoubtedly have attended a lot of Tech-Georgia games, raced for whatever shelter could be found around Grant field. The rain started falling before the two teams took the field, but anyone could tell it wasn't a Tech-Georgia game. If it had been the crowd would have remained seated during the rain, accepting it as the inevitable.

The Tulane bandsmen, using their great green cloaks as partial shelter from the rain, huddled up near the press box while the showers were still falling and began singing "Stormy Weather." The song seemed most appropriate. Someone in the press box looked down at the deserted horns of the Tulane band.

"I wonder," he murmured, "just how a tuba would sound with a couple of gallons of water in it."

LOST LOVE.

A man who evidently does not like saxophone players muttered that he hoped all the saxophones got filled with water and that the saxophone players would all be drowned. There were a few murmurs of hearty approbation. It seemed that several of the boys had no love for saxophone players.

Shortly after the game started the Tulane band, a very wise bunch of young men, tried to get Tech's goat. The Greenies played "Glory to Old Georgia," which is supposed to make the Jackets mad. The Jackets made no response other than to slam a couple of Wave backs for losses. Maybe the mud got in the Jackets' ears and kept them from hearing.

The hero of the game wasn't Bucky Bryan, even though he won the ball game. Tulane's cheer leader was the real hero. He lost his leg in an automobile crash in Alabama Friday, yet he kept right on to Atlanta to lead the Green Wave supporters in yelling. The leg was artificial.

Between halves the bands paraded on the field and saluted each other. The Tech and Tulane cheer leaders exchanged courtesies. The Tech yellmen led the Tulane supporters in a yell and the Tulane lads reciprocated.

TALKS TO HIMSELF.

Mr. Harry Mehre, the head coach at Georgia, was in the stands when Dave Wilcox kicked off to Bucky Bryan over the Wave goal line to start the second half.

"I wish one of my boys could kick off like that," murmured Coach Mehre, who has been having trouble along those lines all fall.

A moment later, when Bryan crossed the Jacket goal line without stopping, Coach Mehre could be heard talking to himself.

"Never mind," he said. "I'll take that back. My boys may not be able to kick off any further than the tacklers or guards, but that suits me. Whoever heard of a tackle returning the kick-off for a touchdown?"

South Georgia Hunters Awaiting Quail Season

VALDOSTA, Ga., Oct. 21.—(AP)—With the opening of the quail season only a month off, south Georgia sportsmen who believe in adhering to the state game laws are urging all hunters to "hold their guns" until November 20, the first day on which it will be lawful to shoot these birds.

While there have been no definite reports that some hunters are already shooting quail in south Gorgia, there have been rumors to that effect. State game wardens are on the lookout for violators of game laws regarding the hunting of quail.

When November 20 does roll around sportsmen will take to the fields with the knowledge that this year's crop of birds is the largest in a decade in this section. Reports from all over the south Georgia territory state that there are more birds this year than there have been in several years. This section, known far and wide as the finest quail country in the south, is sticking to its claims in this respect in no uncertain manner this year.

Sportsmen in their arguments to hunters who might be overly eager to begin shooting, point out that to hunt quail before November 20 is in violation of the state game laws and that it is dangerous to hunt until weather turns cold, due to rattlesnakes.

The rattlers do not hibernate until cold weather comes and the period just before hibernation is the most dangerous of the year.

"Wait until the season opens and let's all have fun at the same time, when every fellow will be given an even chance at the quail," is the way sportsmen in this section express their feelings in the matter.

Clark University Beats Talladega

Talladega College weakened in the second quarter of its game with Clark University here Saturday afternoon, and the Atlantans eked out a 6-0 win over their ancient rivals. The Clark forwards failed to show up well, and it was evident the visitors line was out-chaging them.

Hall, halfback for Talladega in the closing moments of the first half, clumsily knocked a pass into the waiting arms of Thompson, on the Talladega 12-yard line. Miller broke through for 7 yards and Rickets made first down on the Clark 1-yard line, where a determined Talladega line held for thre downs.

On the next play Ray fumbled, the ball going over the goal line where his teammate Reeves fell on it for a touchdown. Bowens and White broke through to block Rickets try for extra point.

Talladega played the entire first quarter deep in Clark's territory. Hall, Pitts, White, Stratton, Bowens, and Dunn were the outstanding men for the Alabamians, while the work of Ray, Reeves, Snead, Rickett, Miller and Harrison was the highlight of the game.

'Broken Leg' Fails To Stop This Boy

It took more than a broken leg to keep Donald Kerr Tulane University cheer leader, from witnessing the Tulane-Georgia Tech game yesterday.

He broke the leg, fortunately an artificial one, when six Tulane students figured in an automobile accident at Flomaton, Ala., last night, but he sent it back to New Orleans by two friends and kept right on for Atlanta.

Two students, Billy Bradburn and Leigh McLellan, were so badly hurt when the car skidded and struck a bridge, that they were forced to return here by train. The four others, including Kerr, resumed the journey to Georgia after having minor injuries treated at a Flomaton hospital.

Syracuse Defeats Cornell, 14 to 7

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Syracuse signalized its return to football power today by coming from behind to defeat Cornell, 14-7, in a renewal of a series broken off 33 years ago. It was not only the first time the Orange ever won from Cornell but the first time it ever could score.

Cornell took the lead in the first quarter but Syracuse rallied to tie the score in the third and then won with only a few minutes to play in the final quarter when Stark's forward pass fell into W. Singer's hands in the end zone.

Morris Brown Wins Over Carolina Team

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 21.—In a game featured by the brilliant goal line stands of Benedict College, Morris Brown emerged victor by a score of 6 to 0.

In the fourth period, Coach Gunn sent in a forward passing combination that almost played havoc with the Purple Wolverines' chance for victory.

Shag Jones thrilled the crowd numerous times with his broken field running. The squad came out of the game in great shape, and is ready for a hard week preparatory to the big clash with Morehouse College.

Basketball Quintets Organize for Season

Two boy's leagues and one girls' basketball league were organized at the meeting of the Methodist Young Peoples' Athletic Association last week. One vacancy remains in each league, and any team desiring to fill one of these vacancies should get in touch with Bryan Smith at Walnut 4815.

Each league will play two rounds, after which the two boys' champions will play one game to determine the association champion. The championship boys' and girls' teams will be sent to Birmingham in March to represent Atlanta in the southern tournament.

Harbin To Meet Australian Monday

A two-man riot is scheduled for Monday night at the Fair street indoor arena on the corner of Fair street and Capitol avenue, when Jim Hesslyn, Australian heavyweight champion, meets George "Sully" Harbin in the headliner on Matchmaker Jason Thompson's card.

Elevated seats numbering 500 have been added in the steam-heated building to care for the crowd expected to see Hesslyn and Harbin tangle in their return match. Police had to escort the Australian to his dressing room recently after one of the roughest matches in local history, when Hesslyn finally cracked "Sully" with his fist to end the match by a "knockout." All of Harbin's 205 pounds will be eager for revenge after that knockout.

The semi-final is a one-hour limit go, two out of three falls, between Wayne Coleman, Roswell, and Jack McAdams, local ring veteran. Coleman is popular for his clean, scientific style of wrestling, while McAdams is well known to local fans. He gave Sammy Miller a close call last week.

The opening match, one hour, two out of three, lists Whitey Patterson, the panther from Panthersville, and Pete Rogers, up and coming youngster from Jacksonville, Fla. Patterson is one of the fastest and cleverest middleweights in the game, while Rogers is the youthful, aggressive type.

Popular prices of 25 cents and 40 cents will be in effect for the show, which starts promptly at 8 p. m. Reserved seats as usual can be obtained by calling Dearborn 3932. The added seating capacity and modern conveniences in the steam-heated building assure comfort for the fans.

Seaboard Announces 'Special' to Athens

A special pullman and coach train will be operated from Atlanta to Athens and return next Saturday for the Georgia-N. Y. U. football game by the Seaboard Air Line railway.

The special will leave Atlanta at 9:30 a. m., from the Terminal station and arrive in Athens at 12:20 p. m., eastern time. The returning special will leave Athens at 5:45 p. m., eastern time, and arrive at the Terminal station at 6:25 p. m., central time. A special round trip of $1.25 has been put in effect for this game and pullman seats can be secured for $1.13. Tickets can be secured at the Seaboard ticket office, located in the Volunteer building.

U. S. TO GATHER DATA ON STOCK OPERATIONS

Profit-Loss Accounts on Broker's Books To Be Scrutinized by Revenue Agents.

Instructions directing co-operation of the field offices of the bureau of internal revenue with brokers and other agents of taxpayers to the result that the government may obtain from accounts maintained by them with their customers information with respect to profits and losses during 1929, 1930, 1931, 1932 and succeeding years have been received from Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue.

Announcement of the new policy of the bureau was made through William Brusse, Atlanta internal revenue agent in charge, who said that the procedure involves a systematic check of gains and losses shown by accounts of individuals with stock brokers against their tax returns for 1929 to 1932, inclusive, authorized by the 1928 and 1932 revenue acts. Heretofore such information has not been required, but it will be the practice in all future years to require the information from stock brokers, Brusse said.

Commissioner Helvering was said to feel that, due to the wide fluctuations of the market during the several years indicated there were probably many transactions which were not properly reported in the income tax returns. Because of the fact that certain individuals have taken advantage of the opportunity through sales that have a fictitious character, as between husband and wife, or between a taxpayer and an individual in close relationship to him, to distort taxable income through claims of losses that have no basis in fact, it is particularly appropriate this year to invoke the authority conferred by the acts, it was said.

The bureau of internal revenue is inclined, it is indicated, where voluntary disclosures are made on claimed losses which had no basis in fact to be lenient in its attitude in the imposition of penalties. In appropriate cases, although the facts might justify recommendation for criminal prosecution, it will be the bureau's policy to refrain from such recommendations where such action appears justified, on voluntary disclosures, it was said. The same policy will be followed in this particular feature of tax evasion where voluntary disclosures are made of profits not heretofore reported in income tax returns, it was said.

Forms to be filled out with brokers will be distributed by internal revenue agents in charge of the various divisions throughout the country. The agents are being instructed to co-operate to the fullest extent in order that returns may be filed on or before November 15.

SALE OF CABINETS RESUMED THIS WEEK

Ed and Al Matthews, furniture dealers of 158 Edgewood avenue, will continue their sale this week of Sellers' kitchen cabinets, of which 1,000,000 are said to be in use in American homes. The sale last week was successful, Al Matthews said.

"The good, old-fashioned woman who hung her pans in the cellar stairway, made her own tallow candles and pumped soft water from a 40-barrel cistern, now has a granddaughter who can mix a three-story cake and toss it into her electric oven without once getting up from her white enamel chair," Mr. Matthews said.

"Yes, something has really happened in the kitchen. It was a long time coming. Members of the Woman's Club estimate that baking and stewing went along without very much change for about 6,000 years. Two centuries of progress in America brought running water and replaced the open fireplace with a carboniferous range which wouldn't start till the hired girl primed it with kerosene.

"Enter Elizabeth. Think of Elizabeth as a progressive young woman who found a place in the kitchen for scientific management. She learned a lot about orderly arrangement of materials and tools, also the approved method of saving steps by cutting out waste motion.

"Elizabeth has revolutionized the kitchen. For her, no back-breaking gymnastics in bringing together the materials to prepare a meal. She is freed forever from untidy wall hooks, cluttered pantries, musty cupboards, unsanitary built-in shelves.

"The wisdom of the ages, what every woman knows about convenience in cooking, is suddenly focused in a fine kitchen cabinet. A remarkable transformation. From the shoulders of countless women it lifted a tremendous burden, contributing cause of crow's feet, slumpy posture and premature ruin of sweet disposition."

VIRGINIA TO ASK U.S. TO ASSUME CONTROL OF ROANOKE DAMS

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Spokesmen for the Virginia public works administration today said the federal government is to be asked to assume control of the waterpower development of the Roanoke river as a second "Muscle Shoals" and construct 11 dams at a cost of $4,000,000.

Plans for the project today were submitted to the Virginia public works board for its reaction "as to its economic soundness and advantages."

The board was not asked to examine the plan and pass upon it, as promoters of the project, headed by Edwin C. Gregory, of Washington, propose "to submit it directly to the president for inclusion as a federal project."

The Virginia board replied to Mr. Gregory that it has determined it "is beyond the scope of the board to indorse it."

A map accompanying the project called for the construction of dams at Smith Mountain, Leesville, Taber, Seneca, Melrose, McKeever, Randolph, Russell Island, Buggs Island and Gaston, N. C., and additional dams at Roanoke Rapids. The estimate of power available annually was placed at 509,000,000 kilowatt hours for primary power and 239,600,000 of secondary power.

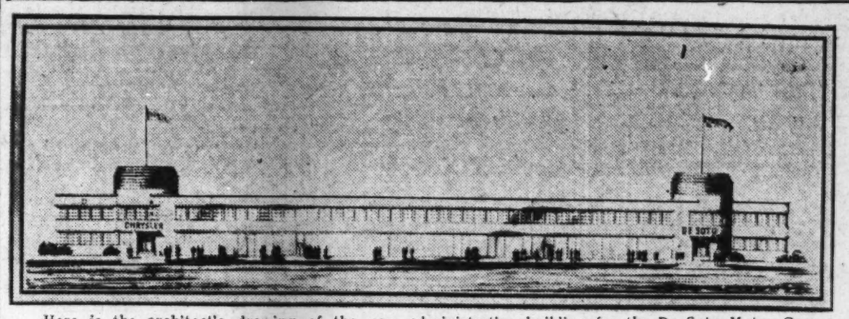

POLLY MORAN TO WED CALIFORNIAN TODAY

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Polly Moran liked her freedom, but now she's found the right man. So, the screen comedienne says, she will marry Martin Malone, Los Angeles attorney, tomorrow in Las Vegas, Nev.

"We've known each other for a year," the actress said. "We have the same tastes and we like the same things. We've found that out now and we're on our way to the parson."

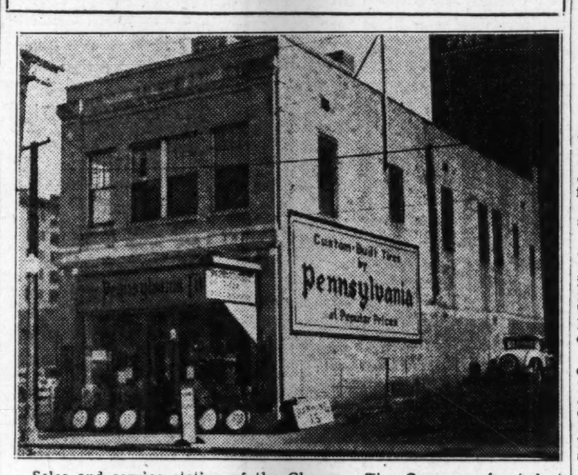

Miss Moran was previously married and divorced.

Increased Auto Sales Bring Building Activity

Here is the architect's drawing of the new administration building for the De Soto Motor Corporation, for which ground was broken recently. The new structure will cost approximately $350,000, the entire front will be of plate glass with stainless steel trim, and it will contain what is declared will be the "model automobile show floor." This is the first extensive new building activity of the year in the automobile industry.

WEEKLY BULLETIN OF URBAN LEAGUE

Professional classes among negroes increased 69 per cent between 1920 and 1930. The problem in professional classes is not one of overpopulation but of maldistribution. As summarized by Ira DeA. Reid, of the National Urban League, there exists a popular conception that professional occupations among negroes are overcrowded. This is not true. Though 136,000 negroes are employed in all professional occupations, the race is understaffed in all fields save that of the ministry. The problem in the professions is not one of overpopulation, but one of maldistribution. Our professional classes increased from 34,000 in 1890 to 135,000 in 1930. The rate of increase for persons in this class was twice as rapid during the decade of 1920-1930—69 per cent—as during the period 1910-1920, when they increased 31 per cent. In the technical fields, there has been a marked advance, particularly in the field of chemistry and metallurgy, where the number of technicians among negroes increased twice as rapidly as in the white group. Mining, civil, electrical and mechanical engineers, increased 90 per cent during the 1920-1930 decade, while the total number increased approximately 65 per cent. Architects, draftsmen and designers, on the other hand, showed a slight increase.

The medical profession increased rapidly from 1900-1910, but much less rapidly from 1920-1930, failing to keep pace with the population growth. In fact, since 1910 there has been a relative decline in the number of physicians, both white and black. On the other hand, there has been a twelvefold increase in the number of negro dentists, who now number approximately 1,700.

Teachers and clergymen, representing the older individual professions, assumed greater numerical importance in the last decade. College presidents and professors, now numbering approximately 1,100, increased more than 100 per cent, while teachers increased 53.3 per cent. Both of these increases were more rapid among negroes than among whites. Clergymen who had noted relative declines in the rate of growth of their profession since the 1890-1900 decade (when the number increased by 27 per cent and a drop to 15 per cent in 1900-1910 to 8 per cent in 1910-1920) took heart in seeing their greatest increase of the century—28 per cent—occur in the last census decade. They remained proportionately more numerous among the negro population than among any other racial group and the 25,000 negroes so engaged in 1930 formed 17 per cent of all the country's clergymen.

Women are approximately 45 per cent of the entire negro professional classes, being four-fifths of all school teachers, librarians, social and welfare workers, one-half of the actors and artists, and they monopolize the field of trained nurses. In the single field of the ministry negroes have fewer persons per professional than the white population. In comparing the ratios for the six leading professions among negroes with the ratios for the same professions among the white population, it appears that there are twice as many persons per teacher among negroes, four times as many persons per nurse, four and one-half times as many persons per dentist, 15 times as many persons per lawyer, and only half as many persons per clergyman as for the white population.

J. C. Dixon, who is supervisor of negro schools for the state of Georgia, will be the guest speaker at the "27 Club" forum Sunday, October 22, at the First Congregational church at 4 o'clock.

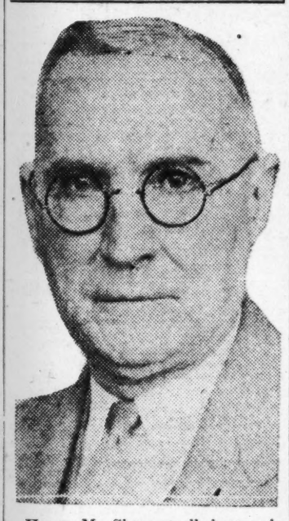

Dixon is the successor to Walter B. Hill, who has been elevated to the position of field representative of the general education board in the department of negro education. Mr. Dixon did his under-graduate work at Mercer University and his graduate work at Teachers' College, of Columbia University in New York city.

The speaker is an educator of broad experience, wide contacts, keen perception and an understanding attitude toward the negroes' struggle for educational opportunities.

He will discuss "The Federal and State Program for Abolishing Illiteracy in Georgia." He is at present working out a program calculated to give employment to more than 3,000 negro teachers in the state of Georgia in a statewide illiteracy campaign. In addition to the illiterates, all persons over 14 years of age who are not employed, will be given an opportunity to go to school. Many of those who are on relief will be paid 30 cents per hour while attending school.

The subject to be discussed by Mr. Dixon is of such vital importance to all classes of negroes in Atlanta and Fulton county that the council anticipates that standing room will be at a premium. This is another evidence of the disposition of the forum to make available for the general public, information on the most vital issues of the day from month to month. The public is cordially invited to attend.

With Duffee-Freeman

Henry M. Sharp, well known in the furniture field, has joined the Duffee-Freeman organization, it was announced on Saturday. He is best known as manager of the furniture department of the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Company, where he served for 10 years. Mr. Sharp is well known in middle and south Georgia as well as in Atlanta.

LOW CHICAGO RATE OFFERED BY SOUTHERN

The Southern railway will offer a final opportunity to visit the World's Fair at Chicago on October 28, giving one of the lowest round-trip rates of the year, according to announcement of E. E. Barry, assistant general passenger agent.

This fare is offered to leave Atlanta on Saturday next at a cost of $8.75. A special train will be operated for those making this trip, leaving the Atlanta Terminal station at 11 a. m., arriving Chicago at 7:30 a. m. the next day. The tickets will permit a stay of two days in Chicago, leaving Chicago at 11 p. m. on October 30, arriving in Atlanta at 8:20 p. m. on October 31. This special train will feature dining car at reasonable rates.

SCHOOL CONFERENCES TO BE HELD THIS WEEK

Increasing interest in the series of high school conferences being conducted over the state by the Georgia Education Association was reported Saturday by the state department of education in making public programs for this week's meetings in Camilla on Monday, Americus on Tuesday, and Griffin on Thursday.

Morning programs will be in charge of the education association. In the afternoon the conferences will split into departmental meetings. Outstanding Georgians, including Governor Talmadge and members of congress have been invited to speak at the evening sessions.

M. D. Collins, state superintendent of education, under the announced programs, will discuss the need for study and revision of curricula at each of the meetings, and Chancellor Philip Weltner will talk on the part of the university system in that study and revision.

G. O. Bailey Jr., of Tifton, second district president of the association, will preside at the Camilla meeting. Others on tha program include, in addition to the state superinendent and the chancellor: Superintendent T. B. Connor, of Pelham; George H. King, of the Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College, Tifton; Superintendent Harold Saxon, of Quitman; George P. Donaldson, of the Tifton College; T. J. Dempsey Jr., state high school supervisor; and Dr. J. S. Stewart, of the University of Georgia.

W. W. Stancil, of Fitzgerald, will preside over the third district meeting in Americus. In addition to the state school and college representatives, speakers announced for that session include Superintendent J. H. Jenkins, of Vienna; Miss Nancy Pearl White, of Fitzgerald; Dean L. F. Harris, of the Americus Normal College; Superintendent J. M. Gooden, of Perry; Superintendent S. C. Craddock, of Montezuma, and Superintendent J. E. Mathis, of Americus.

C. O. Lam, of Hogansville, is president of the fourth district, whose meeting will be at Griffin. Besides the state and college representatives, speakers expected there include George P. Wannamaker, of Griffin; Principal J. P. Kings of the Spalding high school; Superintendent H. H. Hargrove, of McDonough; Principal A. M. Bowen, of the Newnan high school, and Superintendent Mark Smith, of Thomaston.

More Rain Is Seen For Atlanta Today

A rainy Sunday followed by colder weather late in the afternoon and night was in prospect for Atlanta, according to Saturday's prediction by the weather bureau.

A temperature range of from 64 to 70 degrees was expected, which would compare with Saturday's range of 62 to 70.

Two Lose Appeals For Code Exemption

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—NRA today announced rejection by President Roosevelt of an application by two Alabama firms for exemption from the minimum wage provisions of the lumber code.

At the same time the chief executive approved two more codes, covering manufacturers of caps and other container tops, and of marking devices. This brought the total of promulgated codes to 59.

A further stay was granted underwear manufacturers who had sought exemption from parts of their industry's code, to allow officials to investigate conditions further.

The Alabamans who lost out in the lumber code petition were Greensboro Lumber Company and H. A. Taylor, of Greensboro, Ala., who had contended the wage levels were unjust to them, but who failed to satisfy the administration they had a valid case.

On the Air Today

Mishel Piastro, concert violinist and concertmeister of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra, will hold the spotlight in the CBS and WGST broadcast under Bruno Walter's direction this afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock. Piastro will be the soloist in Glazounoff's Violin Concerto in A minor, a work which he had the privilege of introducing throughout Russia with the composer accompanying him at the piano.

"At Dawning," the lyric love song by Charles Wakefield Cadman, will bring Nino Martini to the microphone in the broadcast of the Seven Star Revue, to be heard over WABC-Columbia net work and WGST tonight from 8 to 9 o'clock. The young Metropolitan Opera tenor's second number will be the aria, "Giunto sul Passo Estremo" (Nearing the End of Life) from Boito's "Mephistopholes."

Co-featured with Martini will be Jane Froman, Erno Rapee's orchestra, the Vagabond Glee Club and Ted Husing. Miss Froman will sing Lou Alter's "Morning, Noon and Night" and "Alone Together." An accordion solo by Charles Magnate and special glee club and orchestra features will complete the broadcast.

Lehman Undergoes Appendix Operation

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York underwent an operation for appendicitis at Mt. Sinai hospital at 8:15 a. m. today and the operation was reported to have been "entirely successful."

"The governor is resting comfortably," said Joseph Canavan, his secretary, "and his general condition is satisfactory."

Governor Lehman entered the hospital late last night and the operation was performed by Dr. A. A. Berg.

Attending physicians were Dr. Arthur M. Master and Dr. B. S. Oppenheimer.

Yesterday afternoon the governor came down from Albany for the operation. He had been ill for some time and his physicians had advised him that to operate was the only safe procedure.

T. J. Boggs, 55, Dies, Hit-and-Run Victim

T. J. Boggs, 55, of 278 Ponce de Leon avenue, N. W., who was struck by a hit-and-run automobile Friday night at North avenue and Fowler street, died early Sunday morning at Grady hospital.

Boggs was not identified until his daughter came to the hospital Saturday morning. His left leg was badly fractured and he was shocked. Witnesses said the automobile which struck him did not stop. Police are investigating.

Two State Schools Show 1933 Surpluses

The Georgia State College of Agriculture kept its expenses more than $11,000 under income for the year ended June 30, Tom Wisdom, state auditor, reported Saturday.

Income amounted to $317,931.73, he reported, and expenses to $306,439.58.

The biggest item of income was $157,546.32 from the state appropriation, and personal services accounted for $202,528.90 of the expense.

In addition to regular operating items, the audit showed $106,207.30 in outlays for buildings and lands, but these were not charged as expense.

The school, Wisdom said, ended the year with a net surplus of $891.18 in addition to an item of $40,010.45 covering unpaid appropriations for past years, which funds are not immediately available.

The Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville ended its fiscal year June 30 with a net surplus of $29,712.92, Mr. Wisdom reported.

The balance, however, is achieved by counting among the assets $57,118.42 in unpaid appropriations for past years, leaving an excess of liabilities over quick assets.

Income for the year was reported at $431,982.12 of which $149,044.03 came from the state appropriation and $217,184.89 from dormitories and boarding.

Expenses and outlay amounted to $478,714.80, of which $257,166.21 went for personal service.

CREDITOR'S RIGHT TO SUE BANKRUPT TESTED IN COURT

The right of creditors to proceed against bankrupts while their bankruptcy is pending or after it is completed was involved Saturday in contempt proceedings heard by Judge T. Marvin Underwood in the federal court.

The Hartsfield Company, a loan company, and Mose S. Hayes, its attorney, were cited for contempt of court on the complaint of William D. Garner who charged that they tried to collect a debt and seized his belongings while his petition for bankruptcy was pending in the federal court.

Garner also charged that the defendants were instrumental in having him indicted for pledging property to the Hartsfield Company to which he had no title. This indictment was subsequently thrown out.

Hayes, on the stand, said that he meant no contempt of court, but acted on the belief that the proceedings he brought against Garner were not prohibited by the bankruptcy act. He also denied that he assisted in the drawing of the indictment against Garner. He merely supplied certain information to the solicitor, he said.

The court continued the hearing until next Saturday.

"I am ordering the continuance," the judge explained, "to allow all parties interested to file additional amendments, and also because the administration of justice in this district is involved in this case and justifies a complete hearing."

James L. Mayson represented the defendants and Murrell & Murrell appeared for Garner.

ELKS CLASS DEADLINE IS SET FOR THURSDAY

O. Lee White, chairman of Elks' committee on the Armistice initiation drive, Saturday announced that Thursday, October 26, will be the last day for applications to be accepted for membership in the Herbert B. Kennedy class, which will be initiated into the Elks on Armistice Day.

All members are asked to bring their friends and acquaintances into the order at this initiation. The last meeting of the committee will be held at the Elks' home, at 6:30 o'clock, Tuesday night.

Home in Tuxedo Park Is Sold for $50,000

The home in Tuxedo Park recently completed by Charles H. Black, which has been sold by Carl W. Fort for approximately $50,000. Mrs. Stewart Hill Jones, of New York, was the purchaser. The house, one of the most complete in that section, occupies a lot 200 by 600 at Valley road and Tuxedo drive, and is of the English type. Mr. Fort also sold two lots adjoining to Dr. Caldwell Holliday, who will build, and two lots on Habersham road, adjoining the J. A. Miller home, to Mr. Miller. H. Z. Hopkins recently bought a lot on Valley road in Tuxedo Park.

Acworth Property Will Be Auctioned

The Johnson Auction Company announced on Saturday that it would hold an auction of business property in Acworth on Wednesday week at 10 o'clock in the morning.

The property, which is owned by A. W. Smith, consists of a filling station and store and grist mill located on the Dixie highway on a lot 400 by 800 feet, with frontage on the railroad.

Grand Jury Will Meet Heads of Departments

The Fulton county grand jury will meet in a special session with the department heads of the county Wednesday afternoon to gather facts to be outlined in the final presentments, according to statements by the members Saturday. The session will have nothing to do with the county investigations, they said, but will be merely for information regarding county affairs.

In that connection it was said Saturday that all departments are operating within their budgets in accordance with the recent edict to that effect by the county commission.

K. OF C. 'DUTCH SUPPER' TO BE GIVEN MONDAY

Atlanta Council No. 660, Knights of Columbus, will hold its annual "Dutch supper" at 6:30 o'clock Monday night at the clubhouse, 1200 Peachtree street, N. E., with Catholics and their non-Catholic friends in attendance. The supper will be followed by a bridge party.

J. Charles Gavan is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements. Clement L. McGowan is grand knight of the council. Officers of the council said that "only those who have attended previous affairs of this kind sponsored by the Knights of Columbus can appreciate what an enjoyable time is always had. The nominal charge of 35 cents a plate will be devoted to charity.

SOVIET RECOGNITION LOOMS.

The invitation of President Roosevelt to soviet Russia, and its acceptance, brings a representative of that government to Washington for the purpose of discussing the matter of recognition by the United States. No doubt this means that diplomatic relations between the two nations, which have been severed for the past 16 years, will be resumed in the near future.

The move by the American government will receive general approval in this country. Radical changes in Russian policy, and the decided economic benefit which will redound to both countries, has caused a marked change in the American sentiment against recognition.

The soviet government structure and policies are radically different now from what they were for the first decade of its existence. Internal developments and the failure of efforts to spread the doctrine of bolshevism in other countries has steadily brought the present Russian government more in line with other nations.

The outstanding argument in favor of recognition is the beneficial effect it will have on trade between the two nations. The soviet government has set up an unusual record for meeting its obligations so that a new avenue for American exports will be opened with a customer whose credit so far is above reproach.

The strengthening effect on business in this country in the event of recognition is reflected by the immediate reaction of the wheat and share markets when the news of the interchange of letters between Presidents Roosevelt and Kalinin became public.

It should be borne in mind that diplomatic recognition by the United States of Russia does not in any way carry with it approval of the soviet form of government. If the diplomatic relations of this country were based upon approval of the government structure of the nations recognized, we would extend recognition to but a few of the organized peoples of the world.

Recognition means, more than anything else, acknowledgement that another nation has set up a stable and permanent government. The Russian government after 16 years comes under this category and has a right, under international custom, to recognition.

The United States has everything to gain and nothing to lose—and the same thing applies to Russia—by a resumption of diplomatic relations between the two countries, and the friendly and cordial nature of the letters exchanged between Presidents Roosevelt and Kalinin is a hopeful augury for the successful culmination of an understanding which will permit recognition on a basis of genuine benefit to both countries.

HENRY W. MILLER.

The death of Henry W. Miller, vice president of the Southern Railway, removes one of the outstanding leaders of railroad development in the south.

Starting at the bottom Mr. Miller rose steadily to the top as a result of his genius in transportation affairs and close attention to his duties that was one of his marked characteristics.

Perhaps no railroad man in the south was more intimately familiar with every detail of transportation. As clerk, telegraph operator, ticket agent and executive he manifested an ability to solve problems which resulted in steady promotions to the position of vice president in charge of operations of the entire Southern system which he held at the time of his death.

He came to Atlanta in 1910 as an assistant to the president of the Southern, and until his designation as vice president and transfer to Washington in 1920, he was active in all matters of civic enterprise and was held in high esteem by all who knew him.

His death will be a loss not only to the Southern, but to the south, the development of which has been materially aided during the past two decades by the wise policies followed by Mr. Miller as operating head of the great transportation system which ramifies this entire section.

TIME AND THE RECOVERY ACT.

Pointing out that in the development of the government's recovery program the element of time is of prime importance, Charles Benedict, widely known writer on economic topics, has the following to say in an article in the current issue of the Magazine of Wall Street:

It would seem, by the disappointment and uncertainty occasioned by the failure of the first efforts of the recovery program to maintain all of its gain, that the importance of the element of time has been forgotten. After all, the age of miracles has passed and while we have lost perhaps 8—10 per cent of the broad advance in business as a whole, which was recorded between March 4 and Labor Day, it would have been fatuous to hope to maintain indefinitely a vertical trend in recovery.

Undoubtedly there has been general disappointment at the failure of the sudden and marked improvement in conditions during the early summer months to continue into the fall. The trouble is that the public has not considered the element of time necessary to launch on a sound and permanent basis as comprehensive a program of rehabilitation as that contemplated in the national recovery act.

It would have been humanly impossible for an act of its scope to have been evolved at once in full detail covering all of its ramifications into the business structure of the country.

It was necessary, in the very nature of things, that the act itself should deal only with principles involved and that the working out and application of the details be left to those charged with its administration.

Assistant Secretary John Dickinson, of the department of commerce, one of the ablest officials of the federal government, discusses in a recent article the scope and purposes of the act. Defining its purposes, he says:

The immediate purpose of the industrial recovery act, the immediate objective which it is intended to accomplish, is to put people back to work at once in order that they may be included once more in the army of purchasers, in the group who possess the effective means for absorbing the products of industry. The way in which the act hopes to accomplish this result is by limiting the hours of work so that more people may be employed and the reduction in man power which technological improvements have brought about may be balanced and redressed by a corresponding reduction in the number of hours of work for each individual worker. In order, however, that this reduction in hours may not be met by a reduction in wages which would leave the total purchasing power of the wage group as a whole where it now is, the act contains provision for a minimum wage which when applied to the increased number of workers is expected to increase materially the wage income of the labor of the country as a whole. Properly enough, the act does not undertake to fix the weekly hours or the minimum wage at any particular figure. It is flexible, permitting adaptation to the special needs of each industry, and it throws the initiative for determining the needs of each industry on the industry itself, with provision for consultation between the employer and labor.

Mr. Dickinson also emphasizes the fact that the act as passed by congress deals only with broad principles, and that it definitely leaves the working out of details to the administration. In this connection he points out that—

The industrial recovery act does not outlaw any designated competitive practices, nor does it prescribe what practices may or may not be outlawed by industrial codes. It contents itself with laying down in a certain degree of detail the objectives of congress, and leaves the rest to administration. The act is pre-eminently an administrative statute—a statute drafted in broad terms, which defines major lines of policy, indicates major objectives, and, imposes on the administrative agency charged with its execution the working out of the details, the filling in of the pattern on the loom, the devising and application of all special adjustments.

In concluding his discussion of the recovery act, he stresses the fact that its major objective is to put people back to work as quickly as possible, and emphasizes that if when this first and most important phase of the program has been accomplished it is apparent that adjustments must be made, they will come in due course of time. He reiterates that—

The major objective of the industrial recovery act is to get people back to work in time to provide an increased purchasing power which will keep pace with the already accelerated rate of production. If this objective is to be accomplished, causes of delay must be avoided. Meanwhile, if the act is to have its full effect, it must move forward along a broad front at once. Measures must be devised by business and labor in cooperation with government to apply the basic policies of the act in all the important industries simultaneously, leaving matters of detail and less urgent issues to be worked out afterward.

It is not to be reasonably expected that in the working out of hundreds of codes, dealing with every business interest in America, a perfect code, giving ultimate opportunity for the attainment of the ends sought, could be attained without experimentation.

Time and experience as work progresses under code conditions are necessary to reveal where adjustments are necessary.

The country should bear in mind the importance of the element of time in the recovery program, and not expect the impossible. Patience and a co-operative spirit on the part of the public will prove the best impetus to the program of industrial recovery now under way.

We may rest assured that the administration will do nothing that will work a permanent injustice to any industry or any individual unit of any industry. To do so would be to violate the spirit of the recovery program and retard the progress towards the objective of placing every business in the country where it can operate profitably while giving employment to the maximum number of workers.

No fairer statement of the administration's purpose could be desired than that of Mr. Dickinson, whose assurance of the government's earnest desire to avoid unjust or unfair application of the principle of the recovery act is ample guaranty that if unreasonable situations develop under the codes as first prepared, no time will be lost in working out necessary readjustments.

With such a comforting statement from so capable an administration spokesman as Mr. Dickinson, the country can safely put away any fears that it may have had and go about its business with the single purpose of contributing helpfully to the program of rehabilitation.

SOUTHERN PARKS POPULAR.

Announcement by the federal office of national parks at Washington that the Great Smoky National park in North Carolina and Tennessee was visited this summer by more people than even the Yosemite National park reveals the extent to which the people of the states east of the Mississippi welcome park facilities similar to those which have been given the western states.

Coincident with the announcement of the parks office comes the news of the launching of a movement to promote a highway between the Shenandoah and Great Smoky parks, for which it is planned to ask an appropriation of $16,600,000 from the federal public works fund.

In view of the fact that these southern parks have, within the few years since they were created, surpassed in interest even the great parks of the west, as evidenced by this year's number of visitors, the proposed highway would serve a useful purpose to hundreds of thousands of tourists annually.

Scenic highways have already been completed in these two great parks and the paving of this connecting link for a comparatively short distance in southern Virginia and North Carolina would make it possible to travel most of the distance from Washington to Atlanta over a route unsurpassed for natural beauty in the United States.

The tremendous increase in visitors each year to the Great Smoky park emphasizes the extent to which the eastern half of the country has been neglected by the federal government in the development of national parks and reservations while the splendid developments of this nature were being created in the west.

The western parks have served the people of all sections of the country, hundreds of thousands from the Atlantic seaboard and central states visiting them each year. An equal number of people from the west would have sought recreation and renewed health in this section had similar parks been created in the mountain areas of the Atlantic coast states.

The Great Smoky and Shenandoah parks serve a territory with ten times the population of that in which the western parks are located. They are in overnight reach of the people of every state south of New England and east of the Mississippi river.

These two great parks are integral parts of a proposed chain of national parks and forest reservations to stretch all the way from Maine to Florida. The new highway between them would connect the two most important links of the chain and would in itself be a scenic route of great attractiveness.

Had the members of congress representing states east of the Mississippi river displayed in the past the same zeal in securing national parks for this section of the country as have those from the west, the proposed chain of parks up and down the Atlantic coast would long ago have been a reality.

Its full development should be urged by the congressional delegations not only of the states in which these parks will lie but by those from every state west of the Mississippi, for the people of all will be equally served by this development.

A WELL-BALANCED BOARD.

No better selection could have been made for head of the Atlanta regional labor board than Marion Smith, outstanding and highly respected lawyer and citizen.

The board, consisting of 10 prominent citizens, five from the ranks of labor and five from the employers of the city, will be charged with the vitally important task of settling any differences that may arise between employers and employes incident to the working out of the various industrial codes.

The type of men selected for this board gives assurance of fair conservation of all controversies, and it is fortunate that the board has as its chairman one whose well-balanced judgment and whose ability and character has won for him the confidence and esteem of all who know him.

One of the leaders of the bar of the southeast, Mr. Smith, has won national recognition for his ability, fairness and keen grasp of problems. He is a man of unusually balanced character, and his calm and studious application to whatever task he undertakes especially fits him to head the mediation board.

The board is composed of broad-minded, far-visioned leaders of industry and labor. It is to be hoped that no controversies will arise to force mediation, but if any should develop the personnel of this board gives assurance that the consideration of any issue will be approached in an honest effort to make a just and a reasonable adjustment.

DIFFICULT TO STANDARDIZE.

Interesting discussion of the extent to which each state can cooperate in the suggested adoption of uniform motor laws is contained in a communication, appearing on the opposite page, from W. L. Stanley, of the Seaboard Air Line railroad.

Mr. Stanley, while stressing the advantages to be gained by uniformity in the laws regulating and controlling motorized traffic on the highways, especially as regards buses and trucks, warns that if this uniformity of restrictions would make it possible for the heavy trucks permitted in some states to travel over highways not built to carry such burdens, it might mean the destruction of many highways under the pounding of huge trucks and vans.

Undoubtedly the admission of such juggernauts of the road as are constantly to be seen on the heavily constructed highways connecting the larger centers of population in the north and east, to unrestricted use of all roads in every state, would mean the quick destruction of many of these highways, constructed largely for the purpose of accommodating passenger car traffic and light commercial traffic.

Such points as those that are brought up in Mr. Stanley's thoughtful comment are chiefly the reason for the calling of the conference which met in Harrisburg Friday and Saturday. Undoubtedly it will be impossible to have complete unanimity of motor traffic laws and regulations, but it should be possible to bring these laws in the various states close enough together to eliminate the long-drawn-out wrangling which every section of the country has witnessed during the past two years.

It has been suggested that a highway and a watermelon be named for Governor Talmadge. Thank goodness that no one has suggested a cigar, as yet.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Refugees.

There are now in Paris 9,000 German writers, artists, sculptors, painters, professors, social workers, actors, etc., who have been forced to flee abroad. Professor George Bernhardt, former editor of the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin, who was also chased out and even deprived of citizenship, figures that aproximately 240,000 people have been compelled to flee. Forty thousand of these are said to be Jews.

A tremendous problem is raised by this new wave of emigration. For now that the first months are gone—and with those months the last savings—the victims of naziism are beginning to feel the pinch. Their personal banking accounts were, of course, confiscated by the nazis, like the 37,000 marks of Dr. Einstein, which were simply taken because they were "intended for communist propaganda," according to the thieves.

In Switzerland, the political emigres are forbidden to look for work. In France, to find work is difficult. Famous writers though they may be, Heinrich Mann and Thomas, the winner of the Nobel prize for literature; the Zweigs and so many others, they do not know French sufficiently well to write in that language. The German market is closed to them. The same with actors. Where are they to turn? I know scores who are down to their last pennies.

It becomes obvious that international action of some kind must be taken. Holland, once more, as so often in the course of history, is appearing as the mediator and advocate of the victims of a terror. Holland is bringing up the question of the refugees in the council of the League of Nations. It is to be hoped that the powers, out of fear for offending Germany, will not allow that very necessary discussion to be shelved or torpedoed. Something must be done.

Forbidden Books.

"Has any book ever been killed by burning it?" asked H. G. Wells, famous British novelist and historian, the other day. "I do not think so," he added. "The clumsy lout's rebellion against civilization," as he calls it, "shows itself not only in imprisoning, slaughtering, or otherwise extinguishing anybody whose views on government differ from his own, but also in suppressing independent thought wherever it is found."

The gentry now happily engaged in various countries in burning books, suppressing books, distorting books, censoring books, getting books held up at ports by the customs officers, won't be deeply impressed by Mr. Wells' words. They will go their way, being absurd and—utterly futile.

The savages used to stick pins in the image of men they hated. But they were savages. The emotional reaction of burning the book of a hated political or philosophical opponent must be something the same. In other words, the emotion of savages.

Thin Women.

The anti-slimming campaign launched by Mussolini is Rome's topic. By official order all the newspapers have begun a drive to impress on Italian women that the era of the thin figure has passed and that a more rotund, plump silhouette is wanted—by the duce. The word has been passed around that the thin woman should be known as the "crisis woman" and that she must be succeeded by the "prosperity type," oozing such, I suppose. Fashion artists have been ordered to abandon drawing slim silhouettes. The idea behind the campaign is eugenic. It is contended that slim, anemic and pale women make unsatisfactory mothers. They bear weak children. Italy wants strong children, millions of them. You can imagine what for.

Irritating Music.

The kaiser said once that Wagner's music was "mere noise." Lord Birkenhead's idea of hell, he said, was an evening at the opera. But they didn't know anything about music, either of them, you might object. Yet the kaiser is a skilled musician. But even the skilled may dislike music. Many years Toscanini was conducting when he noticed a player with one of those super-trumpets making a veritable grimace after he had finished his piece during a rehearsal. Toscanini immediately stopped the rehearsal and said to the grimacer: "Are you not satisfied with my conducting?"

"On the contrary," replied the man, "I think you are the most accomplished conductor in the world, maestro!"

Goering Is the Man.

While Herr Franz Von Papen made a little trip to Rome, Chancellor Hitler took the occasion to relieve him of his post as minister of the interior in Prussia and to appoint Herr Wilhelm Herman Goering in his place. Next to Hitler himself, say the papers, Goering is the most powerful man in the reich. This is an understatement. Goering is the most powerful man bar none. He is the brains of the whole national socialist movement. Hitler is the big promotion manager, so to speak. He is the figure in the popular eye, but Goering is the executive head of the firm. He is far abler than Hitler. A mere glance at his reported statements ought to convince anyone of this. Hitler is a demagogue. Goering may prove to be a statesman. He is hard boiled, ruthless, determined and seems to have a plan. It is not a brilliant plan. It is not a new plan. But it is a plan.

Eventually we will see Goering in the chancellorship and Hitler in President Hindenburg's place, as the nominal head of the government and its symbol.

Constitution Comment On Hitler's Anti-Semitism Is Praised by Strauss

Editor Constitution: Permit me to express to you my appreciation and hearty approval of your editorial appearing in The Constitution headed "Christianity Decries Hitler."

It is very refreshing to note that your paper is in the foreground of expressing disapproval and protest against this lapse into mediaeval barbarism that is now being exercised in the country that was formerly called Germany.

As very correctly stated by J. L. Gavin, editor of the London Observer, the Hitler regime has never been a domestic affair, but, to quote from his very able article, "If the nazis had power enough at the present moment they would tear their neighbors to pieces. Their creed denies, condemns, extirpates every moral principal for which the League of Nations was founded and whereon the hopes of peace were based."

Everyday Questions

BY DR. S. PARKES CADMAN.

What do you consider the most important elements for the maintenance of a democratic government?

Religion and education, or to put it in another way, a system of public education which includes real religion. The status of the average man has been changed partly by improvement in material conditions, but still more by the schools and the churches. The former give to every boy and girl some acquaintance with worthwhile life. The latter instill that knowledge of God in which stands man's more perfect freedom.

Until practically our own age no country educated the majority of its children. When Rome fell it was the ruin of her upper classes that sealed her doom. But in our day the educated wage earner could rebuild the social fabric should it collapse.

Massachusetts was the first organized commonwealth which announced the principle that it was the responsibility of the state to educate every child within its borders. That memorable policy is perhaps the proudest achievement of the Bay State. In my earlier period I frequently heard some of the well-to-do express their fear of an educated populace.

Why? Because they dreaded any interference with social injustice and class favoritism. If we would stabilize our republic against the fiercest economic storms we shall have to face, let us perpetuate faith, morals and sound brains. This can be done in only one way, by giving to every youngster a thorough training in the requirements of a clean, wholesome and useful life lived without dread of the curse of opulence or of poverty.

Raleigh, N. C.

Has unemployment lessened in England? If so, for what reasons?

Great Britain, which includes Scotland and England, has little hope of any speedy return to busy coal mines, factories, workshops, offices, to thriving agricultural and fishing industries, to anything like the pre-war industrial situation when unemployment was negligible compared with what it is today.

Her unparalleled number of unemployed continues at a peak level, with a slight improvement in recent months due to the financial wisdom of her leaders. But the main body of the unemployed is nearly as large as it has been at any time during the past eight years. Because churchmen and statesmen realize this they have busied themselves to maintain the morals of the nation.

The clergy call upon all Christians to help their less fortunate fellow citizens by sharing their burdens and keeping up the community centers which furnish educational and recreational occupations. Today there are thousands of these centers, uncontrolled by any particular group or sect and open to all who need their ministries without regard to race or creed. The ablest industrial experts are also concentrating on the problems of the unemployed with a view to stimulating old industries and starting new ones.

It is not too much to say that a fellowship hitherto latent in Great Britain is now active, intelligent and measurably successful. With characteristic prudence, foresight and courage she is confronting her obstacles determined to subdue them. And the Victorian society, which was too often the paradise of the rich and the perdition of the poor, is as dead as the dinosaur.

Children Under 14 Barred From Cotton Mills Work For More Than 12 Years

Editor Constitution: Recent statements relative to the elimination of child labor, as the result of the cotton textile code, have been untrue and have created the false impression that thousands of little children of 10, 11 and 12 years of age have been employed in cotton mills.

It has been 12 years since any child under 14 years of age has been legally employed in any cotton mill in the United States.

The census bureau enumerators found only 236 alleged violations in all the cotton mills in this country, and say that they are certain that none of those illegally employed were under 13 years of age.

TEXT AND PRETEXT

BY M. ASHBY JONES.

A Religion of Grace.

The greatest of the Christian apostles was wont to close his letters to the churches with the benediction: "The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you." This prayer has been repeated so often that its significance has been lost. We might well pause this Sunday morning and repeat to ourselves, the "grace of Jesus." Look at Him. There is the charm of childhood in His absolute lack of self-consciousness. A beauty of manner, which only the word graciousness will describe.

One cannot think of His demanding any royal etiquette, or religious ritual, in order to approach Him. He took no thought for His dignity. Listen to Him rebuke those would-be courtier-disciples: "Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not." Look into the surprised eyes of that harlot as she hears Him saying to her: "Neither do I condemn thee." Now a poor diseased woman has crept so close to Him that she can touch the hem of His garment and when discovered, instead of a rebuke, hears Him saying: "Thy faith hath made thee whole."

His Magnetism.

The religionists of His day could not understand Jesus, because they could not understand that He did not come to be ministered to, but to minister. That He came to serve these very publicans and sinners, whom they spent their time avoiding. And when men asked what they could do to please Him He told them to give a cup of cold water to a thirsty one, or find the least of all of His brethren and minister to him and He would count it as a service to Himself.

This grace was not only His charm, but His power. Wanting nothing for Himself. He feared nothing for Himself. Jesus could not be coerced, bribed, nor frightened. He could so easily put aside the crown offered by His friends, or face with calmness the death threatened by His enemies. The significance of His death is to be found in the simple truth, that He died for others and His resurrection signifies the immortality of love. Such a life is irresistible. Men can withstand force and logic and refuse to bend to authority, but such love expressed in the grace of Jesus shall one day rule in the hearts of all men.

No wonder the Apostle Paul would never close a letter to one of his churches without the prayer that "the grace of the Lord Jesus" should abide with them. This grace is absolutely essential to a church of Christ. Without it, how impotent and useless it is in the world. Much is being said today about the churches losing their hold upon the masses of the people. If that is true it is the most serious indictment which can be brought against the church. It means the church is losing her grace, which was the charm of her founder. It is futile to reply that it is because men are so wicked. Publicans, harlots and outcasts flocked to Jesus, just because they were wicked, and felt that He was in the world for their sakes.

Power of a Church.

Can it be possible that men are losing faith in the church, but not in Jesus? Is there a doubt in their minds as to whether the mission of the church is the same as the mission of Jesus? Once let the idea become current in any community, that the church is there for the sake of its members—to feed their pride and minister to their needs—and it will become a dead factor in the life of that community. Once people come to believe that the church thinks more of its dignity than of the welfare of society, and that its mission is only to the respectable, or the righteous, then its service as a church of Christ is at an end.

The attractiveness of the church must be the attractiveness of the Master. It must be its grace. Men must be sure that the church is in the world, not for its own sake, but for the sake of others. Its mission must be to serve and not to be served. Churches have too often gone into the world coaxing and cajoling, bribing or threatening men, in order to win their gifts. How ungracious. How unattractive. The Christ church, wanting nothing for itself, need never cringe to the powerful, nor be tempted to threaten the weak. Its arms must be outstretched with a "whosoever" hospitality, and its smile must be as winsome and gracious to the outcast as to the mighty.

Such a church must have the fearlessness of grace. It must speak the truth in love. There is a bullying and abuse which is the expression of a sensitive egotism. But there is a faithful courage, which is permeated with grace and truth. If the church, like its Lord, is not seeking its own advancement, it cannot be bribed by the rich, nor frightened by the mob. It will not bend its policies for popularity, nor adulterate its teachings to become influential. Its enthusiasm will not be inspired by the hope of reward here or hereafter, but will spring from its divine love. A church filled with the grace of the Lord Jesus will become the most potent influence in the community and its supreme and irresistible appeal will be its love for men.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Professor Albert Einstein, expert on relativity, out-Lindberghed Lindbergh when he ducked a committee of welcome and was in New Jersey while Samuel Untermeyer, resplendent in his usual attire and with his gardenia, Mayor John P. O'Brien and others, waited to welcome him. The scientist's property has been confiscated by the nazis, and Messrs. Untermeyer and O'Brien were ready with condolences.

But no! Somehow, a tug got along the Westernland and took the professor's party off for the eventual quiet of Princeton, N. J. Not even Colonel Lindbergh had the temerity to turn down the city's committee of welcome, though he tried hard enough, and was outmaneuvered only by Grover Whalen, who never let a celebrity escape in those days.

Speaking of Professor Einstein, we go back to the days when he came over for a first visit and to speak before scientists on his baffling theory concerning the universe. He liked the New York skyline, he said politely, and thought that this was a great country. Someone then asked him to explain briefly his theory of relativity so that even a tabloid reader might grasp it without blue-prints, or even with them.

The doctor was considerably fussed. It seemed in fact, that he knew less about his theory at the moment than the gentlemen of the press who had studied up on the assignment in a vague sort of way. There came the suggestion that we all come to his hotel that afternoon, because the doctor had had "illness from the sea."

The bell captain at the hotel snared us on our arrival and said that he had a story. This was the usual thing, but we listened.

"See him?" he inquired. We did, and it was none other than the doctor. "Notice the violin and the pipe? He can play the violin, but he never smokes a pipe or anything else. Ask him."

When "hand-outs" were distributed, which necessarily were turned in to the papers verbatim, because none of the reporters knew what it was all about, we approached Dr. Einstein through an interpreter and asked what might be the idea of carrying about an empty pipe.

"It is very soothing," he said, "as your tobacco is to you."

NON-POLITICAL CANDIDATE.

We had a chat with W. Arthur Cunningham, who is running on the fusion ticket for comptroller, otherwise the gentleman who handles the city's money, and he was having the time of his life. He has a medal for bravery in action in France. He doesn't know anything about politics, has never run for office, and has never been active in any political organization. That, we think, awards him, as candidate for office, the palm. We doubt if it ever happened before here.

Leaders in Political Science Meet in Atlanta This Week

Noted Speakers Will Address Two-Day Annual Convention of Association; 4 Sessions Planned.

The statutes of research in the social sciences in the south will be described by Professor B. B. Kendrick, of the Woman's College of North Carolina, chairman of the southern regional committee of the Social Science Research Council, at a luncheon at 12 o'clock Friday afternoon as a feature of the sixth annual session of the Southern Political Science Association at the Piedmont hotel.

Dr. Kendrick arrived at Emory University last week to spend two weeks in conferences with Emory faculty members and administrative officers on the conditions affecting research. Emory is one of the five southern universities selected by the regional committee of the research council for visitations dealing with research problems. The purpose of the southern regional committee is to promote interest in research in social sciences as well as in the physical sciences.

DR. J. W. MANNING.

The political science session begins Thursday afternoon with registration. Ralph McGill, sports editor of The Constitution, will speak on conditions in Cuba, at a dinner at the Piedmont hotel at 6:30 o'clock Thursday night, when President R. H. Holliday, of L. Higgins, of the Woman's College Cox College, will preside. Dr. Ruth of Alabama, will preside at a conference on international relations, at 8 o'clock Thursday night, when Keener C. Frazer, of the University of North Carolina, will discuss the League of Nations and disarmament, E. G. Howe, of the University of Alabama, will talk on the subject, "Danger Zones on the European Map," and D. F. Fleming, of Vanderbilt, will speak on "Nationalism vs. Internationalism" in the foreign paliey of the United States.

Dr. J. W. Manning, associate professor of political science at the University of Kentucky, will hold a round table discussion on county consolidation, at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning. Other round table meetings will include county finance in the south, presided over by George R. Sherrill on Saturday, administrative reorganization in the south, presided over by Dean W. C. Jackson, University of North Carolina, ou Friday; and problems of municipal government in the south, presided over by Robert Rankin, of Duke, on Friday.

Subjects to be discused Friday included governmental aspects of social planning under the Roosevelt administration, possible action of the sunessee Valley Authority, and the preme court on the NIRA, the Ten-Muscle Shoals development.

Professor Thomas H. Reed, of the University of Michigan, who will speak at 8 o'clock Friday night on constructive economy and local government reform, will be tendera a reception at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Dr. H. J. Pearce Jr., of Brenau, treasurer of the association, will preside at the annual banquet, at which Professor Reed will speak, and at which Dr. Cullen B. Gosnell, president, will deliver a message on the subject of executive government.

Radical Revision Program Is Initiated by Methodists

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.
(Of the Methodist Ministry.)

The approaching general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to be held next May at Jackson, Miss., is provoking an agitation among the communicants of that denomination that probably has not been surpassed since the days of 1844, when American Methodism separated into the northern and southern branches. Suggestions are being made, and earnest efforts initiated, to induce the coming general conference to enact legislation that is considered quite radical and even declared to be red by some. The agitation is church-wide and is participated in by all classes, from bishops down to the obscure lay member.

The general conference, meeting once in four years, is southern Methodism's lawmaking body. The 1934 session will be the twenty-second since the separation in 1844. Some 472 delegates representing 46 annual conferences attended the session of 1930. The next session is expected to have fewer delegates, as the conferences in Mexico, Brazil and Korea have been set up as independent churches. The delegated membership is made up of equal numbers of clerical and lay members. The average time devoted to a session is a little more than 20 days. The 1918 session, which was held in Atlanta, lasted only 17 days.

Bishop W. F. McMurry is foremost in leading the discussions for a new deal to be made for southern Methodists by the general conference. Bishop McMurry was made a bishop by the Atlanta general conference, and is now in charge of the fifth episcopal district, which consists of the Baltimore, Kentucky, Louisville and West Virginia annual conferences. Not only does his ministerial position add weight to whatever he might say, but his mature judgment is so well known that it adds impressiveness to his deliberate opinions.

"Machinery Should Be Reshaped."

In a signed statement Bishop McMurry has this to say regarding the legislation that should be considered:

"As I see the church after many years of opportunity for detailed observation, it is my conviction that the time has come for us to reshape our machinery, set higher standards for our ministry, eliminate inefficiency and duplication, and go to the task of saving the world with a new and high purpose unencumbered by machinery or methods or else that will retard the progress of the Kingdom of God."

In his signed statement, Bishop McMurry declares it his judgment that the work of southern Methodism, as administered by general boards, could be wisely administered by four departments, namely, education, work outside the United States, work inside the United States and superannuate endowment.

He urges that the general board of education take over the work of the laymens' activities board. That all work outside America be administered by a foreign board and that all work inside the United States, except that of education, be administered by a home board. He would maintain the superannuate board a separate body. He urges that the number of presiding elders be reduced at least one-third and that annual conferences be enlarged.

Following Bishop McMarry's declaration in favor of readjustments in Southern Methodism's machinery, scores of ministers and laymen have given expression as to what they think should, or should not, be done by the general conference. The chief topics that receive attention pertain to the bishopric, presiding elders, ordination of women, equalization of ministers' salaries, and a different method of raising funds for benevolent work. Should a mere bagatelle of the recommendations be enacted into law, southern Methodism would be so radically changed from the ideal of John Wesley, its founder, that he would not be able to recognize it.

Rev. Isaac Tyson, of Camilla, Georgia, in a signed statement, offers what he terms needed changes, both destructive and constructive. The gist of his suggested changes are as follows:

There should be a separation of the legislative and adminstrative affairs of southern Methodism. The paid presiding eldership should be abolished. Abolish the current system of conference secretaries. Abolish the episcopacy. Abolish the general and annual conference commissions on finance and the general conference commission on the budget.

Defects Pointed Out.

Dr. W. T. Hunnicutt, presiding elder of the Griffin district, north Georgia conference, says Methodism is failing to make desired progress, due to the effort to operate in a new age under an old system. Pointing out defects of the system now in vogue, he says:

"Our system generates restlessness both among the preachers and among the people. Our system is ill adapted for the recognition of its fittest men. Our system burdens the church with unfit men because it has a no adequate plan for eliminating the unfit. On the other hand, no system makes it so easy for a church to take advantage of the unselfish consecration of a man who is well adapted to the ministry. Our system of administration is the most expensive of all forms of church government, and is top-heavy."

Dr. Hunnicutt declares himself in favor of electing bishops for four-year terms, with privilege of re-election, and the election of presiding elders by secret ballot, and the extension of certain democratic privileges to the congregations.

Much of the present agitation pertains to the election of bishops and their tenure in office. Fifteen bishops now supervise the work of southern Methodism. Next year three of them will be retired, and five more will retire in 1938. Those to retire in 1934 are, Bishops W. A. Candler, C. M. Denny, and H. M. DuBose. It is argued that ten bishops should prove sufficient for administrative purposes under the new system, and that no new bishops should be chosen this time.

The presiding eldership system is being assailed from many quarters. Expense, uselessness, cumbersomeness, politics are the customary charges laid against the present system. Methodism's peculiar policy of administering costs annually the sum of $1,557,743, and the argument is made that the cost is greater than the system is worth. Reduction of the number of bishops and presiding elders, and enlargement of annual conferences and districts, with stated minimum salaries and abolishment of excessive pensions are suggested as means for overcoming this serious handicap.

Women Ordination To Be Sought.

Ordination for women will again be sought at the coming general conference. Four years ago the matter was fervently urged and favorably considered. During the quadrennium the sentiment has gained momentum and will be urged again with renewed vigor. The Woman's Missionary Council has assumed leadership in the demand for ordination for women and each year has devoted something of its attention and effort in promoting the demand. Mrs. J. W. Perry, of Nashville, president of the council, says:

"To many who are interested in the enlarged sphere of women, it is thought of as a movement to claim woman's rights but as an effort to correct the wrongs which women have suffered. They are not seeking to usurp man's place, but they are concerned in women having the opportunity to make their contribution to various phases of world activities. In the solution of many of the problems of our day which the church must face as its responsibility, women should share in framing the policies and in executing the plans."

Rev. C. T. Rogers, of Williamston, N. C., voices the sentiment of many Methodists when he says, "Our denomination, with its once evangelistic fire, was destined for hundreds of years to lead the world in the saving of souls; yet look at the statistics for the past several years and especially see how we are trailing behind others in 1932. Isn't there a cause? Where are your soul-saving preachers and soul-saving churches? We are fooling no one. They are few and far between. What many of us need is what the 120 had when they went into the upper room and what we all need is what they all received up there. The east is about as far from the west as our church at present is from that much-needed necessary power of God."

Expressing a similar sentiment, J. C. Jackson, of Owensboro, Ky., says: "We sometimes lose sight of the great taks that confronts us as Methodists. I sometimes think we become so interested in improving ourselves, our methods and our equipment that we forget the one for whom Christ came—the unsaved sinner. There are things which we need not fear to build our hopes upon. We can depend on the Bible being the inspired word of God. May we think the matter through carefully and prayerfully and not be pessimists."

Over his own signature, September 15, Bishop Arthur J. Moore stated that southern Methodism paid in 1932 less than half as much for general benevolences as in 1929, with the result that missionaries were recalled, institutions closed, sections of work abandoned and a general retreat all along the line. Since 1929 pastors' salaries have been cut 22 1-2 per cent and presiding elders' salaries reduced 25 1-2 per cent. The decline in benevolent giving was much more drastic. In 1929 Methodism paid 67.7 per cent on a general assessment of $2,130,000; in 1932 on an assessment of $2,000,000, only 36.9 per cent was paid.

The two Georgia conferences show a record for 1932 in their benevolent giving that is in keeping with the record for the whole church. In 1929 the North Georgia conference paid 67 per cent and in 1932 it paid 41 per cent of its apportionment. The South Georgia conference in 1929 paid 76 per cent and in 1932 paid 38.7 per cent. In each instance the decrease was noted even when the apportionments were reduced each year.

Says County-Unit System Will Wreck the Party If Not State Itself

Editor Constitution: A "county-crat" is a man who puts his county above the state. He may call himself a democrat, in which role he is like a wolf in a sheepskin. If you strip him of his disguise, you will find that he is simply a selfish human who believes in a ruling class, as long as he is one of them.

The county-crat believes that the state should be subservient to the counties, instead of the counties being subservient to the state. The state is the creator of counties, the counties are the creatures of the state. What a strange and perilous condition when the creator has become subject to its creatures!

May it not fairly be said that the legislature is not democratic but county-cratic, when the control of the house may always be exercised by men who represent a majority of the counties but only a small minority of the people? The senate is worse in one respect, because it admits of a voting majority of members who represent less than a majority of either counties or people.

Your editorial of October 13, arraigning the legislature for incompetence, for putting politics above the welfare of the state for frittering its time away and failing to act on the most important matters in a season of stress, deserves the serious consideration of all Georgians.

What else could be expected of a body which is not truly representative of the people, when a majority of both houses represent approximately only a third of the people of the state? The dishonest scheme of representation, devised and perpetuated by designing politicians, is bearing its normal fruit.

The legislature is corrupted, not with money, but with domination by a coterie of small counties. Generally, power vested in a minority begets arrogance, irresponsibility and utter indifference to the welfare of the masses. None of these human frailties is calculated to make a good legislator. On the other hand, the representatives of a two-thirds (or less) majority of the people may well be intimidated, or at least discouraged by the ever-present liability to be outvoted by the ruling clique.

Judged by the history of the last session, the legislature has gone stale. It needs rejuvenation, or reformation or something to make it efficient. The county-crats have failed to make good.

Most of this trouble comes from the constitutional scheme of giving eight counties three, 30 counties two representatives and all other counties one representative each in the house. This is the foundation of county-ocracy. The superstructure is the creation since 1900 of 24 small counties, which has been carelessly allowed by the legislature in view of its effect being to strengthen the oligarchy of small counties.

Such is the unfortunate situation in our state. If it is not remedied by our party, it will eventually wreck the party in this state, even if it does not wreck the state.

Relief, Not Theories, Needed by South and West Writes Emerson George

Editor Constitution: Governor Talmadge's just criticism that the farmers of the south cannot compete with the minimum wage of 30 cents per hour, provided by the government for the unemployed on relief work projects, was deplored by Alan Johnstone, field representative of the federal emergency relief organization, who was present when the criticism was made.

Mr. Johnstone is reported by the press as saying that one of the south's greatest afflictions is a "psychology of poverty that makes it afraid to pay real wages for real work."

I do not know Mr. Johnstone. If he is from the south, his life has wholly lacked observation; if he is from some other section his criticism is merely a criticism without foundation of knowledge. In either event he does not know what the word "psychology" means, and perhaps he has never known real poverty. The miser suffers in a measure from the psychology of poverty, as does the man with enough, who is obsessed by the fear of losing what he has. There is no "psychology" in the poverty of the farmers of the south. Their poverty is real, not imaginary.

No one questions the perfect sincerity and the great ability of the president in his heroic efforts to lift the country out of its depressed condition, but it does not help, when one of his representatives makes such utterly foolish statements as Mr. Johnstone is reported to have made, and adds to that the further statement that one of the aims of the recovery act is to eliminate that condition, to-wit: The affliction of the south from the "psychology of poverty," which he is also reported to have made.

With all due respect to the "brain trust" of the nation, it is futile to set a pattern of high wages for employes without first providing some way for the employer to procure the wherewith to pay. That can be done only by increasing the volume of trade, and that increase can come only by an adequate increase in the prices of the staple commodities of the country, so that the purchasing power of the masses will be strengthened.

In the meantime neither the south nor the west needs instruction in "psychology." What they need is $1 wheat and 12 1-2 cent cotton. Until these are provided without inflation of currency there can be no recovery for either section.

Governor Talmadge speaks out without fear. Why cannot the great newspapers of the south join him in his constructive criticism? He is not trying to pull down, but to build, and, as every true builder, feels bound to call attention now and then to defective material in the edifice.

Holds Uniform Laws to Control Motor Traffic Should Not Apply to Weight

Editor Constitution:

I have just read your editorial entitled "For Uniform Motor Laws."

Knowing, as I do, your views generally upon the subject of traffic over our highways, I do not believe that you intended in this editorial to commit yourself to the proposition that the laws of the several states should be uniform as to the dimension and weight of commercial vehicles which may be operated over our highways. In fact, the concluding part of the editorial indicates to the contrary. It may be desirable to have such uniformity in respect to the width, height and speed of such vehicles, but as to the weights thereof, it seems to me obvious that this is a matter that must be left to the individual states so that they may adjust their road programs to their varying physical characteristics, their general needs and their financial ability.

To me it is inconceivable that our southern states, with comparatively light highway traffic and semi-tropical conditions, should be required to build, in order to bring about uniformity, a type of highway necessary for the heavy traffic and climatic conditions of many of our northern states. Such a program in its last analysis spells money and would involve the construction of a type of road in Georgia and in the south generally not necessary for the needs of a great majority of the motor users of our highways. To adapt existing roads and bridges to the carrying of loads that might be recommended under a policy of nation-wide uniformity, would require the expenditures of hundreds of millions of dollars for further highway improvements to accommodate a relatively few commercial motor vehicles. It is worthy of note that of all the motor vehicles registered in Georgia fully 98 per cent of them do not weigh together with their manufacturer's rated carrying capacity in excess of 12,000 pounds.

Such a program would also in this state retard the expansion of our system of hard surface roads, inasmuch as the monies now available for that purpose would have to be used for the building of heavy type roads, rather than in expanding our present types of construction which have been found to be adequate for the great majority of our highway traffic. I doubt seriously that Georgia, under such a program of uniformity, could, with the funds now annually available for highway purposes, build one-half as much hard surface mileage as it is now constructing under its present program.

As I see it, each state must base its road building program upon the needs of its own people, its own traffic and climatic conditions and not in respect to the desires of a few commercial vehicles from other states which may occasionally use its roads.

The Story Behind the Picture

By ROY ROBERT

Nancy Hart Highway

This is another of a series of articles and romantic stories based on the historic wealth of Georgia. Pictures of scenes described will be found in the rotogravure section of this issue, along with a photo of the Roving Pontiac which gathered them.

It has been said that man is never so happy as when he is putting into the soil the labor of his hands and the sweat of his brow, and taking at harvest time the rich yield of earth.

In the towering hills of north Georgia rich valleys nestle, quiet with the harmony of natural wealth. There man has borrowed from the sun and taken from nature her jewels in the form of luscious fruits, golden grain, fleecy cotton and the red meats of animals for his food.

Through those hills winds a beautiful highway—a white shimmering ribbon of concrete as smooth as the hard surface of a floor. Its curves lend beauty and the straight stretches delight the motorist as he travels through the tangy autumn air, breathing in the most wonderful of all nature's pleasures.

It is the Nancy Hart highway winding through one of the most delightful of all sections, an area that beckons man to enjoy the best of earth and heaven. Particularly fitting is this name for the road, a name that bespeaks power and wisdom. Previously in this series I have related the life and strength of this hill woman of gaunt frame and indomitable will.

I have related her glorious part in the American Revolution—how she dressed in man's clothing, spent a day in the camp of the enemy and enabled the generals of her favorite army to win a glorious victory. Perhaps Nancy Hart is Georgia's outstanding woman.

Rotogravure Pictures.

Only a few days ago the Roving Pontiac of The Constitution visited the section around Toccoa and Tallulah Falls. For several hours a cameraman was busy "shooting" the scenes that are ever a lure for the eye, a balm for the soul and a treasure for the heart. In the rotogravure section of this issue you will find pictures of the delightful scenes, photographs that will carry you in spirit into the tall hills and fertile valleys of the section.

Looking over the pictures one does not know the most attractive. Perhaps it is a matter of selection, but the gorgeous beauty of Reflection lake between Toccoa and Hollywood is a scene of serenity that brings memories and thoughts of sunsets too beautiful for sanity and too alluring for peace.

Who has not stood on the banks of a lake at sunset to watch the golden shots that bang against the water from the sun—who has not shivered with the strange fear that such brings to the heart. Who has not grown serene in keeping with the mood of nature as the golden and red shafts grow faint as the receding sounds of bells, until a stillness comes and the wonder of night and stars envelop the senses.

Another picture of incomparable beauty is the scene of Toccoa Falls, which, with a sheer drop of 186 feet, is even higher than famed Niagara. Tumbling over the cliffs is a silvery spray that disintegrates into a fine mist before it drops to the base of the cliff, trembling in a kind of shroud before it settles again into its natural state and winds away through green dells to the sea.

Agricultural Wealth.

So powerful is the beauty of this section of north Georgia that every man and woman is made a poet in contemplation of deur of nature. The sunsets blending behind blue hills; the streams green and cool; the brilliant foliage in autumn and spring, and the terrific splendor of the ensemble of nature.

But the sections does not confine its ministrations to the soul of man. In those fertile valleys nestling between the spires of stone and clay, is wealth untold. Countless years of rain have brought the soft fertility of mountain top to the valley. Shifting nature has deposited and ground into the clays the rich loam until the place is a veritable wealth of productivity.

Only recently Dr. E. B. Highsmith, a prominent Atlanta physician, entertained some 500 persons on his model farm near Toccoa. It was a day of instruction and delight for the guests who were shown the modern farm methods which have enabled Dr. Highsmith to earn a profit during these last few years of depression and disrupted marketing conditions.

It must be a wonderful dream come true to Dr. Highsmith—a dream perhaps conceived in his boyhood days when he resided among the hills of Stephens county. In the rich loam of the valley he produces fat grain and luscious legumes. In the wide pastures where grass makes a green food carpet for cattle are scores of highly bred animals that give more than they take.

And that must be the theme of nature—if you permit the goddess to work for you she will inevitably give more than she takes.

Do You Know Yourself?

BY JULIAN PENNINGTON,
Vocational Psychologist

This is another of a series of articles by Mr. Pennington in which he will aid Constitution readers in deciding for themselves whether they are in the pursuit for which they are best suited, and give advice as to how each can better succeed in his or her work.

THIS ONE THING I DO.

John and William are seated in the dining room of a large New York hotel, talking over old times and, in memory, living again the days that carried them back some 30 years or more.

JULIAN PENNINGTON

About that time these two men were graduated the same day from the same college. That day John carried off the honors, with his flags flying high, so to speak, while William quietly received his diploma from the school of engineering.

During these years John went into all kinds of ventures, almost all the time, to hear him tell it, being just next door to fame and fortune. First he was out west promoting something, then back in New York with another venture, each a brilliant idea destined to turn the world upside down. None of them, for one reason or the other, quite carried through.

But to hear him tell it, the fault was never his, and he was a mighty convincing talker at that. He could almost cause one to believe that black is white.

Brilliant, vivacious, sociable by nature, a born leader, a stem-winder, stock full of dynamic energy, he made friends by the hundreds. Many men and women who thought they knew him wondered why he never quite "arrived."

William, on the other hand, was quiet, deep, steady, persistent, who early in life happened to discover the one vocation in which his talents could fully find expression. Remaining with it, he soon became recognized as an authority in his line. Accordingly, his professional knowledge was in demaad. We have Johns and Williams in every city of the country.

We all know the need of giving every assistance possible to the average boy to make sure that he succeeds in life. We also need to keep in mind the fact that the brilliant fellow can also fail. A great steamer also needs a compass.

The writer knows a man who is a graduate physician. He spent years working for this degree. He did not like to practice medicine, so went back to college and prepared himself to be a dentist. Finding that this did not appeal to him either, he spent four more years equipping himself as an electrical engineer. He is now a wholesale flour salesman dealing with a commodity entirely foreign to any of his former training. At last he is satisfied, but count the wasted hours, weeks, months and years before finally arriving at the work that gives him satisfaction.

One may be extravagant with money, but by hard work and application replenish a fortune that slipped through one's fingers, but at best there are not too many years in one's life and wasted time is gone forever.

We are living in an age of specialists. "This one thing I do" should be written in large letters on the walls of every school. Scattered energy—fondness for change and variety—these play havoc with too many people. It is essential that one enter the right vocation and stay with it until every detail of it has been mastered. The world needs those who are recognized authorities.

Parents used to say that they were going to educate Walter for law and Mary to teach music. Accordingly, Walter, with a natural aptitude toward something entirely different, was sent to law school to bury his nose in a study for which he had no interest nor enthusiasm, while his sister, capable of becoming a splendid instructor in physical culture, was forced to remain at the keyboard of a piano in the vain attempt to rival the genius and technique of a Wagner.

Thank goodness that day is rapidly passing. The depression was not without some good, and it taught many of us to see things as they are. Today parents are anxious to discover the one vocation in which Walter and Mary will be able to best express their real ability.

In every library there are valuable books on vocational guidance, and the best of these should be read carefully by parents as well as by boys and girls mature enough for the subject. Many facts can be learned in this manner that will go a long way toward preventing many square pegs from unconsciously entering round holes.

We have doctors who should have been merchants, lawyers who should have been chemists, salesmen who should have been teachers and ministers who should have been promoters. On every hand we know people who have allowed their real talent to lie idle because it has not been discovered and directed.

The Happenings of The Church World

BY HERMAN L. TURNER.
Pastor, Covenant Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, Ga.

To a religiously-minded person, there are some interesting sidelights on the national industrial recovery act propaganda. For many years, men in the pulpit—Catholic, Protestant and Jew—have been preaching in the name of religious ideals of social righteousness which embodied a plea for shorter hours of labor, more equitable distribution of income, abolition of child labor, the free right of labor to collective bargaining, and the like. In many instances, congregations tolerated such appeals for practical justice with a decided show of impatience. In certain cases men were driven from pulpits because they dared challenge the justice of a social order which failed to accept these principles as a minimum of economic decency. Now, almost overnight, it has become a patriotic duty to uphold these ideals. Many, who a few months ago, reviled socially-minded ministers for advocating these measures of economic justice, now demand their acceptance and even threaten to boycott the merchants and manufacturers who do not accept the program.

The Federal Council Bulletin comments on the new response of youth: Observers of the present-day life of young people in school and college and society tell us that there has been a decided change in the last few years. From an attitude of revolt and "self-expressionism," which characterized youth at the close of the war, we have passed through a period of apathy to a time when youth is searching for reality. Young people are not as restive as they were under leadership of those who are older, provided that leadership gives evidence of insight and wisdom. They are coming to understand that experience may be worth something, after all. If Christianity has the answer to the most momentous issues of life, now is a crucial time for the church to make that apparent to youth.

Correspondent to The Christian Century states that communists are losing ground in China. "Will China become fascist or communist? This is another intriguing question. An organization of 'red' or 'blue' shirts is on the horizon which, with other things, suggests a trend towards fascism. In one sense this is a counter-move to communism. On the basis of various signs this movement seems to be somewhat weaker than it was. It is still a possibility peering around the corners of China's political streets. But recent drives against it seem to have somewhat lessened the strength of its organization. So far as a general inference is safe, all this means that radical forces are losing somewhat of their former stride and a tendency to more conservative policies is appearing. But who can tell what will finally emerge from this interesting situation? Since the guess of one is as good as that of another, I shall not even indulge in a guess."

The organized peace forces of Washington, under the guidance of the national council for prevention of war and other organizations, are promoting a two-week disarmament campaign of worldwide scope. A mass meeting was held in Washington last week to open the campaign; plans have been made also for nearly 1,000 other meetings throughout the country. "At least one big meeting in every state, and at least one meeting in every congressional district" is a part of the plan. Resolutions adopted at these meetings will be sent by cable to Geneva, where the final meeting of the campaign will be held the Sunday afternoon before the resumption of the conference, October 16. In England, Viscount Cecil, and in France, Jean Dupuy are directing similar campaigns. The minimum program asked for in this campaign includes substantial reduction of existing armaments, no rearmament, abolition of aggressive weapons within a definite period, elimination of bombing from the air, limitation of expenditure to prevent rivalries in armament, etc.

A denominational weekly carries an editorial with this title: "Are the Churches Bankrupt?" "So says a Unitarian minister out in Des Moines in a recent issue of the New York Times, and he makes a big noise over his alleged discovery. He adduces the fact that 'widely extended denominational programs can no longer be supported,' says church publications are being forced out of existence, that 'many churches are closed,' 'money fo. missionary work is running low, and missionaries by the hundreds their stations closed, are being called home.' 'Many churches have built costly churches which they now cannot pay for,' and he thinks the churches should stop and inquire how many unnecessary things they are doing, and that they should see that there are too many churches and retrench. But the very same publication of The Times contains an article on 'Turning the Corner' in the business world and describes 'the wreckage of the depression' and warns against thinking that 'this wreckage has already been cleared away.' The charge that the churches are bankrupt is overdrawn, and few have been closed and a few missionaries have been called home. The depression has hit many churches hard, but not as hard as it has hit business itself as conducted by business experts. The serious question about the churches is whether they are bankrupt spiritually, and this cannot be answered in the affirmative. Financial hardship may prove a blessing to the churches, as it has done to business and especially banking, and many of them can say with David, 'Thou hast enlarged me when I was in distress.'"

"The state of Mississippi faces a problem as to just what to do with the case of J. S. Chance, share cropper on the estate of J. H. Thornton, nine miles west of Cleveland. Chance's 7-year-old son succumbed to malignant malaria some time ago and the charge of manslaughter is brought against the father because he neglected to provide the child with medical attention. Chance, member of a holiness cult, insisted that if the Lord wanted to heal the Lord would heal. He is a small, middle-aged man and appeared in court clutching a frayed Bible and quoted passage after passage in defense of his faith that the Lord would heal whom he wanted to live. With the average Mississippian looking upon every word of the Bible as divinely inspired, it is difficult to see how a jury is to be found that will convict this earnest Christian of manslaughter." Capt. Hayne Ellis To Inspect Atlanta Units on 'Navy Day'

Native Georgian Will Be Honor Guest Friday on Anniversary of Birth of Theodore Rosevelt.

By ENSIGN COWEN LEWIS.

Friday, October 27—the anniversary of the birth of navy-minded former President Theodore Roosevelt—is observed throughout the nation as Navy Oay. Atlanta's celebration of the event will bring to the city as principal speaker on a Navy Day program, Captain Hayne Ellis, United States navy, a Macon, Ga., officer, who is now head of the office of naval intelligence of the navy department, in Washington, D. C.

CAPTAIN HAYNE ELLIS.

Captain Ellis will arrive on the night of Thursday, October 26, and on the following day will be the guest of navy and naval reserve and marine corps officers of Atlanta at a dinner that night. At 10:15 Friday night he will speak over station WSB on some phase of the Navy Day theme—"A Treaty Navy, Fully Manned."

Plans for Navy Day observance in the nation are under the general supervision of the Navy League of the United Staes. Georgia's chairman is Lieutenant Commander Jesse Draper, U. S. N. R., who also is naval aide to Governor Eugene Talmadge. Aiding him are the naval officers stationed at Georgia Tech, and the officers of the United States naval reserve in the city.

Captain Ellis will, it is announced, probably make three visits to military units in Atlanta: One to Georgia Tech to inspect the Naval R. O. T. C. unit there, another to the armory of the United Staes naval reserve here, which has ranked first in the entire United States for the last three years in efficiency, and a third visit to Fort McPherson. Captain J. J. London, U. S. N. of Georgia Tech, Lieutenant Harry F. Dobbs, U. S. N. R. of the reserve batallion and Major Ralph Howell of the 4th Corps area will welcome the visiting naval officer when he makes the visits.

Present at the Navy Day dinner Friday night will be all of the city's naval and naval reserve officers. There will be a brief program of speeches, but the event will be informal in style and the message of primary importance will be that delivered by Captain Ellis in his radio address that night.

Captain Ellis was born in Macon, and was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1900. While at the academy he was ordered to sea during the Spanish-American War and served at the Asiatic station.

He has been commander of the U. S. S. Connecticut, the U. S. S. Arethusa, the U. S. S. Iris, the U S. S. Rochester, which took General Pershing to Arica, Chile, in 1924, and of the U. S. S. Arkansas, flagship of Rear Admiral Laning.

The captain served tours of duty at the naval academy; in Kansas City as officer in charge of naval recruiting; and in the hydrographic office in Washington, D. C., where he was later connected with the bureau of navigation and as aid to the chief of that bureau.

In 1919 he commanded the light cruiser Salem and two years later became a member and president of the naval examining board. He was appointed to his present position as director of naval intelligence in 1931. Captain Ellis has been awarded numerous badges for services in the Boxer Rebellion, the Philippine, Mexican and Haitian campaigns, the Spanish-American War and the World War.

Saloon Already Back in Many Places, Atlanta Christian Council Charges

Editor's Note—This is another of a series of articles on prohibition prepared by the executive committee of the Christian Council of Atlanta for exclusive publication in The Constitution.

After having joined lustily in the cry for the release of liquor from the restraints of the eighteenth amendment, one of our leading local journals declares it to be "the duty of good citizens, regardless of former differences of opinion, to work co-operatively for the establishment of a system of effective control in the interest of true temperance and social welfare."

Perchance there might be found those citizens who were inclined to mildly question the qualifications of the editor to speak with finality on the subject of "the duty of good citizens" but certainly there are none who question the complete right of the editor to proclaim such liquor opinions as please him and serve his purpose.

Perhaps it is somewhat premature to refer to former differences of opinion, for, as a matter of fact, complete conciliation of opinions has not been entirely achieved nor is it likely to be so long as governmental participation in the liquor business is the condition essential to agreement—so long as a truce with liquor is the program upon which political parties are embarked.

However, this much our friends in the other camp may fully rely upon: There will be no diminution of effort upon the part of prohibitionists to mitigate the evils of this curse, shield men from its contagion and succor them when overtaken, and in due season appeal from the mad histeria of today to the calm, intelligent judgment of the American people.

For, let this be clearly understood: There is not the slightest inclination of prohibitionists to dicker and dally with the liquor traffic. It is their absolute purpose to destroy it, and the first essential step is to outlaw it.

This resolution rests firmly upon the uncloaded conviction that the liquor traffic is incompatible with a sound economic, social and moral order and the further belief that there is enough virtue and strength in this republic to prosecute a war to the finish.

Therefore, if those who hold these views are expected to accept the futility of control by separate state action they will assuredly ask to be excused. They will seek in every way possible to abate the destructive effects involved in the tragedy of repeal but they will be found always where honor keeps her tryst with faith, where courage flies her unsullied flag above the ramparts of human hope and happiness, where reason is enthroned and ordered liberty is established.

Prohibitionists may be relied upon to do their full part to make the best of a desperate situation precipitated by repeal but the shame of a legalized liquor traffic will never be tolerable to them. Indeed, the very peril of the new situation lays a still heavier and more insistent obligation upon all who regard sobriety to be essential to national safety. As patriotic citizens they will exert every effort to mitigate the effect of the social, moral and economic blunder until the wrong can be righted.

Prohibitionists will accordingly seek the adoption of laws designed to minimize the use of intoxicants and curb the criminal practices of those who manufacture and distribute these poisons.

The difficulties in the way are, of course, apparent. Thus far no workable plans have been proposed. The probability is that any plans will prove abortive, however sincerely they may be advanced and supported.

It is the contention of the friends of the eighteenth amendment that the problem is national in scope and character and therefore cannot be successfully dealt with by separate state governments.

This contention is abundantly supported by experience. It was the utter folly and futility of state regulation which led to the adoption of the eighteenth amendment and the now forfeited benefits which flowed from that law.

Despite this fact, about which there can be no reasonable controversy, we are now to try separate state regulation all over again.

We are told the federal government will soon suggest the conditions under which the liquor business may be conducted.

Meanwhile the chief anxiety seems to be that, notwithstanding governmental encouragement during the past six months, the liquor interests will not have a supply on hand adequate to meet the demand arising from the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Failure on this score will, of course, be regrettable.

Doubtless a federal requirement will be a "fair practice" code. Inasmuch as "fair practice" is a favorite theme and ancient boast of the liquor interests there can be no objection to that, whatever the conditions imposed. Indeed, a "fair practice" code or any other solemn agreement with the government, embossed and neatly but not gaudily framed, would be a nice adornment for any liquor dealer's office.

Required, also, would be conformity to the national recovery act which seeks to increase the hours of plant operation and thus provide additional jobs.

A processing tax might also be considered, for the relief of mothers, wives and children, thus compensating them for the levies of the liquor traffic.

But this still would leave untouched the restraints which should be thrown around a traffic recognized to be dangerous.

A study of this problem has been conducted for months under the auspices of a valiant knight who proclaims the dread dragon of liquor to be invincible. This modern Sir George, and a most estimable citizen he is, therefore proposes that since the dragon cannot be destroyed some wise plan of control be elaborated.

The commission appointed for this purpose has already released some of its findings.

One conclusion reached is that prior to the eighteenth amendment "politics and corruption entered the license system. Licensed liquor dealers . . . endeavored to manipulate votes through every means, legitimate and otherwise. Corruption was almost inevitable."

Another finding is that: "The saloon as it existed in pre-prohibition days was a menace to society and must never be allowed to return. Public opinion has not forgotten the evils symbolized by this disreputable institution, and does not intend that it shall worm its way back into our social life."

That's fine! Hurrah!

The only trouble with this heroic assertion of public interest is that the liquor interests don't know about it. The saloons is already back in many places and operating full blast and unmolested—even before the eighteenth amendment is repealed.

But just wait until the state government gets full control. Then we'll tell 'em—and ask 'em to quit, too.

A Voice in the Storm

I stood with face against the pane
And watched it raging on the plain,
Its fury lashed against the sky
As angry winds went howling by.

I thought as mighty torrents fell
It was a rendezvous with hell—
The thunder crashed and screamed: and still
The lightning flashed its fire, until

The turbulence within my soul
Was greater than the thunder's roll—
I though no power could ever flee
The terror fast consuming me.

Then suddenly, the storm yet high,
I knew that God was passing by—
In all that restless firmament
I sensed a power omnipotent—

I stood, face pressed against the pane,
And watched that furied gale again,
My soul, once more from terror free . . .
Out of the storm God spoke to me.

NEWS of STAGE and SCREEN

EDITED by RALPH T. JONES

Chevalier in Latest Picture, "The Way To Love," at the Fox

Maurice Chevalier is a little rowdier, somewhat rougher, but none the less delightful in the performance he gives in "The Way To Love," his latest picture which is showing this week at the Fox theater. His more robust acting, too, is altogether in character for the part he plays, that of a lower class citizen of Paris, but one who loves his city with overweening pride.

Chevalier, in this picture, reveals a side of Paris little known to the tourist. The Paris of the poorer quarters, of the twisted streets and ancient buildings, of the hard-working, kind-hearted, simple folk who work and struggle and laugh at life through all vicissitudes.

His leading lady is Ann Dvorak, the brunette beauty who scored such a hit in "Scarface" and who, in this picture, makes a triumphant return to the screen after a year of honeymooning with her husband in Europe. Leslie Fenton. Minna Gombel, Edward Everett Horton, Arthur Pierson, Blanche Frederici are others with prominent roles in the story.

In addition to this eventful feature the Fox presents this week a really marvelous production combining the arts of the musician, the stage artist and the electrician. It is a presentation built around Jimmy Beers' rendition, at the organ, of the "Indian Love Call." A rustic setting of rare beauty has been built upon the orchestra pit, with real water used in a waterfall and gently-flowing river, while gorgeous colored lights play over the entire setting and the stage beyond.

Another group of short subjects of that quality that has come to be associated with the Fox theater completes a program that should draw many thousands to the big and beautiful theater every day this week.

In "The Way to Love," Chevalier sings a number of new songs that are sure to quickly become popular hits. The story presents him as a humble store assistant whose one ambition in life is to be an official guide, that he may show tourists the real Paris that he loves.

He meets a girl who makes her living by being the living target for a carnival knife thrower. He helps her escape from her cruel guardian and takes her to the roof apartment he shares with an American music student and a girl from the Moulin Rouge. He will not capitulate to love, however, until after the girl has run away from him and then, when he finds he cannot live without her, he sets forth to find her, accompanied by his friend, Erward Horton. Their adventures as they wander from cafe, from one spot of Parisian night life to another, are uproarious.

In the end, of course, Chevalier finds his girl, but only after he has accidentally thrown the champion wrestler of all France and has ruined innumerable neckties of harmless passers-by. Why. You'll find out when you see this really delightful production, which shows at the Fox through Thursday.

Screen Stars You'll See in Atlanta This Week

'Night Flight' at Loew's Grand Brings Another Great Cast

Beneath the apparent coldness and impersonal manner of a great modern business, there is warmth and compassion and generosity. These qualities are emphasized in "Night Flight," the magnificent film of modern aviation, which brings to Loew's Grand theater this week one of the finest casts ever assembled in a picture.

Here again Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, who produced "Grand Hotel" and "Dinner at Eight," have lavishly poured the talents of their most distinguished actors and actresses into the fashioning of a great film. Helen Hayes, Clark Gable, John and Lionel Barrymore, Robert Montgomery, Myrna Loy, and William Gargan—these are among the players to be seen in "Night Flight."

As a novel "Night Flight" won extraordinary recognition in France. When it was translated into English, it was similarly hailed for its poetry and dignity and high drama.

It tells the story of a great aviation concern operating in South America. John Barrymore is head of the organization and to speed up his schedules, and to keep ahead of rival companies, he institutes night flights. Thus his pilots must fly from one end of South America to the other, over grim mountains and cruel jungles and arid desert lands, through storms and perils, to bring the mail a little quicker, to speed up operation by a few hours.

Night flights cost the company some of its best men, as the general manager's assistant, Lionel Barrymore, understands. His friendship with a young pilot (Robert Montgomery), makes him understand even better the strain and fear which is always threatening those men who fly at night. He sees another pilot (Clark Gable) attempt a reckless flight across the Andes during a terrific storm, and he observed the terror of this pilot's wife (Helen Hayes), as she awaits word from her husband. Myrna Loy is another such wife, and William Gargan another such pilot. They are men who face death every day, and women who wait always for news of their men's safety—or of their death.

"Night Flight" is tense with the emotions of these people who have to hide their real feelings for the sake of morale—for each one knows that the exhibition of his fear will sweep through the company, and destroy the efficiency whose whole life is the fearless accomplishment of perilous enterprise.

A brilliant picture, directed by Clarence Brown, himself an expert aviator, and memorably acted by one of the best casts ever assembled in a single picture.

Summerville-Pitts in Comedy Riot on Screen at Georgia

What star is it whose hands speak louder than words? What star was helped into pictures by Mary Pickford in 1917? What star was born in Parson, Kansas, in 1900? Your answer to the first question also is the correct answer to the two last questions. ZaSu Pitts, of course. ZaSu Pitts, who has risen to the top of the movie star ladder, until now her name is a household word. And every reader would be disappointed to read about ZaSu without her partner, Slim Summerville, being mentioned.

"Love, Honor and Oh, Baby," with Summerville and Pitts, one of the really hilarious pictures of the year, had people at the Georgia almost rolling in the aisles when the picture had its premier showing at that popular Atlanta theater yesterday.

This time you see Slim Summerville as an ambulance-chasing lawyer. His fairest of the fair, ZaSu, is a filing clerk in a big magnate's office. It seems this magnate does not eat any meat and that's where the fun starts. Poor ZaSu starts talking vegetables and she never stops.

The management of the Georgia will guarantee that the people of Atlanta will know more about spinach than ever before. This often downtrodden vegetable has been laughed at. It has been the basis of many a good joke. But now it means love, real love as only Slim and ZaSu could and can give each other.

ZaSu calls slim her red radish and he calls her spinach. And when he calls her creamed carrots, that's something else. To tell the rest of this garden code would only take away your enjoyment when you see the picture, "Love, Honor and Oh, Baby," playing at the Georgia all this week.

Special added attractions are included on the Georgia program, which include a novelty, newsreel and another thrilling Tarzan adventure.

"The Last Trail" by Zane Grey, O'Brien as Star, at Rialto

George O'Brien, in "The Last Trail," newest Zane Grey story to be placed upon the screen, does some of the cleverest and most astonishing riding of his career. The picture is now showing at the Rialto theater, where it will feature the program through Tuesday. Starting Wednesday, the Rialto announces a return showing of "I Loved You Wednesday," one of the most "different" pictures of the season, with Warner Baxter, Elissa Landi, Miriam Jordan and Victor Jory heading the cast.

Right at the start of "The Last Trail," O'Brien, escaping from a sheriff's posse, races down the track after a trans-continental train and, catching it, swing from the saddle onto the observation car. Later in the picture he lassos four men at once and hauls them to a big ice box, in which he locks them up. And at the end he does some of the most remarkable wild and ready fighting ever put into a screen scene.

Zane Grey has departed from his usual type of story in writing "The Last Trail." Instead of the villains and villainies of the new west, he has sentered this story around the doings of a gang of big city gunmen and racketeers, with the introducing of the "shakedown" racket into the cattlemen's country as their objective.

The girl in the case is the beautiful blonde Claire Trevor, while El Brendel provides most of the comedy, though ably abetted by Matt McHugh. And Lucille LaVerne plays a splendid small part as a western woman.

It is a picture with plenty of thrills, suspense, action and romance and the final sequence, when O'Brien and Brendel battle a whole houseful of gangsters alone is one of the most thrilling situations and one of the best staged seen on the the screen. It is a picture combining all the excitement of a good western, a gunman picture and a real romance story.

"I Loved You Wednesday" boldly departs from the usual type of screen love story, introducing this time the rivalry of two men, one a successful engineer, a bachelor, and the other a playboy and waster, a married man, for the affections of a famous dancer. The married man makes no attempt to hide his matrimonial status and despite this there is a time in the picture when it seems sure that he dancer will go with him.

The most remarkable and spectacular dance sequence ever put on stage or screen is seen in this picture, as well as shots from the great Boulder Dam project that will literally astonish and awe you.

BENEFIT PERFORMANCE TONIGHT AT ERLANGER

"Polly With a Past," the brilliant stage production which has been presented for the past week at the Erlanger theater by the Peruchi Players, will be given again tonight (Sunday) as a special benefit performance for the stage employes. There will be no admission charge, but a silver offering will be taken at the door as patrons enter.

The play is an exceedingly clever comedy and it has been given a splendid stage setting by the Peruchi organization. It also serves to introduce to Atlanta the distinguished new leads, Rei Terry, the leading woman, and Lance Davis, leading man with the popular stock organization.

Both give excellent performances and in the one week they have been here they have won warm places in the regard of Atlanta theatergoers. They came here direct from Chicago after closing important and successful engagements there.

Next week the Peruchians will present "Up Popped the Devil," opening Monday night with a special performance at which ladies will be admitted free if accompanied by escort.

Both tonight and Monday the performances start at 8:15 o'clock.

There can be no doubt of the widespread interest in the forthcoming week of "The Green Pastures" at the Erlanger theater, starting week from tomorrow. Stacks of mail orders for reservations are coming into the theater with every delivery. It is not often that Atlanta gets the chance to see a Pulitzer prize play with the original cast of more than 100. And with three carloads of stage settings, too.

* * * *

The town is full, as usual, of rumors about new deals in the amusement line, concerning this or that theater. And, equally as usual, there is nothing to base the rumors on—as yet.

* * * *

However, Sunday afternoon movies do seem to be on the verge of realization. It will be worth a lot to have something to do on of Sunday afternoon—that is, something that you needn't be ashamed of when writing home to mother. Only hope it will be worth enough to the theater managers for them to continue.

* * * *

If you haven't yet visited the Peruchi Players at the Erlanger theater, by all means do so. This week's play, "Up Popped the Devil," is fine entertainment for anyone and the Peruchians really offer astonishingly fine productions, especially when you consider the box office prices, which are lower, even, than many of the talkie theaters. They haven't stinted on quality, despite the prices.

* * * *

Manager Earl Holden, of the Georgia, is already drawing attention to an event of big importance to take place at his theater in the near future. Tom Mix, Tony the horse, Mrs. Mix and others of the entourage, are all coming to the Georgia within the next week or two to put on a stage show—and when you say show, Tom Mix means SHOW!

* * * *

Manager W. T. Murray at the Rialto is eagerly awaiting a release date on "Man's Castle," a new Columbia which may even repeat the success scored by "Lady for a Day." As soon as the Columbia powers-that-be release the picture for exhibition, Manager Murray will book it at his popular downtown home of screen bargains.

* * * *

And you note that Mae West's "I'm No Angel" is now playing the Paramount, which was forbidden to show her earlier picture, "She Done Him Wrong." Remember what a brave fight R. B. Wilby put up over the first picture? Well, now he gets his reward. "Bread cast upon——" etc., etc., etc.

Didn't get a chance to preview "Night Flight," now playing at Loew's Grand. However, with both Barrymores, with Helen Hayes, Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Robert Montgomery and others of almost equal prominence

DEBUTANTES SPONSOR CONCERT AT BUCKHEAD

The Atlanta Debutante Club, of which Miss Caroline Crumley is president, will sponsor the concert to be given this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Buckhead theater by the Buckhead Symphony orchestra, Enrico Leide, conductor.

The Debutante Club, which will receive a percentage of the box office receipts for the benefit of the club's official charity at Grady hospital, is expecting a capacity crowd and patrons are asked to make a point of reaching the theater before 3 o'clock. The admission charge is so low as to be practically nominal.

Miss Claire Harper, violinist, is the guest soloist with the orchestra this week. She will play the Mendelssohn concerto in E minor, with the orchestra accompanying and during the second half of the program will give a group of numbers by Debussy, Francis MacMillan and De Falla. Ruby Chalmers will accompany her at the piano for this group.

The orchestra announces an ambitious program for its part of the entertainment. The opening piece will be Wagner's "Rienzi," while the concert will close with Liszt's symphonic poem, "Les Preludes." Numbers by Grieg. Tschaikowsky and Guion are also to be presented, while the light opera offering this week is a selection from the main themes of Gustav Luders' popular "Prince of Pilsen."

Mae's Song on Wax.

Mae West now has two of her new hot tunes from "I'm No Angel" recorded. The new tunes are "Nobody Loves Me Like My Dallas Man" and "I Love You, I Need You."

Returns to Paramount.

Charles Farrell, who heads the cast of Charles R. Rogers' "Girl Without a Room," returns to the Paramount lot where he got his start eight years ago.

Mae West in 'I'm No Angel' Held Over at the Paramount

The sensational success of Mae West's new picture, "I'm No Angel," which played to capacity crowds at every showing at the Fox last week, and the requests of thousands of Atlantans who were unable to get in, along with requests from many others who wish to see this dynamic star again and again, are the reasons why the Paramount theater, after great difficulty, succeeded in holding this sensational drama, which is in great demand all over the country, for another week's engagement at the Paramount.

"I'm No Angel" seems sure to break all box office records now standing. Miss West's first picture, "She Done Him Wrong," which was censored in Atlanta, has very nearly broken the record now, and "I'm No Angel" is providing even more popular and sensational.

It is a modern yarn, skillfully concocted by Miss West herself, presenting her in the picturesque characterization of a rowdy, wise-cracking carnival dancer and singer. She becomes a lion tamer, has nerve enough to put her head in the lion's mouth, and becomes a sensation in a big New York circus. There she captivates society millionaires.

Miss West contributes an acting performance that explains why Paris has acclaimed her as a successor of Lillian Russell, Rejane and Bernhardt. She sings five "scorch" songs, dances a glorified shimmy number known as the "midway," wears tights, enters a cage with savage lions, and wise-cracks.

Her supporting cast is a splendid one, headed by Cary Grant as her "tall, dark and handsome" sweetheart; Kent Taylor, Edward Arnold, Gregory Ratoff, Ralph Harolde, Dorothy Peterson, Gertrude Michael, Russell Hopton and William B. Davidson also have prominent roles.

As a special attraction this week, Bob Hess presents "Whose Afraid of the Big, Bad Wolf?" The short features include Vincent Lopez and his band, a Screen Souvenir, and the popular Fox Movietone News.

10th Street To Play 'Song of Songs' 3 Days

"Song of Songs," is to be seen at the Tenth Street theater Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Marlene Dietrich carries the leading role as a demure little country girl whose ambition takes her to the city, where she becomes a model for a handsome young artist. Prominent roles are carried by Lionel Atwill and Alison Skipworth.

Thursday, Ann Harding and William Powell star in "Double Harness", a sophisticated drawing-room story combined with a delightful romance.

Friday's feature attraction is "Zoo in Budapest," with Loretta Young and Gene Raymond in the leading roles. Saturday brings "Tomorrow at Seven," a thrilling mystery picture starring Chester Morris and Vivienne Osborne.

Search for Titles.

Although the titles of their films, including "Duck Soup," have nothing to do with the picture, the Four Marx Brothers spend as much time selecting the name as is done for "sane" pictures.

Clever Play Again Offered By Peruchians

The Peruchi Players this week present at the Erlanger theater a play which has been acclaimed not only as a great laugh producer but also as carrying a delightful dramatic punch. It is "Up Popped the Devil," and it is certain to prove one of the best liked in Atlanta of the score of plays the Peruchians have given us.

Rei Terry and Lance Davis, new leads with the company, have spendidly effective roles in this production while several other popular members of the company are given parts that offer every opportunity for acting finesse. And Mr. Peruchi, aided by his enthusiastic stage technicians, has extended himself to provide a stage setting worthy of Atlanta.

The story of the play concerns a young husband and wife who reverse the usual matrimonial roles. The wife goes out to earn the living while the husband stays at home to keep house. The reason is to provide the husband with time and opportunity to write the great novel of which both of them feel he is capable.

But their friends make their lives miserable. They drop in at the flat at any hour, day or night, help themselves to food or drink and generally render it impossible for anyone to work there. There is even a total stranger, drunk, who finds the way to the icebox and later to the telephone, where he puts in long distance calls to friends in distant cities.

The husband also becomes jealous of his wife and her friendship for another man. But in the end the great novel is written, the jealousy is proven unfounded and the two get rid of their horde of sycophantic friends in an entirely satisfactory manner.

It is a clever play, filled with clever lines and notable for its emotional power as well as its comedy.

The Erlanger orchestra, a surprise vocal offering and other attractions will beguile the audiences between acts at every performance and before the opening curtain. The same low prices remain in force and ladies are again admitted free on Monday night when accompanied by escort.

Famed Characters Used.

Paramount's "Alice in Wonderland" employes 25 characters from that story and 18 from "Through the Looking Glass."

COMMUNITIES BILL MARLENE DIETRICH IN "SONG OF SONGS"

The Lucas & Jenkins community theaters announced the first of a series of second-run pictures that will play at these popular community theaters the first part of each week. Paramount's new Marlene Dietrich picture, "Song of Songs," is the first of this series. This picture will be shown Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday at the Tenth Street and West End theaters, and Monday and Tuesday only at the Palace, DeKalb and Fairfax theaters.

A new Marlene Dietrich will be seen in the "Songs of Songs." Miss Dietrich, who hitherto has appeared as a sophisticated, worldly woman, is revealed in her new production as an innocent young country girl of rare beauty, who goes to Berlin, and, jilted by a handsome young sculptor, runs the gamut of tragic experience.

An outstanding cast of actors appear in support of the glamorous star. Brian Aherne, referred to by drama critics as the most romantic actor of the New York stage, makes his screen debut as Miss Dietrich's leading man. Lionel Atwill, who has been a stage star for 16 years, appears as her husband. Alison Skipworth, Hardie Albright and Helen Freeman also have good roles.

Original Cast, All Save One, In 'Pastures'

The widely discussed, long heralded, Pulitzer prize play, "The Green Pastures," by Marc Connelly, which played for 800 performances in New York and Chicago, will have its Atlanta premiere at the Erlanger theater for one week beginning Monday evening, October 30. Based on Roark Bradford's book, "Ol' Man Adam and His Chillun'" the remarkable play is generally conceded to be the outstanding dramatic presentation of a decade. With one exception, the original cast is intact as of opening night at the Mansfield theater, New York, on February 25, 1930.

Mr. Connelly prefaces his play with the following note: "The Green Pastures" is an attempt to present certain aspects of a living religion in the terms of its believers. The religion is that of thousands of negroes in the deep south. With terrific spiritual hunger and the greatest humility these untutored black Christians—many of whom cannot even read the book which is the treasure of their faith—have adapted the contents of the Bible to the consistencies of their everyday lives."

"Unburdened by the difference of more educated theologians, they accept the Old Testament as a chronicle of wonders which happened to people like themselves in vague but actual places and of rules of conduct, true acceptances of which will lead them to a tangible, three-dimensional heaven. In this heaven, if one has been born in a district where fish frys are popular, the angels do have magnificent fish frys through an eternity somewhat resembling a series of earthly holidays. The Lord Jehovah will be the promised comforter, a just but compassionate patriarch, the summation of the virtues His follower has observed in the human beings about him. The Lord may look like the Rev. Mr. Du Bois, or he may resemble another believer's grandfather."

No pompous efforts to startle or amaze the audience have been engaged in by the producer, Rowland Stebbins. No flaunting of the play, no "wise" cracking, no spicy stories, no obvious efforts to be either funny or to indulge in dramatic flights assail the spectator. No startling "realism" finds any place in the performance. Yet this return to wholesome simplicity has so successfully registered with the public after more than two years of almost continuous operation "The Green Pastures" continues to tremendous popularity.

The production was directed by the author, and the numerous stage settings were designed by Robert Edmond Jones.

Evening performances here will be at 8:30 and Wednesday and Saturday matinees at 2:30.

Neighborhood Theaters

Four Big Features Offered at Buckhead

Four exceptional entertaining feature pictures are announced on the week's program for the Buckhead theater while this afternoon at 3 o'clock, the regular concert will be given by the Buckhead Symphony orchestra, with Enrico Leide conducting.

On Monday and Tuesday the feature attraction is "Her Bodyguard," with Edmund Lowe and Wynne Gibson. Lowe is hired by a jealous suitor to keep away all other aspirants for the affections of a popular Broadway entertainer. He fills his job too well. There are laughs every minute in this clever production.

Wednesday's offering is "Don't Bet on Love," with Lew Ayres in the star role.

Thursday and Friday Loretta Young and Victor Jory are featured in a fast-moving story of the French Foreign Legion, "The Devil's in Love," with a dramatic romance told against the background of African bazaars and the heat-blistered desert.

Saturday's picture is "Life in the Raw," an exceptionally well made story by Zane Grey with George O'Brien, mos popular of all western stars, doing the hard riding, quick shooting and fast fighting required.

Carefully selected short subjects, including comedies, cartoons and newsreel shots complete each bill of the week which should not only please residents of the Buckhead community, but draw many patrons who enjoy a good show after a pleasant drive, from all parts of Atlanta.

"Be Mine Tonight" Billed at Empire

That entertaining international hit, "Be Mine Tonight," with its glittering array of foreign stars, is to be Monday and Tuesday's feature at the Empire theater, corner of Georgia avenue and Crew street. This production combines to the utmost degree sterling drama, delicious comedy, enchanting music, exquisite settings, and, above all, romance.

Wednesday's offering will be "Zoo at Budapest," with Loretta Young and Gene Raymond. That dazzling spectacle, with glorious girls, big stars, and featuring ten song hits, "King of Jazz," is Thursday's feature.

The dramatic sensation, "Afraid to Talk," with Eric Linden and Sidney Fox as the stars, will be shown on Friday. This is a realistic story of the fight of a young girl and youth against a ruthless tyranny that would send an innocent man to a murderer's dooms. As an added feature Friday night, Manager Alpha Fowler offers his "Amateur Night" contest on the stage at 8 o'clock.

Chic Sale will be seen Saturday in "Dangerous Crossroads." Other daily features include laughable short subjects, news reels and thrilling serials.

Dietrich Feature At Palace 2 Days

Marlene Dietrich appears at the Palace Monday and Tuesday in Song of Songs." Brian Adherne and Lionel Atwill are also in the cast.

Wednesday comes "The Wrecker" starring Jack Holt. It is a story of a bulding wrecker who must decide if he will save the life of a faithless wife and her lover or let them perish.

Thursday, Ann Harding and William Powell star in "Double Harness," the story of a bride who forced her wedding bells to ring.

"Zoo in Budapest" is shown Friday. Loretta Young and Gene Raymond are the leading characters.

Saturday Tom Mix and Tony star in "My Pal, the King," the story of a young boy tired of being king, who enjoys one day at the circus with Tom Mix.

"The Mayor of Hell" Opens Week at Hilan

The new Hilan theater opens its third week with a hand-picked series of high-class feature attractions. The first is "The Mayor of Hell," a dramatic epic of the reform schools. James Cagney has the leading male role, while other principal characters are portrayed by the ever-popular Madge Evans and Frankie Darro. The picture runs Monday and Tuesday.

Tense drama, mixed with sparkling comedy and a good romance describes "The Keyhole" in which Kay Francis recently scored her big hit. It is the fare for Wednesday only. The short subjects include another Walt Disney cartoon and a good comedy.

What is probably the most outstanding feature picture released in a year is book on Thursday and Friday in "State Fair," which boasts a truly all-star cast with such headline names as Will Rogers, Janet Gaynor, Lew Ayres, Sally Eilers, Louise Dresser, Norman Foster, Frank Craven and Victory Jory. The management is making elaborate plans for taking care of an overflow crowd on these two days.

Saturday's feature is "The Headline Shooter," a thrilling inside story of the newsreel cameraman. The leads are taken care of by William Gargan and Frances Dee. A Mickey Mouse and a Mickey McQuire comedy supply the remainder of this program.

DeKalb Starts Week With "Song of Songs"

Monday and Tuesday, the DeKalb presents Marlene Dietrich in her latest triumph, "Song of Songs."

"Flying Devils" is offered Wednesday with Bruce Cabot, Arline Judge, Eric Linden, Ralph Bellamy and Cliff Edwards comprising the cast. A behind-the-scenes story of an air carnival is presented in thrilling fashion.

Charlie Ruggles, Phil Harris, Greta Nissen and others appear Thursday and Friday in a spicy, fast-moving comedy with music, entitled "Melody Cruise."

Tom Keene is at his best again in "Son of the Broder," Saturday.

Poncey Opens Week With 'Face in the Sky"

The offering at the Ponce de Leon theater Monday and Tuesday is "Face in the Sky," with Spencer Tracy, Marian Nixon and Stuart Erwin. This is an inspiring romance of a Venus in a gingham dress who was raised to the nation's ideal of beauty overnight by a sign painter in overalls.

The famous novel, "Arrowsmith," by Sinclair Lewis, featuring Ronald Colman and Helen Hayes, will be on the screen Wednesday.

A host of stars including Jack Holt, Fay Wray, Noah Beery and Raquel Torres will appear Thursday and Friday in "The Woman I Stole." This man broke the tenth commandment by taking the wife of his best friend.

A Thatcher Colt mystery of love and intrigue, "The Circus Queen Murder," with Adolphe Menjou as the famous detective and Greta Nissen as the circus queen, will be the attraction for Saturday.

in the cast, how could it help but be good? And my scouts report that the aviation scenes, particularly the parachute sequences, are little short of marvelous. And invariably breath-taking. So I'll see you, soon as possible, at the Grand.

Have you looked over "Esquire," the new magazine for men? If you haven't seen it yet take a friend's advice and get a copy. It's swell—literally. And, to provide reason for mention here, there is a story by Doug Fairbanks Jr. And a lot of fine articles and stories—and the pictures. . . .! ! !

MONDAY—Saw "Broadway Through a Keyhole," on Film Row. This is the picture given as the cause of the fisticuffing between Al Jolson and Walter Winchell. What there is to fight I'm blamed if I can see. Of course, if it was merely a publicity stunt, exploitation—well, perhaps——.

The picture is good entertainment with some good comedy here and there. Texas Guinan plays herself and one again wonders why New Yorkers are so easily pleased. Blossom Seeley, surely almost as old as Texas, looks and sounds 10 or 15 years younger. A new player, Paul Kelly, steals the honors of the picture, with Russ Colombo and Paul Lyman and his band running a good race for second honors. With as many pictures as we have had about Broadway and gangsters and little girls who get jobs in the chorus, however, the picture is not strikingly original.

WEDNESDAY—"The Way to Love." With Maurice Chevalier, Ann Dvorak, Edward Everett Horton, Minna Gombel, etc., etc. I never get tired of Chevalier. To me he is one of the screen bright spots. I like the way he sings, the way he acts and the way he laughs and walks and dances. In this picture he is even more so. No mythical kingdom for a background, either. A very true-to-life Paris provides both the setting and the theme for the story. Ann Dvorak is just as alluring and as clever as she was in "Scarface." Edward Everett Horton is unique in his own comedy way, while the balance of the cast was evidently chosen with all proper care and discrimination. The dog is by no means the least clever in the cast. And that new game with the neckties—or perhaps the drinkable game of checkers—should prove pleasing if one can get away with it.

* * * *

THURSDAY—"The Worst Woman in Paris." At the Paramount. Benita Hume and Adolph Menjou in a Fox production that doesn't let you down, even though plot is rather hackneyed. You know, the notorious woman who is tempted to succumb to the temptation of real love. But her former boy friend has struck poor days financially. So, realizing she can only ruin the life of the new boy friend, she takes her jewels back to the old flame and hocks them to provide the capital for a come-back that lifts him out of the attic to the penthouse of affluence, once again.

You'll remember the references to Montgomery and Atlanta longer than anything else in the picture.

FRIDAY—"The Last Trail." At the Rialto. Zane Grey makes a striking variation in his customary plot in this one. His villains are city racketeers instead of western horse thieves and crooked sheriffs. George O'Brien is again the hero and Claire Trevor is the heroine. And there is, of course, plenty of clever riding, a little roping, some snappy gun play and a fight, near the end, that is really a wow. With a romance just prominent enough to sweeten the story to taste.

Personally, I thought the best acting was a bit by Lucille LaVerne. But that fight in the ranch house is really excellent. If you like suspense, thrills and a modicum of love in your film stories you'll enjoy this thoroughly. And who doesn't?

Jack's Mother Home.

After a triumphal personal appearance with the New York opening of her first picture, "Too Much Harmony," Mrs. Evelyn Offield, mother of Jack Oakie, has returned to Hollywood.

Star Fetes Crew.

An old-fashioned beer, wiener and pretzel party was given to the entire "Cradle Song" company by Dorothea Wieck, its star, on the Paramount lot at the close of production.

Monte Blue Back.

Monte Blue is back in Hollywood again after a year's national tour. He was signed immediately by Paramount for an important role in Zane Grey's outdoor romance, "The Thundering Herd."

Ultra-Modern Godiva.

Orthodox lovers of art will be somewhat shocked when they see Paramount's "Design for Living," in which is shown a painting of Lady Godiva on a bicycle instead of the traditional white horse.

Chicago North Side Racket Throne Again Made Vacant by Gang Guns

By WILLIAM CONWAY.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The north side rackets are without a boss.

Seventy-three shotgun bullets ended the tenure of the most recent one, Gus Winkler. Machine-gun and pistol slugs terminated the administrations of all those who preceded him in the past.

It's a crazy-quilt district, stretching from the loop to Wrigley field and from Halsted street to the Gold Coast. It's the most flourishing center of the city's night life, crowded with saloons, gambling houses, supper clubs It's a blend of Vienna, Park Avenue, Greenwich Village and the Bowery.

On one side of the territory, in a swank night club, personages from the social register dance to the music of a European orchestra; on the other side in a huge barroom, people from the telephone directory howl at a little fat man in red flannel underwear doing a dance with fans the size of pancakes. In one section, in a dim drawing room, men in dinner dress toss the dice in a pleasant game of backgammon; in another, in a smoke- fogged den, men in the rainbow raiment of the race track roll the dice in a serious game of craps. It's a neighborhood where shimmering satin and shiny serge meet, where the notorious rub shoulders with the prominent and the famous.

But the balliwick, with roulette and song stars and bourbon and beer, is a rich one.

Dion O'Banion saw that back in the early twenties. He was the first to run its extra-legal business. One day in 1925 several hale fellows came into his headquarters—a florist shop—and their spokesman extended his hand in greeting. "Hello, Dion," he called, "how's the boy?" Dion grasped the hand and started to say fine. The next minute he lay on the floor among his potted lilies, dying. The handshaker's companions had emptied a pistol into his body. That was the serajevo of Chicago's gang war.

Hymie Weiss was next to rule. In due time, he walked into a daylight ambush in Dearborn street. The slugs that didn't strike him dead left their mark for posterity. You can see the bullet holes today in the cornerstone of Holy Name cathedral.

"Bugs" Moran then leaped into the saddle and did quite well until executioners lined seven of his stalwarts against a wall in 1929 and put them to death. Moran beat a disorderly retreat to the north woods.

That left Joe Aiello to be king. His dynasty ended in the narrow courtyard of an apartment building, machine-gun slugs puncturing him from three different directions.

Ted Newberry came next. Presently, they picked up his body in a ditch just over the Indiana line.

Winkler took up the scepter then, and laid it down las. week.

That left a throne on the wealthy north side vacant.

But the one who takes it must also take this precedent:

Five hits; one run; no errors.

FRIENDS WILL HONOR MEMORY OF WILSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Bishop James E. Freeman, of Washington cathedral, today invited friends and former associates of Woodrow Wilson to attend the annual memorial services in honor of the war president at Bethlehem chapel Armistice Day.

John Barton Payne, member of Wilsou's cabinet, will be the principal speaker. Members of the George Washington post of the American Legion will furnish the color guard. Fitz Woodrow Jr., whose grandfather was a first cousin of Mr. Wilson, will carry the floral tribute.

5-CENT KOSCIUSZKO HERE.

The new 5-cent Kosciuszko commemorative stamp went on sale in the Atlanta postoffice Friday afternoon. The stamp is an attractively designed engraving and worthy of a place in any collector's album. The 5-cent value was used so the stamp could pay postage from the United States to Poland.

The 3-cent Byrd stamp has reached Atlanta from Washington. This stamp, a large blue emission showing Admiral Byrd's notable exploration trips and oceanic plane flights, is for use on mail from Little America to the United States. It will not be on sale in any postoffice, but may be obtained from the Philatelic Agency, Washington, D. C., at face value.

The stamp is good for postage from point to point in this country, although not designed for that purpose. But 10,000,000 of the Byrd stamps have been printed. So get yours without delay. There may be plenty for all collectors—and there may not be enough to go around.

FIRST AUCTION CROWDED.

A crowded auction room was ready for the opening Saturday afternoon of the first public stamp auction ever to be held in Atlanta. Lots, from a large number of collectors and dealers, covered a big table as C. S. Bolen started the offerings.

From every standpoint, the sale was a big success. No effort was made to realize upon it as a commercial venture. All that was sought was a public offering of stamps for collectors. The heavy rain just before 2 o'clock did not dampen the enthusiasm or the attendance, and by 2:15 every chair in the auction room was occupied.

The auction, under the direction of R. T. Freeman, with the bidding increasing in interest, lasted until after 5 o'clock. Sixty lots were sold with the receipts to those putting up the lots amounting to about $30.

The success of the sale brought plans for a second auction probably two weeks hence, full details of which will be given later for the information of collectors.

More than 50 collectors visited the sale and when chairs ran out, additional seating arrangements were made, but even then there were some standing.

ATLANTA STAMP SOCIETY.

The Atlanta Stamp Society, A. P. S. 96, ushered in its winter meetings Thursday night in spacious quarters on the mezzanine floor of the Winecoff hotel. The hotel management had gone to extra pains to make the society comfortable and succeeded so well that resolutions were unanimously passed to express these appreciations in written form to John Dunwody, Winecoff manager.

Five applications for membership were received and two applicants were voted into full membership. The society next Thursday night will vote on the five latest applications.

Clarence Bangs exhibited some of his excellent items and other members had stamps on display. Several visitors were in attendance. The society invites all interested to attend the meetings, which are open to the public.

Next Thursday night, on the Winecoff mezzanine, Eugene Whitaker will give a talk on hard to get foreign stamps. The meeting will start at 7:30 o'clock.

* * * *

MEXICAN ERROR.

An error has been found on the 50-cent official stamp of Mexico. On the first 10 sheets the first four stamps of the last row showed the surcharge "Oficial Oficial," instead of "Servicio Oficial." Only 40 copies of the error are known to exist.

* * * *

ORIGIN OF A NAME.

The "flag of the race" stamps now being put out by Central and South American countries in commemoration of Columbus' discovery of America get the name from the fact that each stamp bears a drawing of a flag typifying the Spanish-speaking peoples and their association to the "mother" country, Spain, through Columbus. The three crosses on the flag correspond to the three caravels of Columbus—the Pinta, the Nina and the Santa Maria.

* * * *

COLOR CHANGED.

A reissue of the one-peso stamp of 1927-28 bearing the portrait of Pedro Juan Caballero has been made by Paraguay. Instead of emerald green, the color has been changed to dark blue.

The stamp bears the surcharge "c" in red, indicating that it is for internal postage only. The color change is made to conform to regulations of the universal postal union.

NEW ITEMS.

Two more stamps of the ethnographical issue of soviet Russia have just been announced. They are 15 and 30 kopecs and further carry out the idea of illustrating the races and the constituent states of the republic.

Because of the present need of a stamp of a smaller denomination than five centimes, France is printing a three-centime postage, the first time a value under five centimes has been issued since 1900.

Including additions to current issues as well as a complete new issue for reunion, a total of 76 new French colonial stamps have been turned out within recent weeks. About every color imaginable is included in the group.

Present indications are that the famous collection of the late Arthur Hind, of Utica, N. Y., will go on sale in New York the last two weeks in November.

* * * *

ITALY HONORS GAMES.

Issued in connection with the international university games at Turin, four stamps are being added to Italy's 1933 postage group.

Values are 5, 20 and 50 centesimi and 1.25 lire, and the colors are brown, red, purple and blue. The design shows the statue of an athlete looking toward the rising sun.

INTEREST IN MIAMI.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Widespread interest among stamp collectors was exhibited today when more than 10,000 letters from all parts of the country were prepared for transportation to Chicago aboard the Graf Zeppelin when it arrives here Monday from South America.

Instructions for affixing the special Graf Zeppelin stamps and cachets in certain desired positions on the envelopes were sent to Postmaster O. W. Pittman by many of the collectors.

Some asked that stamps containing the sheet plate number be placed on their letters; others wanted stamps with perforation marks all around them, and others asked that four stamps be affixed in a block. The stamps sell for 50 cents each.

One letter decorated with a hand-painted reproduction of the globe, showing the route of the Zeppelin to the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago, and with the dirigible done in silver in the foreground, was carefully wrapped in cellophane.

A boy in Beaumont, Texas, Marion Shafer, having a stamp collector's interest, but not the 50 cents for a stamp, sent a self-addressed envelope with two canceled airmail stamps and an uncanceled 1 1-2 cent stamp asking that it be sent "by common mail" on the day the Zeppelin arrives in Miami so that he would at least have the Miami postmark of that date.

"I am only a boy and cannot afford air mail stamps," the lad wrote, "so I have placed used ones on the letter. The postage is paid by the 1 1-2 cent stamps."

The Graf is due early Monday morning from Rio de Janeiro and will remain here until late that night before departing for Akron, Ohio, en route to Chicago. The dirigible will take on 2,000,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas at the Opa Locka naval base here while an entertainment program is being carried out for Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander, and the officers, crew and 17 passengers who are aboard.

BANGS TO TALK.

Clarenden Bangs, president emeritus of the Atlanta Stamp Society, will be guest speaker at the Stamp Collectors' Club of Atlanta Monday night on the mezzanine floor of the Robert Fulton hotel. The meeting will open at 7:30 o'clock.

Mr. Bangs is one of the foremost collectors in Georgia and is the dean of Atlanta collectors. His talk and exhibition will be of especial interest to all stamps lovers.

The club extends a cordial invitation to the public to be present. Visitors always are welcome.

Ninth Week's Prize Winners in Ad-Writing Contest

Four Weeks Remain in $1,300 Cash Prize Ad-Writing Contest

By JAY ORR JR.

With only four weeks remaining, contestants are showing more activity than ever before and it is easy to believe that by the end of the contest many of the amateurs will be exceeding professionals in their efforts.

I feel sure that those seeing the three prize-winning ads today will think the same thing. Just look at the first prize winning ad. It is an ad as is an ad. Perfect in layout and attractiveness, excellent in copy and in appeal. The ad is timely and is convincing.

And again Gordon Tomkinson crashes through. This time with perhaps his best efforts so far. The ad has plenty of items, plenty of prices, in fact it has plenty of everything and in any other week would have won first prize. The Stone Cake ad is an excellent one.

And now as the contest is about to draw to a close, contestants should double their efforts to win the prizes for the last four weeks and to try to capture the sweepstake prizes. Visit all the stores. Get some ad-writing paper from all of the stores. Write ads for all of them. The more ads you write the more chances you have to win. Many of the second choice ads this week would have been prize winning ads had there not been so many extra good ones. In writing ads for the picture shows, be sure and write them for the picture that starts the week after the Wednesday on which you enter your ads, because when the ads are reproduced they should not be for a picture that has already been shown here, also remember that all of the items advertised in the prize winning ads are on sale. That is the reason it is suggested you talk with the managers of the stores, so that you may have the right items in your advertisements.

Don't forget you can write as many ads as you wish. You may write 20 ads for one firm or 10 ads for all firms. The more you write the better chance you have to win. You can't win unless you try.

There remain four more weeks in which you may compete. Start tomorrow and get your offfcial paper, you have just as good a chance as anyone. Now remember, contestants, that no matter how your ad looks in handwriting that when it is set up in type it will look just like the prize winning ads.

You can write as good an ad as anyone. All you need to do is try. Go to any of the stores co-operating in the Ad-Writing Contest and they will give you ad-writing paper absolutely free. Write your ad and enter it in the contest next Wednesday at 137 Peachtree Arcade. If there is any information you wish, you can obtain same by calling at Ad-Writing Headquarters, where an expert ad man will consult with you.

RULES OF AD-WRITING CONTEST "For Amateurs Only"

Any person except employes of The Constitution and their families, or any person who is or has been employed in the advertising business is eligible to enter this contest.

All ads must be entered at 137 Peachtree Arcade before 5 p. m., Wednesday of each week.

Winners' names and the first three winning ads will be published the following Sunday.

All entries must be submitted on official "Ad-writing" paper, which may be obtained at any of the stores co-operating in this contest.

All advertisements must be entered on Wednesday of each week.

Prizes will be awarded to those contestants, who, in the opinion of the judges, "submit the best ad."

By "Best" is Meant—Its Power to Attract Attention—Arouse Interest—Create Desire—Cause Action.

Any contestant may submit as many ads as he or she wishes. (Example). One or more ads for every firm or two or more for any or all firms.

At headquarters there will be an experienced ad-man to consult with contestants and give any information desired. All entries become the property of The Constitution and no entries will be returned.

Be sure your name and address is plainly written on the back of your ad.

Suggestions.

1. Be sure you have your official paper.
2. Imagine yourself as being the manager of the store for which you are writing.
3. Get information from the stores as to how long in business, lines of goods in stock, price ranges, names of materials, etc.
4. Try and avoid poetry.
5. Do not use superlatives or comparative prices.

Lithonia Club Crowns Miss Ford Queen of Carnival and Street Fair

Miss Margaret Ford was crowned "Queen of the Carnival" at the annual street fair and carnival held on October 13 in Lithonia by the Lithonia Woman's Club. Acclaimed by popular vote, Miss Ford appeared on a beautifully decorated float, surrounded by six attendants, Misses Emma Ava Stokes, Annie Louise Brooks, Frances Ford, Hazel Reagin, Miriam Venable, all of Lithonia, and Miss Katherine Cody, of Rock Chapel. Little Everett Davidson, son of the club president, Mrs. Charles L. Davidson, and Nelson Severinghaus Jr., son of the vice president, acted as pages and held the silver loving cup and silver crown. Mayor E. J. Newmeyer presented the crown and cup to the queen with a splendid address, in which he complimented the queen and her charming attendants, and congratulated the Woman's Club on its successful enterprise.

Mrs. Davidson, the club president, reported a net profit of $184.50 on the carnival, the largest amount cleared in the past three years. Each of the 68 club members had an active part in staging the affair and merchants and townspeople lent their enthusiastic support. The flower show, held in connection with the event, claimed a large share of attention. It was supervised by Mrs. Sam T. Combs, assisted by Mrs. W. J. Clark, head of the Garden Club, and Mesdames D. P. Phillips, H. W. Bishop, Broadus Marbut, Howard Abram and Alton Johnson. Entries were numerous and the clubhouse was a scene of color and beauty. Mrs. H. W. Bishop won the sweepstakes prize with a mammoth begonia 15 years old, which had a spread of nearly four feet. Mrs. John R. Harper, chairman of the recent fifth district flower show held in Atlanta, and Mrs. J. R. Brickman, president of the Perennial Garden Club, Atlanta, were judges and congratulated the club on the extent and perfection of the entries.

Outstanding in the fair, supervised by Mrs. C. J. Tucker, were exhibits of garments made from flour and feed sacks, including a man's tailored shirt and child's dress, and a blouse. More than 500 items were entered. Acting as judges were members of the county advisory board of the home demonstration department, Mesdames Mashburn, Rosser and Nix, of DeKalb county. The side shows and street attractions, lunch stand and theater performance gave pleasure to approximately 1,000 merrymakers and took in a total of $225. Mrs. Henry Watson, chairman of the finance committee, was general chairman of the carnival, assisted by the finance committee, and Mrs. Charles L. Davidson. The proceeds go toward the payment of the note due on the club building.

Monroe Woman's Club.

Monroe Woman's Club held its October meeting at the home of Mrs. E. M. Wayne, with Mrs. Wayne, Mrs. R. C. Martin, Mrs. T. R. Aycock as hostesses. The meeting was opened with a prayer composed by Bettie Monroe Sippel, former general federation president, and read by Mrs. John M. Nowell. The program was under the direction of the public welfare department, of which Mrs. Harry Horne is chairman. The September message of Grace Morrison Poole, president of the general federation, was read by the president of the club, Mrs. Lena Felker Lewis, who stated that Mrs. Poole's message would be hers also.

Mrs. Horne gave a talk on "Public Welfare—the Welfare of All the People." "Employment-Relief Work" was presented in a talk by Miss Viola Towler. Miss Towler's presentation of the subject was followed by an informal talk on the relief work which is being inaugurated in Walton county through the efforts of county School Superintendent Mason Williams. Resolutions indorsing the NRA movement, the relief for the unemployed movement and the organization of a strong central committee in Monroe for the purpose of studying the present and future needs of Monroe were passed by the club. The establishment of a recreational park at the old fair grounds was the subject of an informal discussion.

Lavonia Woman's Club.

The September meeting marked the beginning of the new year for the Lavonia Woman's Club, with Mesdames W. B. Richardson, Rance Wellborn, John Ledbetter and Burette Mitchell, hostesses, at the Carnegie library assembly rooms. Mrs. Eldon Purcell, president, presided over the meeting and read her committees for the new year. The following officers will serve for the coming year: President, Mrs. Eldon Purcell; first vice president, Mrs. Alton Haley; second vice president, Mrs. W. B. Richardson; recording secretary, Mrs. J. M. Battson; treasurer, Mrs. E. H. Collins; corresponding secretary, Mrs. L. D. Singleton; parliamentarian, Mrs. S. E. Vandiver; historian, Miss Leila Stovall; reporter, Mrs. M. L. Allison.

Mrs. Alton Haley, chairman of the citizenship committee, presented an interesting program, the main feature being an address on law observance by Colonel M. L. Allison. The finance committee, with Mrs. S. E. Vandiver, chairman, made a report of activities during the summer, which included a beauty pageant sponsored by the club, also a children's story hour. Mrs. W. B. Richardson, chairman of the program committee, reported a program broadcast over WTFI at Athens by the Lavonia club in July. The October meeting will be in charge of the bicentennial committee and an interesting program is planned.

Fort Valley Club.

First fall meeting of Fort Valley Woman's Club was held in the home of Mrs. W. A. Wood with Mrs. J. E. Titus assisting. The new president, Mrs. Maxwell Murray, presided. Mrs. W. J. Braswell, who had charge of the program, introduced Mrs. J. E. Hays, of Montezuma, who spoke on the Club Institute of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs and the departmental work of general and state federations. Music was furnished by Miss Elizabeth Woolfolk and a playlet was presented by Mesdames Charles Rogers, Chester Wilson and Charles Pittard. Other guests with Mrs. Hays from Montezuma were Mrs. R. H. Saunders, president of Woman's Club; Mrs. J. B. Happ and Mrs. L. C. Cheeves. Eight members of the Fort Valley club attended the third district meeting in Montezuma on October 12.

Royston Woman's Club.

Mrs. W. R. Burnett presided over the October meeting of Royston Woman's Club, opening with collect read by Mrs. Phil Davis. Observance of Georgia Book Week was reported by Mrs. J. F. Sosby and announcement was made that Education Week, November 6-12, will be observed. Mrs. S. F. Ginn arranges music for each meeting and Mrs. E. N. Bowers and committee prepared instructive programs for the club year, which were distributed. Mrs. J. A. Dyar gave report on public welfare and Mrs. D. T. Barnes on art. Mrs. Phil Davis talked on parliamentary law and brought a current topic of timely interest. Mrs. J. A. Dyar presented the program on "Citizenship." Colonel George Adams giving an inspirational talk on "Our National Government and the NRA." Juniors furnished the music: Misses Elinor Hubbard, Mary Stewart Brown, Louise Wray and Evelyn Blackwell. Hostesses for the afternoon were Mesdames Fred Hilliard, E. G. Moore, M. J. Bowers, E. N. Bowers and Miss Louise Tucker.

Manchester Club.

In the beginning of the club year, Manchester Woman's Club has doubled its membership, from 21 to 42, and the club is free from debt and added to the building fund $42 realized from a Georgia products banquet. An additional $120 was subscribed for this fund at the banquet. The biennial feature at the banquet was expressed in songs, dances and novelty numbers. Officers are Mrs. W. E. Griffin, president; Mrs. L. M. Bradford, vice president; Mrs. J. O. Beavers, second vice president; Mrs. J. B. Winslow, recording secretary; Mrs. Perry Cook, treasurer; Mrs. W. G. Johnson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. A. Chastain, parliamentarian; Mrs. J. H. Montgomery, custodian; Mrs. J. L. Jackson, chaplain; Mrs. W. L. Taylor, auditor.

Reports from chairmen and special committees were given and Mesdames M. B. Allen, H. P. DeLaperriere and Ralph Freeman bringing account of club meeting in Jefferson recently attended. It was unanimously voted to pay 5 cents per capita each month for Tallulah Falls school. Mrs. Alex Mahaffey, a charter member, was made an honorary life member, an honor paid in recognition of Mrs. Mahaffey's past service to club and community. Mrs. M. B. Allen, chairman of garden division, presented Mr. Hudgins, of Gainesville, who spoke on "Beautifying the Home Grounds." He is an authority on plant life and gave helpful information on growing flowers and shrubs. A piano solo by Miss Loyce Spealman was enjoyed. Social hour hostesses were Mesdames Lloyd Lott and W. D. Bell.

Hoschton Junior Club.

Hoschton Junior Club held its regular monthly meeting on October 10 at the home of Miss Marion Bell. After a short business session, the following program was rendered: Discussion and comparison of types of music, by Mrs. W. M. Braselton. Selection of classical music: "Lure of the Sea," Marion Bell. Reading, Charlotte Stewart. Selection of popular music: "Learn to Croon," "Love Song of the Nile," Virginia Allen. A tap dance by Alberta Allen preceded other selections of popular music played by Loyce Spealman. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Billy Bell and Mrs. Lloyd Lott.

Comer Woman's Club.

October meeting of Comer Woman's Club was held at the home of Mrs. T. W. Hinton with Mrs. Hinton, Mesdames Henry Paul, Mattie White and W. M. Rogers as hostesses. Mrs. H. J. Whitehead, the president, was in the chair, and the collect was read by Mrs. J. A. Sims. The roll call was responded to with names of prominent Georgia educators. Mrs. J. R. McRae Club Elects Convention Delegates.

Mrs. W. O. Brooks was elected delegate and Mrs. W. B. Fuller, alternate, to represent the McRae Civic Improvement Club at the district meeting to be held in Broxton on Tuesday, October 24, at the October meeting held at the home of Mrs. John S. Stamps. The program featured the president's national recovery act and Mrs. J. T. Windsor was the guest speaker. Mrs. Windsor has been a student of political economy and sociology for a number of years and has made an intensive study of conditions as they are at present. "We are a sick nation," she says, and the NRA is the remedy that will come nearest curing the ailments. The deadly grip of fear has been one of the main factors in bringing about this condition, and the cure is faith, she thinks. A return to faith in government, and faith in fellow men will be necessary before a complete recovery can be expected.

Women's part in that program is pledging loyalty, avoiding destructive criticism, helping relieve unemployment and buying wisely. The program opened with prayer by the chaplain, Miss Abbie Graham, followed by "The Star-Spangled Banner" by the club. Miss Lucy Thaxton sang "Keep the Home Fires Burning" and Mrs. Jack Comer read Edwin Markham's "Forgotten Man." Following Mrs. Windsor's talk, Mrs. W. W. Barrett, violinist, and Miss Lauyola Yancey, pianist, played war songs. Mesdames J. S. Stamps, S. F. Hunt and V. S. Parker were hostesses and Mesdames Gordon Sirmans, Joe Vigal and W. H. McCranie were enrolled as new members.

Madison County Federation Hears Excellent Reports at October Meeting

Madison County Federation of Clubs held the fall meeting in Danielsville October 7, with Danielsville Woman's Club hostess for the day. Sessions were held in Madison County High school auditorium which was attractively decorated. Mrs. W. D. Graham, president of Danielsville club, called the meeting to order. "Thoughts of the day" was given by Miss Susie Sorrells, of Colbert, after which Miss Lucy Gholston led the assembly singing "Georgia Land." Miss Gholston gave the welcome address after Mrs. M. T. Payne read the collect. Mrs. H. H. Hampton, of Colbert, responded. Pages were Ellie Mae Huff and Martha Graham. After a piano duet by Mrs. W. D. Gholston and Mrs. R. H. Gordon, Mrs. Graham presented Mrs. R. C. Griffeth, president of the federation.

Mrs. Griffeth expressed appreciation of the honor bestowed upon her in being privileged to help lay the foundation of the beautiful structure of the county federation and sounded a call to work so that it might grow in beauty and usefulness. After reviewing the four-square plan of her administration she closed with the plea to stand by the nation in this hour of need. Health conditions of the county were discussed by Dr. W. D. Gholston who advocated a county hospital. Mrs. Eugene Huff, county chairman under the emergency relief, gave plans for relief work in the county.

Mrs. J. W. Gholston, president Georgia Federation, reviewed her fall activities and the district meetings she had attended. Mrs. Lamar Rucker, of Athens, tenth district NRA chairman, spoke of the NRA in Clark county, and Mrs. T. H. McHatton explained the consumers' signature campaign. Music interspersed the addresses and at noon luncheon was served in the Home Economics building by members of Danielsville Woman's Club. "How To Take Care of Children's Eyes" was heard at the afternoon session in a talk by Miss Ruth Tabor, home lighting specialist. Club presidents reporting were Mrs. H. J. Whitehead, Comer; Mrs. W. D. Graham, Danielsville; Mrs. H. H. Hampton, Colbert; Miss G. N. Stovall, Ila P.-T. A. Chairmen making reports were Mrs. H. H. Hampton, health; Miss Lucy Gholston, education; Mrs. R. T. Broome, rural cooperation; Mrs. W. A. Rowe, library extension; Mrs. C. H. Barnes, thrift; Mrs. R. H. Gordon, Tallulah Falls school. Upon the resignation of Mrs. Griffeth, Mrs. H. H. Hampton, Colbert, was elected president and Mrs. J. T. Murray, first vice president.

Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs Convene in Atlanta in April, 1934

By BESSIE S. STAFFORD,
Editor of Georgia Federation.

Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs will convene in Atlanta on April 23, 1934, as the guest of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs. The invitation to meet here was extended on Friday to state executive board by Mrs. Oscar Palmour, president of the city federation, composed of more than 100 organizations. The October meeting of the executive board was presided over by Mrs. J. W. Gholston, of Comer, president of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, the all-day session being held at the Henry Grady hotel and attended by prominent clubwomen.

Pledged Support.

Members of the board pledged utmost loyalty and best efforts to the national recovery movement, inaugurated under President Roosevelt, to make it an early and complete success.

Indorsement was made of the new federal food and drugs act, providing for the expanding, supplementing and strengthening of the present federal food and drugs act, and the inclusion of cosmetics under the proposed act.

A resolution was adopted to provide for the reduction and limitation of armament, in order that the possibility of war may be reduced, and the great burden of military expenditures be lessened. The board will recommend to the publishers that a club edition of the library of southern literature be issued, not to exceed the cost of $25.

The executive board went on record as expressing its emphatic indorsement of the Hays morality code, and that a letter be written Sol Rosenblatt, deputy administrator of the NRA code for motion picture in Washington, D. C., urging that the Hays morality code be included in the final instrument which is to govern motion pictures under the NRA.

Heated discussion over the NRA motion picture code is going on in the national capital at present, and among the crucial questions to be settled is that relating to the Hays morality code, signed by motion picture producers in 1930, that has been consistently disregarded. The resolution stated that "the picturization of oversexed themes and scenes oppose the conception of family life and character builded by the mother, the church, and the school, as do pictures that may incite crime or promote international war."

Mesdames A. H. Brenner, A. P. Brantley and Z. I. Fitzpatrick served on the resolutions committee.

Board of Trustees.

Mrs. John K. Ottley brought a recommendation from the board of trustees of the Tallulah Falls school, asking official recognition for the observance of the 25th anniversary of the opening of the Georgia Federation's school, the actual date of the opening being July 9, 1909.

Tallulah board of trustees asked the right to use the name of the leaders of Georgia Federation to request the highway department of Georgia, to build an adequate road leading from the main highway to the school.

Mrs. Frank Dennis, of Eatonton, was introduced as the chairman of insurance, coming under the department of education.

Tenth District Convention in Elberton Is Replete With Important Club Work

The Tenth District convention of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs met in Elberton on October 14, with the Georgia Sororsis and the Elberton Woman's Club acting as hostesses. Mrs. C. F. Herndon, president of Sorosis, presided, and Mrs. T. D. Seymour led the assembly singing, "Georgia Land." A devotional and prayer was offered by Mrs. W. A. Wray. Address of welcome was given by Mrs. G. C. Robertson, president of Elberton Women's Club. Miss Helen Kilpatrick, of White Plains, responded on behalf of visitors. A vocal solo, "Friend of Mine," was given by Mrs. Carter Arnold, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Walton Johnson.

District officers present included Mrs. W. W. Armistead, Crawford, president; Mrs. T. O. Tabor, Elberton, first vice president; Mrs. Thomas Hamilton, Augusta, second vice president; Mrs. Roy Wallace, Rutledge, recording secretary; Mrs. George Thornton, Athens, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Helen Kilpatrick, White Plains, historian. Mrs. Lamar Rucker, of Athens, presented the program which had for its theme, "These United States." A vocal duet was given by Mrs. T. D. Selmour and W. T. Thornton, accompanied by Mrs. W. T. Thornton.

Distinguished Guests.

Distinguished guests presented by Mrs. H. B. Richie were: Mrs. W. W. Stark, general federation director; Mrs. J. W. Gholston, president of the Georgia Federation. Mrs. Gholston in turn presented Mrs. Ritchie, state corresponding secretary; Mrs. A. H. Brenner, past president of Georgia Federation. Outstanding numbers of the morning program were the address by the district president, Mrs. W. W. Armistead on "Our Objectives of the Tenth District;" the address of Mrs. J. W. Gholston, state president, on "The Spirit of the New Day." Mrs. Gholston also gave a resume of the club activities and junior organization. Phases of NRA were discussed by Mrs. Lamar Rucker, of Athens, tenth district chairman, and Mrs. Zack Copeland, chairman of women's division of Elbert county.

During the symposium of department and division chairmen, led by Mrs. E. B. Cade, of Washington, many inspirational reports and outstanding achievements were heard. At an impressive memorial service conducted by Mrs. Nancy Heard Davis, of Royston, honor was paid to the following departed members: Mrs. W. H. Benton, Mrs. Roselle Mercier Montgomery, Mrs. W. M. Coile, Mrs. W. C. Mattox, Mrs. A. S. Oliver, Mrs. B. F. Doyle, and Mrs. Rosena White Morton; also to two mothers, Mrs. Augusta Fortson Conwell and Mrs. Dora Seymour Allen.

The Elberton Junior Club, with their leaders, presented a lovely program at the noon hour during the luncheon at Samuel Elbert hotel. Mrs. G. A. Howard read an acrostic composed by Mrs. Armistead, tenth district president. The Elberton Juniors are outstanding in club activities, they having won over all of the Juniors the silver loving cup offered by Mrs. T. O. Tabor and Mrs. Stewart Brown, state chairmen of Juniors.

Speakers on the afternoon program were: Mrs. W. W. Stark, of Commerce, general federation director, who gave greetings from Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, national director, and spoke on Century of Progress for women as portrayed at Chicago exposition; Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens, on Tallulah Falls school; and Mrs. W. W. Clayton, of Augusta, on Student Aid.

Trophies Awarded.

Trophies awarded for general excellence were a silver loving cup to Crawford Woman's Club, Mrs. Fraser Wise, president, honorable mention being given to Lexington Woman's Club; and a Tallulah gavel to Augusta Woman's Club, Mrs. Clarence Duvall, president, for the largest per capita contribution to Tallulah.

The convention voted to accept the offer of a page each Sunday in the Augusta Chronicle, as official Tenth District page. The district went on record in indorsing that the Hayes morality code be included in the motion picture code. By recommendation of revision committee on standard of excellence, it was voted that clubs complying with 75 per cent of requirements on standards of excellence were standard clubs.

Mrs. Fraser Wise, of Crawford, invited the executive board of the district to be guests of Crawford Woman's Club at their spring meeting, and the invitation was accepted. Courtesy resolutions were read by Mrs. Guy Bowen, of Augusta. The credential committee reported 112 visitors present at this meeting. Pages included Misses Sara Bond, Frances Yarborough, Frances Crawford, and Hanson Hayes.

Junior Winder Club Presents Program At October Meet

An enthusiastic meeting of the Winder Woman's Club was presided over by Mrs. E. R. Harris on October 18 at the clubhouse. Miss Johnnie Lou Smith reported $12 realized last month for the rental of the clubhouse. She asked that the "penny box" idea be used again this year for the purchase of a piece of blue pottery for the clubroom. A committee from the various organizations in town is investigating the absence from school of 20 per cent of the white children. Thirty dollars was realized at the recent dance to aid in this movement. Mrs. Carithers spoke in behalf of the club library, and an appeal was made for clothing to be given to needy persons.

New members welcomed were Mesdames Ionia Jackson, R. P. Adams, Glenn Pendergrass and Blackwell. Much improvement was noted in the floors and rug, due to the efforts of the house committee. Mrs. Albert Williams reported the parks looked after during the summer, asked for bulbs to be used this fall. Club members plan a joint armistice program with the D. A. R. and the Legion Auxiliary.

A report of the district convention in Toccoa was made by Mrs. McCurry, who stated that district dues were raised to $2 per year. The convention voted to charge 25 cents registration fee in the future, and the next convention goes to Ellijay. Mrs. Pike Hutchins, of Statham, in behalf of the recovery program, spoke on emergency relief in Barrow county. Workroom space has been provided and she asked the loan of machines and patterns. Miss Lona Reece Couch, president of the juniors, reported activities during the summer, and presented the following program: Mr. McGarity, accompanied by Mrs. Potts, sang "Little Mother of Mine;" Miss Couch gave children's readings; Lettye Miranne did a tap dance, and a laughable skit was given by a number of juniors, in which they imitated the officers of the Woman's Club conducting a club meeting. Refreshments were served on the terrace by the following hostesses: Mesdames Lee DeLaPerriere, Clair Harris, Mirranne, W. L. Mathews, T. A. Maynard, R. L. Etheridge, G. S. Millsaps, W. M. Holsenbeck, H. A. Carithers, J. B. Lay, Theo Jackson and George Fortson.

Stark, of Commerce. The response to welcome by Mrs. W. H. Oliver, president of Neymodosia Club, of Valdosta, Ga.

The credential committee will be Mrs. W. G. Townsend, the chairman, of Waycross, and Mrs. Homer Ricketson and Miss Josephine Chambliss. The committee on resolutions is composed of Mrs. W. L. Clark, Nashville; Mrs. S. V. Brown, Baxley; Mrs. R. W. Cooper, Helena. Mrs. Earl Giant, of Brunswick, is chairman of time and place. An impressive memorial service will be conducted by Mrs. A. J. Strickland, of Valdosta. The district gavel will be awarded to the club for greatest achievements. The silver loving cup will be awarded for the best standard of excellence.

First District Notes Interest Clubwomen

First District Federated Clubwomen located so near the sea and enjoying the late summer are reluctant to get down to work, but Mrs. J. S. Howkins and Mrs. Frank McIntire, of Savannah, and Mrs. Philip Morgan, of Guyton, are doing their bit in assisting with the national recovery program. The Savannah section of the Council of Jewish Women featured an address on the NRA movement. Special activity of the council is the "big sister" work. A number of girls were given two weeks in camp this summer and a "community forum" will be sponsored.

Guyton Woman's Club reports a quilt nearing completion for Tallulah Falls school and a patient to be sent to Alto has been provided with clothing and funds. The Metter club is changing its name to Metter Civic Club and a city-wide program is arranged.

Vidalia Woman's Club, with 150 members, meets twice each month, using the scout hut as clubrooms. Every committee is actively engaged in the extension of its special interest. Vidalia will be host to the clubs of first district for the annual convention on October 27.

With Mrs. J. E. Fain as program chairman the Claxton Woman's Club has issued a splendid yearbook and has planned much civic activity. Mrs. R. M. Girardeau, president first district, with her program committee, is completing the program for the convention in Vidalia.

A series of talks on child welfare by Miss Martha McAlpine, of the state board of health, have been sponsored by the Millen Woman's Club; civic and community work will be continued, with emphasis on the library. Lyons Woman's Club has a well-planned program for the year, with civics emphasized.

Midville Woman's Club held its October meeting and the following officers were installed: President, Mrs. G. M. Barnes; first vice president, Mrs. J. C. Atkinson; second vice president, Mrs. Frank Wells; corresponding secretary, Mrs. R. B. Sandeford; recording secretary, Mrs. R. H. Comer; treasurer, Mrs. N. C. Jarvis; parliamentarian, Mrs. R. L. Winburn. Department chairmen appointed were: American citizenship, Mrs. F. P. Wells; American home, Mrs. Genevieve Morris; education, Mrs. J. B. Thurman; fine arts, Mrs. Joe B. Jones; gardens, Mrs. T. E. Pippin; Georgia Federation foundations, Mrs. C. H. Collier; public welfare, Mrs. Wilson Drew; librarian, Mrs. G. M. Barnes. Welcomed as new members were Mesdames C. S. Mulling, W. C. Mulling, C. A. Jackson, Corrinne D. Jones and Gardner Rickson. During the season the club will study "Our Northern Neighbor, Canada." Hostess for the afternoon was the president, Mrs. G. M. Barnes.

Jefferson Club Hears Public Welfare Talks.

Georgia W.C.T.U. Golden Jubilee To Be Celebrated in Augusta

By M. Frances Meadors Burghard, Of Macon, State W. C. T. U. Editor.

"The fiftieth annual convention of the Georgia Woman's Christian Temperance Union will meet at St. John Methodist church, in Augusta, October 24-26. I should like very much to welcome one or more delegates from each local union in the state, for every local union needs the inspiration of united effort in the plans for our new crusade and the opportunity to help inaugurate the plans, as well as the inspiration of a review of the accomplishments of the past 50 years," said the president of the state W. C. T. U., Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, of Atlanta. From the letters being received by Mrs. Remer H. Brown, of Augusta, chairman of home committee, it seems that her wish will be realized.

The executive committee of the official board and the finance committee will meet in joint session at the Margaret Hamilton hotel on Monday evening, the 23d, at 7:30 o'clock. The official board will meet at St. John church at 1:30 Tuesday afternoon, and the executive committee meets at 3 o'clock.

Griffin Weddings Are of Interest In Social Circles

GRIFFIN, Ga., Oct. 21.—Mrs. G. W. Reid, of Griffin, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Clara Reid, and L. C. Hatcher, of Washington, D. C., on Sunday, October 15, at the home of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Turner on West Poplar street, Griffin. The Rev. Mr. Turner, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated in the presence of a few intimate friends and immediate relatives.

The beautiful bride wore a smart ensemble of navy blue triple sheer crepe, worn with a navy felt hat and other accessories of the same shade. She wore a shoulder corsage of bride's roses and valley lilies. After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Hatcher left for Washington, D. C., where they will make their home. Mrs. Hatcher has been one of the most popular young girls in the city, and her many friends regret that her marriage takes her from Griffin. Mr. Hatcher is a prominent young businessman of Washington, holding an important railroad position.

Miss Nellie Irene Martin and James Burlin Bushin, of Griffin were married Saturday afternoon at the home of the Rev. J. G. Lupo at Experiment in the presence of a few friends. The bride's becoming fall suit was fashioned of medieval brown wool crepe and was worn with matching accessories of brown. Mr. Bushin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Martin, of McDonough, and is a popular social favorite. Mr. Bushin is a well liked businessman of Griffin, where he and his bride will establish residence.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Cook, of Griffin, Ga., announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Elma, and Richard L. Prater, of Gainesville, Ga., the marriage having been solemnized in Walhalla, S. C., on October 1, 1933. Mrs. Prater and her parents are widely known in Griffin, where Mr. Cook is a prominent businessman. Mrs. Prater is a lovely young woman of the brunette type of beauty and a striking personality. Mr. Prater is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Prater, of Gainesville. He is a graduate of the Gainesville High school, later attending Georgia Tech for two years. eH holds a responsible position with the Southeastern Express Company in Gainesville, where he and Mrs. Prater will reside at 56 Pryor street.

A marriage of interest to their friends is that of Miss Nora Devero, of Glenville, Ga., and Lewis Grady Smith, of Griffin, which took place Sunday morning at the home of the Rev. J. G. Lupo in Griffin. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Devero, of Glenville, and will be given a cordial welcome to this city.

Miss Imogene Wright, of Experiment, and Jerry Vinson, of Griffin, were married Thursday night at the home of the Rev. G. A. Middlebrooks, uncle of the bride, on the Atlanta highway. A few relatives witnessed the ceremony read by the Rev. Mr. Middlebrooks. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Wright, of Experiment and is a delightful and charming young woman. Mr. Vinson is a well-liked young business man, with many friends who are interested in his marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Vinson will be at home on North Sixth street upon their return from their wedding trip.

Of cordial interest, due to the popularity of the young couple and the prominence of their families, was the marriage of Miss Alma Hatchett, of Rover, and I. B. Shannon, of Williamson, which was solemnized Saturday evening at the office of Judge Steve Wallace, ordinary of Spalding county, at the court house in Griffin. The bride wore a stunning afternoon dress of green crepe made on graceful lines and especially becoming to her brunette beauty. Her accessories were in tones of brown. After their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Shannon will make their home on his farm near Williamson. Mrs. Shannon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hatchett, widely known residents of Spalding county. She is a gracious and charming young woman. Her mother was formerly Miss Ida Griggers. Mr. Shannon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Shannon, his mother having formerly been Miss Annie Sealey. He is a prominent farmer of Pike county, with many friends throughout the state.

Miss Sybil Pauline Kelley and James Thomas Jackson, of Griffin, were married Friday afternoon in the office of Judge S. B. Wallace, ordinary of Spalding county. Judge Wallace performed the ceremony with a small group of friends and relatives in attendance. The lovely bride wore a model of navy blue triple sheer crepe, trimmed with red buttons, and worn with navy blue accessories.

Mrs. Jackson is the daughter of Mrs. Jesse Kelley and the late Mr. Kelley. Her mother was formerly Miss Florence Adams. She is popular and admired in Griffin. Mr. Jackson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jackson, his mother having been Miss Willie Lewis. He is one of the most popular young men in this section, holding a responsible position with the Georgia-Kincaid Mills. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson will live in Griffin upon their return from their wedding trip.

Luncheon Parties At Capital City.

A number of luncheon parties were given yesterday at the Capital City Club prior to the Tech-Tulane football game. Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Ruffner, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Darby and Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Shepard lunched together. Mr. and Mrs. William K. Jenkins were hosts at luncheon and Douglas Robertson entertained at luncheon.

De Molay Tea.

The mothers of the De Molay auxiliary are giving a tea at the home of Mrs. Bob Ballantine, 806 Arlington place, N. E., Thursday, October 26, from 3 to 5 o'clock. All mothers of De Molay boys are invited.

Visitors and Debutantes Feted At Driving Club Dinner-Dance

The Piedmont Driving Club was the scene last evening of a particularly brilliant gathering of society who assembled for the week-end dinner-dance. Visitors, debutantes and bridal couples formed the inspiration for numbers of interesting dinner parties.

Miss Eugenia Candler and John H. Wilson, of Kobe, Japan, whose marriage will be an important event of the coming week, were honor guests in the party at which Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Duncan McCord and Mr. and Mrs. James Therrell entertained. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Edmondson Jr., Dr. and Mrs. Jesse York and Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Candler Jr.

Mrs. C. T. Swift entertained a party in compliment to Miss Maibelle Dickey, a popular member of the season's Debutante Club. Covers were placed for Misses Dickey, Judy King, Betty Gage and Warner Mizell, Claude Buchanan Jr., William Ward Jr., Hamilton Harris, Devreaux Lippitt and George Craft.

Mrs. McCurry, D. A. R. Regent, Presents Report of Activities

By Mrs. Sidney O. Smith, of Gainesville, State Editor.

Mrs. Julian McCurry, state regent, presented an interesting report of her activities as regent since spring conference in Atlanta, at the executive board meeting on October 21, to which the Stephen Heard chapter, of Elberton, was hostess.

The report follows: Fall . . . . a crispness in the air and a promise of winter. The winter must be one of achievement and work for us. Daughters of the American Revolution, and with this board meeting we resume our work with a new spirit of loyalty to our ideals of patriotism and service, which we hold ever before us. Among the most interesting experiences in the summer and perhaps in my life was my visit to the Century of Progress Exposition in June, at which I attended the board meeting and the national flag day celebration.

On June 13 the state regents held their meeting, in which the following points were brought out which I now pass on to you: 1. Mrs. Russell William Magna, our national president, wishes to impress the difference between the real daughters of the American Revolution and the daughters of Revolution soldiers on every D. A. R. To qualify as a real daughter, the daughter in question must be or have been a member of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution. This difference is to be applied chiefly in the location of the graves of real daughters.

2. Mrs. Magna also wishes to differentiate between the military flagpole and the one accepted for civilian use. The pole topped with an eagle is not to be used by anyone except a military official. The accepted flagpole for our use is either topped with a ball or an arrow.

3. The Ellis Island national chairman requests that any chapter sending boxes or magazines to Ellis Island include in the contribution instructions for crocheting, knitting and other handiwork. These instructions are always in demand there.

4. The national magazine chairman instructs each chapter treasurer to deduct 20 cents from each $2 magazine subscription for her chapter, sending $1.80 to the national treasurer with the name and address of the subscriber.

5. The committee on the Sons and Daughters of the Republic has been changed to the Sons and Daughters of the U. S. A.

Following the board meeting on June 13 Mrs. A. B. Herrick, of Illinois, entertained the state regents and among the other unique features was the decoration. Our vice president general, Mrs. H. Fay Gaffney, had sent the flowers from her Georgia garden, and they were very beautiful, despite their long trip. The Illinois state organization was the hostess at a dinner on the evening preceding the actual parade of the flags. The next morning after the celebration we were their guests at breakfast. Those from Georgia attending were Mrs. H. Fay Gaffney, vice president general; Miss Sue Reid Vason, regent of the Madison chapter and Georgia page and flag-bearer in the procession; Miss Lottie Lou Wallace, Miss Sue Wallace, Mrs. John Marshall Slaton and your regent.

With military escort, the pages from the different states each carrying her state's flag marched to the American flag in the parade of the flags. There they formed an avenue of flags through which the officials passed, and the American flag was raised, a ceremony which impresses every patriot with its true symbolism of our nation. Mrs. Magna read an original poem to the flag, and the exercises were continued in the hall of the states with a flag day address from Mrs. Magna and appropriate music. I regret very much that I was unable to accept the Fourth of July celebration of the Joseph Habersham chapter, due to a previous engagement, but I know I was ably represented by Mrs. W. F. Dykes, vice regent.

In August it was my privilege to visit Mrs. Harrison Hightower, of Thomaston, state curator, where I attended a beautiful historical pageant celebrating the Georgia bicentennial year. While I was in Thomaston I enjoyed being the guest of honor at a reception given by the John Houston chapter at the lovely home of Mrs. E. T. Black, where I had the pleasure of meeting some of my loyal fellow workers of that chapter.

Personal pleasure was mine to present to the Rhodes Memorial, department of archives, a miniature of Oglethorpe in honor of my state historian, Mrs. J. Harold Nicholson, which was graciously acknowledged by Miss Ruth Blair. We have purchased the cabinet which was authorized by resolution at the last conference and placed it in the Rhodes Memorial. The miniature of Oglethorpe has been placed in this cabinet.

While the house guest of Mrs. J. Harold Nicholson in Atlanta last month I had the pleasure of attending a reception given in my honor to the local board members, and those from the nearby chapters. I had the opportunity of visiting two chapters in their September meetings, the Madison (Georgia) chapter and the Elijah Clarke chapter, Athens, where I brought to them personally my fall message.

On next November 15 every chapter in the society has been asked to hold either a regular or a special meeting for the purpose of bringing in whatever they can toward the debt. The plan is for a birthday cake and a brief exercise. The national chairman of radio is negotiating for plans whereby the president general can broadcast a Thanksgiving message to every chapter in the society. In the event that such a broadcast cannot be arranged, a Thanksgiving message will be mailed to be read at the meeting. Surely Georgia will co-operate in this venture.

At this point I have the honor of introducing our new board members. Mrs. Leo Leader, Thronateeska chapter, hostess, and Mrs. W. C. Fripp, of the Commodore Richard Dale, chapter, hostess, of the state conference for 1934; Mrs. Mark Smith, chairman of Americanism; Mrs. Alexander Anderson, chairman of marking old trails, and Mrs. Thomas J. Sappington, chairman of the Sarah H. Garrard award. I regretted exceedingly my inability to attend the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the General James Jackson chapter, but my duties kept me in Athens at that time.

I considered it a great honor to represent my state D.A.R. organization as a distinguished guest at the U.D.C. convention in Athens October 17, 18 and 19, where I was selected to respond in behalf of all the visiting club women to the introduction given the heads of every organization. A new year is before us. May I ask each and every board member for a continuance of the loyal co-operation and service that has made this past year one of loyalty and service and happiness in Georgia D.A.R. circle.

Mrs. Lottie T. Vereen, of Moultrie, state chairman, Armistice Day, writes to the chapter regents as follows: "As we again approach Armistice Day, November 11, won't you, through your churches, civic organizations, or chapter programs, set aside a few moments in which to reverently commemorate the memory of our soldiers who made that day of mingled sorrow and rejoicing possible. As the NRA calls us, the members of the D. A. R., to a patriotic duty with faith in our president, our country, and citizenship, may we feel this same spirit in honoring our soldiers of the World War on Armistice Day.

Notice to chapter regents: The state regent's award of $10 in gold is given to the chapter giving the largest amount to educational work on a percentage basis. Please ask cooperation of your chapter, thereby expressing appreciation of our splendid state regent, Mrs. McCurry. Chairman of committee, Mrs. Frances Brown Chase; committee, Mrs. John Daniel, Mrs. John Dorsey, Mrs. Tom Wood, Mrs. Howard McCall.

Oothcalga chapter, of Adairsville, met with the regent, Mrs. A. B. Howard. The business session showed a chapter membership of 17 and a bank account of $48.17. Mrs. W. P. Whitworth, corresponding secretary, announced that Rev. Nath Thompson would deliver the address for Armistice Day. Mrs. G. M. Boyd Sr., chairman of program committee, presented the programs. Mrs. Boyd and Mrs. Howard, committee on co-operating with Cartersville chapter in marking Colonel Lewis' grave, hope to arrange this in October. Details of the contest in celebration of Georgia bicentennial to be open to students of the Adairsville schools, will be announced later. The program was "America" by the chapter; prayer by Mrs. Boyd; American creed and pledge to the flag, by the chapter; violin solo, by Miss Patricia Howard; message of the president general, Mrs. A. B. Howard; events leading to the constitution, Mrs. G. M. Boyd, Jr.; Brief remarks on Magna Charta, constitution and Lafayette days, Mrs. G. M. Boyd Sr.; editorial on NRA, Mrs. Julia Veach Stewart; historic current events from the chapter; music, Mrs. R. C. Evans. Mrs. Evans won the prize in the contest of the observation of a colored print of "Washington Taking the Oath of Office." According to the expression, "Well begun is half done," the Oothcalga chapter is well along with its year's work. Those present were Miss Alice Dyar, Mesdames N. C. Anderson, O. B. Bishop, J. P. Bowdoin, G. M. Boyd Sr., G. M. Boyd Jr., Bob Evins, R. L. Franklin, A. B. Howard, A. J. Maxwell, Julia Veatch Stewart, J. E. Swain, J. T. Terrell and W. P. Whitworth.

Sergeant Newton chapter of Covington met at the home of Mrs. A. L. Loyd with 14 members present. The vice regent, Mrs. W. D. Travis, presided in the absence of the regent, Miss Anna Bells Robinson. The meeting opened with singing "America the Beautiful," followed by prayer by Mrs. O. W. Porter. The flag salute was led by Miss Sallie May Sockwell. Mrs. R. F. Harwell, chairman of tree and shrub committee, reported cuttings put out to root and asked the members to donate shrubs, vines and flowers to be planted on the Highways. Mrs. Travis reported the pictures having been made of the D. A. R. marker at Brick stone. This is the old stage crossroads and also where the first superior court was held in Newton county. This marker is the chapter's contribution to Georgia's bicentennial. The following program was presented. Mrs. A. L. Loyd, chairman: Mrs. R. M. Mobley read a paper on the first organization of the National D. A. R., and Miss Sallie May Sockwell told of the first organization in Georgia. The D. A. R. Insignia was read by Mrs. C. A. Sockwell. Mrs. A. L. Loyd also reminded the chapter of the 441st anniversary of the discovery of our country on October 12. The hostesses were Mesdames A. L. Loyd, Trox Bankston, Hub Gaither.

Miss Frances Whitworth, a member of the Bessie Tift senior class, is president of the state conference and will preside when the meeting opens. Among the speakers are Dr. Louie D. Newton, Atlanta; Dr. W. F. Powell, Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. Fred Smith, Augusta.

Legion Auxiliaries Hear Timely Reports

By MISS PEGGY HERRING, Of Tifton, Publicity Chairman.

The second meeting for the year for the auxiliary unit to Tift County Post No. 21, American Legion, took the form of a membership luncheon at the home of Mrs. C. S. Pittman, with 33 members in attendance. Chairmen and committees for the year were named and plans made for celebration of Armistice Day, when the Cook County post and unit will be the guests of the Tift County post and unit. Mrs. A. B. Phillips, program chairman, had charge of the program and explained the membership drive that the auxiliary is putting on. Mrs. C. W. King sang "The Poppy," a song written and composed by Mrs. W. B. Bennett, a former member of the Tift County unit, and a member of the Crisp County unit. During the luncheon Mrs. K. S. Trowbridge and Miss Lou Story rendered delightful music. Commander Roy Thrasher, of the Tift County Post No. 21, spoke to the auxiliary of the membership drive of the American Legion.

At the October meeting of the American Legion auxiliary, Paul E. Bolding Post No. 7, at Gainesville, an American program was presented by Mrs. J. W. Eberhardt, chairman of the Americanism committee, who introduced members of one of the Girl Scout troops, which the unit is sponsoring, Misses Jennings Jarrard, Elizabeth Eberhardt and Joana Johnson, who gave interesting information about the American flag, and the "Pledge to the Flag." Mrs. W. L. Norton, the president, was in the chair and Mrs. W. D. Whelchel, chaplain, led in prayer. Mrs. Roy Newman, community service chairman, reported work done for a family the unit is supporting and told of a donation of $9 from the Legion; Mrs. A. B. C. Dorsey, chairman of child welfare, reported care of baby and asked that the members fill a box with discarded children's clothes for a poor family; membership committee reported a new member, Mrs. Ray Waldrip. The unit voted to order 1,500 poppies to be sold on Poppy Day on November 11. Mrs. Neil M. Pope read the bulletin issued by Miss Helen Estes, department membership chairman, and representatives from the American Legion auxiliary, Paul E. Bolding Post No. 7, who attended the national convention at Chicago were Miss Helen Estes, second vice president of the Georgia department; Mrs. Hugh Bolton, Mrs. Lee Rogers, Mrs. Charles Goforth and Mrs. Clarence Wasser.

Miss Mary Battle Lowry, representing the Macon chapter of the Red Cross, made an appeal for case workers and seamstresses at the meeting of the auxiliary to the Joseph N. Neil Jr. post at the American Legion home at Macon. The auxiliary formulated plans for participation in the NRA parade, the members to wear the auxiliary headdress of white with a

DRUID HILLS PLANS STUDENT GOVERNMENT

As the result of the contest sponsored by the Journalism Club for a name for the school paper, Marion Mobley will receive a year's subscription of The Druid, which is the name she submitted. The staff hopes to get the paper out in the course of two weeks.

In assembly Wednesday morning, Prentice Miller, instructor of English, Emory University, and J. B. Green Jr., professor of English, Druid Hills High, gave short talks on student government. Mr. Miller is a member of the honor council at Emory and Mr. Green has taught at a high school where student government was applied. The suggestion for student government was raised by the civic class and a constitution proposed two weeks ago. The week following the proposal the debating club endeavored to bring out the good and bad points of student government.

The seniors lost the contest to the juniors, who challenged the former to sell the most athletic tickets on a 100 per cent basis. The losers will entertain the winners at a wiener roast to be given about Halloween.

HOKE SMITH STUDENTS PROMOTE CITIZENSHIP

The South Side Civic Club held its meeting on the evening of October 9 in the Hoke Smith auditorium. The main purpose of this meeting was to acquaint this club with the citizenship of Hoke Smith, its leaders, and its plan for establishing high ideals of citizenship in every member of the student body. The president and the vice president of the student organization, Earl Strickland and Hallie Vonderau, made talks explaining in detail how citizenship is promoted at Hoke Smith.

At this meeting it was decided that each time the South Side Civic Club meets, two members of the Hoke Smith student body will be invited. In this way each organization can co-operate in promoting citizenship in the school and in the community.

Pupils of Hoke Smith are busy filling the Red Cross boxes which will be sent to the foreign countries by the Junior Red Cross organization.

Superintendent's Message

My Dear Boys and Girls:

There are two things of importance I wish to stress today. The first of these has been emphasized during the past week in what we call "Fire Prevention Week." I want all of our boys and girls to assist in the prevention of fire. Fire destroys millions and millions of dollars worth of timber and ruins our land by consuming the humus that is on the ground. Often these fires are caused by carelessness in people in throwing matches or in making camp fires. Within our cities much property is destroyed each year and thousands of human lives are lost because people are careless with their basements and attics. Oftentimes we are not as thoughtful as we ought to be in the use of matches and in the way we arrange our gas jets and electric wires. I wonder if every boy and every girl could not assist us in fire prevention in home and school, and in the forests.

The week of October 22-28 is Georgia Music Week, sponsored by the Georgia bicentennial commission. Many great men and women who have written lovely hymns and composed beautiful music have lived within the state of Georgia.

We have our own "Georgia" song, words written by a Georgia man, named Loveman, and the music by Miss Lollie Belle Wylie.

We sing "Georgia Land," written by Frank Stanton, to the tune of "Maryland, My Maryland." Nellie W. Hines and Hugh Hodgson have written beautiful songs on Georgia. In years gone by the Wesleys and Lowell Mason and many other great leaders have given us music suitable for our churches. Many of the poems of Sydney Lanier, Loveman, Frank L. Stanton, and Joel Chandler Harris have been set to music. We have the deep and wonderful spirituals that were given to us by the negroes.

Let us do all within our power to encourage Georgia Music Week and to develop in ourselves the love for good music.

Always your friend,

WILLIS A. SUTTON,
Superintendent of Schools.

PRYOR CHILDREN WILL PLANT TREE FOR HOKE SMITH

The sixth grades of Pryor Street school sent Mrs. Hoke Smith a letter asking her for a tree for the bicentennial forest. Later we received an answer from her stating that she would be glad to give us a tree from the grounds of her home. On November 21, this tree will be planted in memory of Hon. Hoke Smith.

The kindergarten is getting ready for a Halloween party.

The children of the first grades have had a great many to join the Red Cross.

The second grades are cutting and making Halloween decorations for their room.

In the fourth grades, Ralph Dyer and Marion Bohannon made the highest records in jumping.

Three boys in the fifth grades went to Pryor street springs. They caught crawfish and lizards and brought back pretty rocks and sand for their aquarium.

O'KEEFE HIGH LATIN CLASSES PLAN PLAY

O'Keefe has gone play-minded, so to speak, with a play given last week and a play to be given two weeks from now. The play given last week was presented by section L-9-42 under direction of Mrs. Bolden. It was entitled "Time to Wake Up" and the plot was concerned with present-day current events. The leading characters of the play were Frank Margeson, Monroe Plaxico, William Hobson and Mary Hays. The play two weeks from now promises to be equally as good as last week's with its plot centering around the Roman gods and goddesses. The play is to be presented by the Latin classes and is under the direction of Miss Vaughn and Mrs. Spier. The costumes are unusually odd and interesting. To show how odd the costumes really are Venus the goddess of beauty, will be dressed as a modern-day bathing beauty contest winner.

The orchestra has elected officers for the year. The president is Lucius Hilderbrand; vice president, Calvin Kytle; secretary-treasurer, Elizabeth Jetton, and social secretary, Robert Hancock. There are now over 40 members in the orchestra and it is the biggest Junior High school orchestra in the city. They are planning on having a orchestra wiener roast on November 4 at Mooney's lake.

The seventh grade election results came out in a big way with David Johnston, governor; Mary Ellen Stowers, lieutenant governor, and Dorthea Jadronjea, secretary.

DICK YANCEY.

NURSE EXAMINES FORMWALT SCHOOL HEALTH RECORDS

Our children are all so grateful to Miss Templeton, our school nurse, for having weighed and measured us last week. Now all of us know what we should weigh and those of us who are underweight are going to try to obey the rules of good health in order that we may come up to normal before long.

Low 6 has an interesting health race. It is centered around the idea of becoming a knight and everybody in the room is working hard to be a knight.

Low 5-1 is studying tulips, and Mrs. Stegall gives a tulip bulb each day to the person who makes her the happiest.

Low 4-1 class leaders this week are Billy Marlowe and Evelyn Elkon.

Low 1-2 is planning a Halloween party. The children are making many funny Halloween decorations for their room.

High 4 received a letter from the Savannah librarian about Joseph Habersham.

Twenty-three kindergarten mothers came to the pre-school meeting last Thursday.

Miss Muldrew's high kindergarten and Low 6-2 won the paper sale prizes.

Low 5-2 and High 5-2 are proud of Lois Johnson and Jack Smith for making the best records in standing hop, step and jump.

Low 4-2 was sorry Miss Tucker was ill last week.

High ungraded and High 3 are the classes at the top of the attendance ladders for last week.

BOYS' HIGH STUDENTS BEGIN ANNUAL DRIVE

The Alciphronian, Boys' High annual, has begun an early drive this year so as to get in ahead of rising prices. Three main projects are to be undertaken at the present time, they being: (1) Circulation; (2) photography, and (3) advertising. The initial fee for the Alciphronian is 50 cents, which is supposed to be paid inside of two weeks. One dollar is expected by Christmas and the complete subscription fee, $4, by the time for the publication. The election of staff officers has been postponed until some time next month so as to see who is capable of holding office.

A new cheering song, written by Lane Mitchell, faculty member, has been adopted by the entire school. The song is sung to the tune of "On Wisconsin" and has proved to be very popular among the student body.

Three editions of the Tatler, Boys' High paper, have already been issued. The paper seems to be functioning splendidly under its new staff.

JAMES KNIGHT.

TECH HIGH STUDENTS HAVE SINGING DRILL

H. A. Taylor, music teacher of Tech High, has been giving the entire school singing lessons. He goes from room to room, and do the "Smithies" enjoy it. C. E. Lawrence, one of Tech High's new teachers, is Mr. Taylor's able assistant.

The Tech High band is planning a trip to Miami when Tech High plays there on November 30. The band has made several great trips.

El Purpura y Oro will issue its first edition soon. It is edited by Tech High students who are studying Spanish. O. S. Bandy, Spanish teacher, is the faculty adviser.

We deeply regret the loss of one of our most valuable teachers, J. F. Boyd, French teacher, who died Wednesday, October 11, after two weeks' illness.

The June graduates held their first meeting Wednesday, October 18. Clark Hudson was elected president; Charlie Jarrell, vice president; Bill High, treasurer, and Marvin Allen, secretary.

English Avenue.

English Avenue P.-T. A. sponsored a daddies' meeting at the school last Tuesday evening. Mrs. Sistrunk's class presented a program on Georgia. After a short business meeting Mr. Barron, principal of Maddox Junior High, gave an interesting talk, explaining the principles of the NRA. Mr. Brown showed benefits derived from the national recovery act, in the way Georgia's powers of resources are being utilized, the improvements of child labor laws and factory conditions. He said that the NRA is a program planned for the common man and that now is the time for all to think in terms of humanity and to devote considerable consideration to children, the greatest asset. Another guest from Maddox Junior High was the president of the P.-T. A., Mrs. Jones.

Mrs. Nolan gave a report from the fifth district meeting. The pre-school group planned a meeting in the kindergarten room the first Monday in November.

Plans for a Halloween party were discussed for the benefit of the P.-T. A. to be held at the school the last Friday in October.

Moreland Meets.

Moreland School P.-T. A. will sponsor a Halloween carnival and candy pull in the school building Friday, October 27, from 3 to 5 o'clock. Mrs. S. H. Franklin, second vice president, is the general chairman. There will be various contests, shows and fortune telling in the rooms on the first floor. The auditorium will be filled with booths offering Mickey Mouse ice cream, lemonade, cookies, popcorn balls, apples on sticks, wienies and Halloween favors. Miss Sarah White Will Wed Mr. Jackson, of Portland, Maine

MISS SARAH WHITE.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Sarah White and George Stuyvesant Jackson, of Portland, Maine, is of cordial interest to their relatives and friends, their marriage to be solemnized in November. The lovely bride-elect is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Cotnam White, of Atlanta, and her sisters are Mrs. John I. Leonard, of Palm Beach, Fla., and Mrs. J. Austin Dilbeck, of Birmingham, Ala., and William Lowry White, of Atlanta, is her only brother. She is a granddaughter of Major and Mrs. George Marion Dallis Lowry, of Valley Head, Ala., and belongs to well-known and highly-esteemed southern families.

Miss White was graduated "cum laude," from Girls' High school and graduated from Agnes Scott College in 1928. She attended the Emory University Library school, from which she graduated in 1930, and since September, 1930, Miss White has been on the staff of the library at Washington and Lee University, in Lexington, Va. Her beauty is of the blond type, and she is the possessor of a brilliant mentality and unusual personal magnetism.

Mr. Jackson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Ten Broeck Jackson, of Portland, Maine, and was graduated from Bowdoin College in 1927. He taught at the University of Tennessee, in Knoxville, in 1927 and 1928, and took graduate work in English and taught at Harvard University, from which institution he received his M. A. degree in 1931. Mr. Jackson was assistant professor of English at Washington and Lee University in 1931 and 1933, and at present, is teaching at Portland University. He is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity, and is the author of "Early Songs of Uncle Sam," published in 1933. Mr. Jackson and his bride will reside in Portland after their marriage.

Miss McCarty Weds Mr. Schettig At Sacred Heart Church Ceremony

The Sacred Heart church formed the setting for the beautiful wedding ceremony, solemnized on Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock when Miss Frances Elizabeth McCarty, daughter of Mrs. Timothy James McCarty, became the bride of Donald Anslem Schettig, of Edensburg, Pa., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose M. Schettig, of Edensburg. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Edward P. McGrath at nuptial mass in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends and guests from a distance.

Church Decorations.

Quantities of stately palms and ferns banked the altar and formed a rich background for four tall altar vases holding Easter lilies. Flanking the central decorations were seven-branched cathedral candelabra holding slender white tapers. Prior to the ceremony and during the taking of the marriage vows Vincent Hurley, organist, rendered a program of nuptial music. His numbers included "Angel's Serenade", by Gounod, "Wedding March", from Tanhauser, by Wagner, "Ave Maria", by Millard, "Love Divine," by Sir John Stainer, and the "Wedding March" by Mendelssohn.

Mrs. John Morton Smith, cousin of the bride was the matron of honor and the attractive bevy of bridesmaids included Misses Margaret Jones, of Atlanta; Rose Garrett, of Springfield, Ohio, cousins of the bride; Phoebe Rhett, of Atlanta, Helen Schettig, of Ebensburg, Pa., sister of the bridegroom. Gowned in pansy blue velvet made on fitted lines, their costumes featured smart short jackets of pansy blue velvet with elbow-length sleeves. Their chic velvet turbans were fashioned of blue velvet and their slippers and suede gloves were in the same color tone of pansy blue. The bridesmaids carried huge sheaves of yellow chrysanthemums tied with yellow satin ribbons while the bouquet carried by the matron of honor was formed of talisman roses and bronze and yellow snapdragons tied with bronze shaded satin ribbons.

Attending the bridgegroom were the groomsmen, including John Morton Smith, Douglas Kendrick, cousins of the bride; P. J. Culhane, of Atlanta, and Lee Akers, of Johnstown, Pa. David Barry, of Johnstown, Pa., acted as best man for Mr. Schettig.

Lovely Bride.

Gowned in lustrous ivory tinted satin, the lovely bride entered with her brother, Timothy James McCarty, of Charlotte, N. C., by whom she was given in marriage. Fashioned along princess lines and fitted closely to her slender figure the gown enhanced her patrician beauty. A cap of lace confined her soft tresses and the billowly tulle veil fromed a graceful train, caught at intervals with tiny orange blossoms. She wore ivory tinted satin slippers and carried a satin covered prayer book showered with valley lilies and ivory tinted satin ribbons. The prayer book has been carried by generations of brides in the McCarty family and added a note of especial sentiment to the bridal ensemble.

Mrs. Timothy James McCarty entertained the members of the bridal party and the out-of-town guests at a wedding breakfast at the Piedmont Driving Club. Assisting in receiving the guests were the hostess, the bride and bridegroom and Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose M. Schettig, of Ebensburg, Pa., parents of the bridegroom.

Mrs. McCarty wore a handsome costume of black cut velvet with a black close fitting hat of velvet. A shoulder spray of mauve throated orchids completed her costume. Mrs. Schettig, mother of the bridgegroom chose a becoming costume of eel grey velvet with a small hat of pansy blue velvet and accessories of a matching shade of blue. Her flowers were lavender orchids.

The table was covered with a handsome damask cloth and graced with three plateaus of pastel shaded flowers. The bride's table was centered with the three-tiered wedding cake embossed in pastel shaded flowers and topped by a miniature bride. Quantities of fall flowers in autumnal color tones adorned the club.

Wedding Journey.

Mr. and Mrs. Schettig left for a wedding trip, the destination of which was not revealed, and after November 10 they will take possession of their new apartment at Ebensburg, Pa. Mrs. Schettig traveled in an imported grey woolen suit, trimmed in blue fox. Her blouse was made of ivory cut velvet and her small close fitting hat was of brown velvet. She wore brown accessories and a shoulder spray of orchids completed her costume.

Among the out-of-town guests attending the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose M. Schettig, Misses Helen, Rosemary and Colette Schettig, of Ebensburg, Pa.; David Barry and Lee Akers, of Johnstown, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Shouvlin and Miss Rose Garrett, of Springfield, Ohio; J. L. Harris, of Birmingham, Ala., and Mrs. and Mrs. A. C. Connelley, of Charleston, S. C.

Miss Eubanks Weds Mr. Plaster At Druid Hills Methodist Church

Miss Jeanette Eubanks became the bride of Daniel Edwin Plaster at an impressive ceremony at 6 o'clock last evening at the Druid Hills Methodist church, Dr. R. L. Russell, presiding elder of the Atlanta district, performed the ceremony in the presence of an assemblage of relatives and friends.

Baskets of white chrysanthemums and pink dahlias featured the church decoration and were placed before a background of palms and foliage plants. Inside the chancel rail bouquets of chrysanthemums and dahlias arose from banks of palms. On either side of the steps leading to the altar seven-branched candelabra held burning white tapers and candelabra were placed at the end of the choir pews. Baskets of chrysanthemums and dahlias marked the entrance to the chancel. Bouquets of the chrysanthemums tied with white satin ribbon marked the pews reserved for members of the families.

Musical Program.

Preceding the ceremony Miss M. Ethel Beyer, assisted by Mrs. D. T. Adams, soprano, gave a program of nuptial music. Miss Beyer played "Serenade," by Schubert; "Liebestraum," by Liszt; and "Evening Star," by Wagner. Mrs. Adams sang "Estrellita" and "O Perfect Love." The bridal chorus from Wagner's "Lohengrin" was used as a processional and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" as the recessional. During the ceremony Intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana" was played.

Henry Hope acted as Mr. Plaster's best man and the groomsmen and ushers included Charles McKagan, Doc Cathcart, Garnett Carter, Ernest Littleton, Eugene P. McElroy and Edwin Eubanks, brother of the bride.

Miss Margaret Smith, cousin of the bride, who acted as maid of honor and the bridesmaids, Misses Dorothy Collier, Evelyn Bird, Dorothy McKibben and Emily Stallings, were gowned exactly alike. They wore models of apricot velvet having bateau necklines and raglan sleeves, which were fitted from elbow to wrist. Mirror buckles fastened the belts in the back and the graceful skirts fell to slipper toe length. They wore small brown velvet hats with noseveils and carried bouquets of Talisman roses showered with bronze snapdragons and tied with bronze ribbon.

Bride Enters.

Lustrous ivory satin fashioned the wedding gown which was particularly becoming to the lovely bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Bennett Eubanks. The gown, cut on princess lines, was fitted to the bride's slender figure and the long train was built into the floor-length skirt. Satin-covered buttons reached from the pointed tips of the sleeves to the elbow and double epaulets at the shoulders gave a smart touch. Handsome rosepoint lace formed the Juliet cap, which was confined to her dark hair by dainty clusters of orange blossoms, and from which fell the veil of brussels lace. The exquisite veil was purchased by the bride last summer in Belgium. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses, showered with valley lilies.

Following the ceremony Mrs. Mary J. Eubanks, mother of the bride, entertained at a reception at her home on Harvard road. Mrs. Eubanks was gowned in black lace and wore a shoulder spray of orchids. Mrs. Daniel Edwin Plaster Sr., mother of the bridegroom, was gowned in black velvet and wore a spray of gardenias. Mrs. Eugene McElroy, sister of the bride, was costumed in wine-colored velvet with which she wore a bouquet of rubrum lillies. Miss Helen Plaster, sister of the bridegroom, wore a model of blue brocade cloth with a spray of pink rosebuds.

Assisting in receiving were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene McElroy and Mrs. Thomas Moreland Zellars. Miss Hilda Gumm and Miss Peggy Greenwood poured coffee. Miss Augusta Rainwater kept the bride's book. Chrysanthemums and pink dahlias were employed in the decoration of the house, where palms and ferns were banked. The bride's table was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake embossed with pink lilies and orange blossoms and flanked by pink tapers.

Mr. Plaster and his bride left for a motor trip to the east, and on their return they will reside with the bride's mother at her home on Harvard road.

Huie—Kendrick.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 21.—Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Huie announce the engagement of their daughter, Myra Penola, to Richards Marshall Kendrick Jr., the wedding to take place in November. Miss Caperton Weds S. H. Williams In Birmingham, Ala.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 21.—Mrs. Charles Barrington Caperton, of Rome, Ga., announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Katherine Caperton and Sharon Henry Willims, of Rome, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Williams, the ceremony took place this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the parlor of South Highland Presbyterian church in Birmingham, the pastor, Dr. W. A. Alexander, officiating.

The bride, a beautiful and stately blonde, wore a coat costume of dark blue with shoulder epaulets of grey squirrel. Her flowers were talisman roses and lilies of the valley, and a dark blue turban and dark blue slippers and gloves completed the smart costume.

The bride is the twin sister of Charles Caperton, of Philadelphia, Miss Frances Freeman Caperton, of Birmingham, and Park Bowie Caperton, of Atlanta. She bears the name of her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Katherine Anna King Capterton, who was a Savannah belle and beauty. Miss Caperton was educated in the Rome schools and at Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa. She possesses a distinctive beauty, grace and poise and has often been declared one of Rome's most beautiful girls.

Mr. Williams is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Williams, and he was educated in Rome and attended Georgia Tech where he received a degree in textile engineering. At Tech he was class officer during his freshman year, sophomore and junior years. He was a member of the varsity football team and received his letter in track. He is a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity and of the honorary textile fraternity, Phi Psi. He was a member of many campus and social clubs. His sisters are Mrs. William Birdsong, Miss Frances Williams, of Rome and his brothers are: Ish and Kelly Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams left on a motor trip and on their return to Rome, will reside at 304 E. Eighth street.

Mr. Williams, since leaving college has been with the Southern Brighton Mills at Shannon.

Miss Heard Weds Pryor K. Jones.

A beautiful wedding of the early fall was that of Miss Lucy Heard and Pryor Kennemore Jones, which was solemnized Saturday afternoon at the Morningside Presbyterian church in the presence of an assemblage of relatives and a few close friends of the bride and bridegroom. Rev. Louie D. Newton performed the ceremony.

Baskets holding multi-colored dahlias and a profusion of brilliantly tinted leaves featured the church decorations. Palms and ferns were effectively banked on the altar, forming a background of greenery.

Miss Lenus Daniell rendered a program of music. Preceding the entrance of the bridal party, Miss Evelyn Duncan sang "I Love You Truly." Miss Daniell played "Liebestraum" during the ceremony.

Miss Ethel Gentry was maid of honor. She wore dark brown crepe gown, trimmed with brown satin, with which she wore a small brown hat and accessories in brown. H. H. Boggus was Mr. Jones' best man, with J. C. Vandergriff and T. H. Howell acting as ushers.

The bride, a lovely brunette, wore a wedding gown of bronzine crepe trimmed with brown velvet. She wore a close-fitting hat in the same shade of dark brown and her other accessories were in brown. Completing the bride's costume was a shoulder spray of orchids and lilies of the valley.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. C. W. Heard and the late Mr. Heard, formerly of Athens. She is a musician of note.

Mr. Jones is the son of Mrs. S. G. Jones and the late Mr. Jones, of Gainesville, and since his graduation from the Georgia School of Technology has been associated in business with the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company in Atlanta.

The bride and bridegroom left for a wedding trip, the destination of which was not revealed. Mr. and Mrs. Jones will be at home at 1187 Mansfield avenue, N. E., after November 1.

Birthday Party.

The Store All Women Know

Miss Haney Weds T. D. Seager, Of Boston, Mass.

Marked by dignity and simplicity was the marriage of Miss Sarah Agnes Haney and Theodore Dwight Seager, of Boston, Mass., which was solemnized in the Central Presbyterian church Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. Harold C. Smith performed the service. White candles in seven-branched candelabra were placed against a bank of ferns and palms. A basket of white chrysanthemums was placed in the center. Mrs. Susie Reese Kenedy rendered a program of music, and Miss Mary Brown sang "At Dawning" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told."

The bride's only attendant was Mrs. Henry Colwell, who wore hyacinth blue crepe made with a high neck and collar of pearls. Her hat and other accessories were of silver. She carried a bouquet of Talisman roses and dahlias.

Robert Hepburn, of New Orleans, La., was the bridegroom's best man and only attendant. The ushers were Wayne Smith, Walter Haney, Edward Eady and G. B. Aldrich, of Jacksonville, Fla.

The bride entered with her brother, John Haney, of Washington, D. C., who gave her in marriage. She was attired in a Lanvin model of cream lace and wore a turban of tulle with nose veil. Her accessories were cream and she carried a shower bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and valley lilies.

Following the ceremony Mrs. Paul Haney entertained at her home on Sinclair avenue, at an informal reception. The bride's mother, Mrs. Paul Haney, wore black satin and her bouquet was of gardenias. Mrs. Samuel Herbert Seager, of Boston, Mass., wore black satin and wool lace with a bouquet of gardenias. Miss Julia Seager was gowned in green rough crepe and her bouquet was of Johanna Hill roses and valley lilies. Mrs. John Morse, grandmother of the bride, wore navy blue crepe with touches of real lace. Her shoulder bouquet was of gardenias.

Following the reception the bride and groom left for a wedding trip through Florida and will be at home in New Orleans.

Among out-of-town guests were Miss Marie Rimmer and John Haney, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. S. H. Seager and Miss Julia Seager, of Boston, Mass.; Robert Hepburn, of New Orleans, La., and G. B. Aldrich, of Jacksonville, Fla.

Guards-McPherson Polo Game Will Be Played at the Post

FORT McPHERSON, Ga., Oct. 21. Assembling members of the army contingent and guests from Atlanta will be the polo game to be played Sunday afternoon between the Governor's Horse Guards and the Fort McPherson squad. The game will be called at 3 o'clock and Lewis Brown III will act as referee. Major General Edward L. King will receive the salute of the players as they canter across the field to take their positions for the throw-in.

The game is the last of a series prior to the tournament to be played between the Guards and the 118th Field Artillery team from Savannah. There will be three games in the tournament, the winning team to be declared the victor of the national guard championship of the southeast. Lieutenant Wesley Moran will captain the Governor's Horse Guards and Bubber Coleman will captain the visitors.

The players for Sunday's game for the Guards include Wesley Moran, P. D. Christian Jr., W. D. Williamson Gerald Graham, Bill Smith and W. D. Thornton. The Fort McPherson squad will include in its lineup Mayor Reese M. Howell, Captain Albert G. Wing, Lieutenant J. K. Baker, team captain; Lieutenant Christian Clarke Jr., Lieutenant Scott Sanford and O. H. Shubert.

Colonel Lewis Sidney Morey and Mrs. Morey, Captain Druid E. Wheeler and Mrs. Wheeler and Lieutenant Crump Garvin and Mrs. Garvin, the entertainment committee for October for the Fort McPherson Officers' Club, are completing plans for the dinner-dance to be given at the club on Friday evening, October 27. The affair will be the annual Halloween entertainment sponsored by the club and will assemble a representative group of the army set with guests from town.

Colonel Bruce Lamar Burch and Mrs. Burch will entertain a group of guests, including Major General Edward L. King and Mrs. King, Colonel Thomas Lowe and Mrs. Lowe, Lieutenant Colonel Ralph Glass and Mrs. Glass, Major Ira Rader and Mrs. Rader and Major A. T. Honorary Presidents—Mrs. W. S. Coleman, of Atlanta; Miss Anna Caroline Benning, of Columbus, Mrs. John A. Perdue, of Atlanta; Mrs. W. J. Vereen, of Moultrie, and Mrs. L. D. T. Quinby, of Atlanta.

Mrs. T. W. Reed Is President Of Georgia Division U. D. C.

By MRS. J. L. McCORD, of Atlanta, State Editor.

Mrs. T. W. Reed, of Athens, is the newly elected president of Georgia division, U. D. C., her elevation to this important office having taken place at the 38th convention of the organization held in Athens last week, at invitation of Laura Rutherford, U. D. C. Mrs. Frank Dennis, of Eatonton, was elected first vice president, being elevated from third vice president.

Other officers elected were Mrs. A. Frank Matthews, of Atlanta, second vice president; Mrs. M. M. Jordan, of Tennille, third vice president; Mrs. John Lawrence McCord, of Atlanta, division editor; Mrs. Otis L. Chivers, custodian of crosses of military service; Mrs. C. S. Hodges, of Bainbridge, auditor, and Mrs. M. W. Lowry, of Athens, corresponding secretary.

A resolution urging Governor Talmadge to do everything in his power to give the veterans and widows $262 now due each of them has been sent to the chief executive. The resolution asked Governor Talmadge to do something about some $68,000 unpaid for the burial of veterans. Speakers said there was a state law requiring these funeral expenses be borne by the state, but that it had been a number of years since any bills of the kind were paid.

The convention voted that the Georgia division would be represented on the bicentennial tablet to be placed on the state capitol at Atlanta and voted to raise the $250, the fund to be raised outside of the state treasury of the organization.

A monument is to be erected by the Georgia division at Jonesboro, where hundreds of Confederate veterans are buried and a committee to work out plans is to be named by Mrs. T. W. Reed to report to the executive board when it meets in January.

Mrs. Horace Holden, of Atlanta, who has long been a close student of the life and works of Alexander H. Stephens, was honored by the convention by her selection as the only member to be elevated to a honorary presidency of the state body.

Mrs. L. W. Greene, of Augusta, editor of the official page of the division, praised The Atlanta Constitution and Mrs. Rix Stafford for cooperation and material help during the year in making the official state page in that publication one of the best.

The incoming editor, Mrs. J. L. McCord, of Atlanta, requests publicity chairmen to address communications to her at 517 Ridgecrest road, N. E.

Mrs. Izzie Bashinski, the retiring president, in her address before the convention, charged that the lawmakers had failed to meet "their sacred obligation" by providing funds for pensions. She styled the Confederate veteran as "Georgia's forgotten man." Names of Georgia Confederate veterans missing from the rolls in this state will be supplied by obtaining photographs of records in Washington under a $2,200 sum set aside for that purpose by Governor Talmadge.

Mrs. Bashinski told the convention that about 1,519 names of veterans who served in 400 companies were missing from the state rolls. Records of their service were taken by General Sherman in his campaign through the state. She recommended that a ruling be made to determine how long a delinquent chapter may be carried in the minutes before cancelling its charter.

Woodland chapter, U. D. C., held the September meeting at the Woodland clubhouse with Mrs. A. J. Webster. Three membership papers were reported ready to be sent to registrar, and Mrs. R. C. Fryer, Misses Lucy Clark and Ola Collier were elected delegates to the state convention in Athens. The chapter requested that "Summer Life at Camp Dixie," written by Miss Jean Hendricks, winner in U. D. C. essay contest, be published in local paper. The following program was given: "Georgia Land," chapter; "Literature in Georgia," Miss Ola Daniel; duet, "Mighty Lak a Rose," Mesdames J. F. Woodall and B. S. Slaughter; "Historians in Georgia," Mrs. U. L. Couch; "Battleship 'Dixie,'" Mrs. G. A. Searcy; "Summer Camp at Camp Dixie," Miss Jean Hendricks. Visitors were Mesdames Leonard Hendricks and Charlie Hendricks and the following were hostesses, Mesdames C. E. Miller, J. F. Russell Jr. and Misses Kate Peeler and Willene Webster.

Annie Wheeler chapter, U. D. C., of Carrollton, was entertained at the fall meeting by the president, Mrs. W. J. Millican, and Miss Sara Griffin as hostesses, and yearbooks were distributed. The general topic of study is "Southern Life and History as Portrayed in Southern Literature." The study for the year is "The Presidents and the Great State Papers." The program featured "George Washington," Miss Sara Griffin; "Indian Messages," Miss Mary Alexander; "Farewell Address," Mrs. Horace Sole; "Raphael Semmes," Mrs. C. K. Henderson Jr.

The officers for the ensuing year are: President, Mrs. W. J. Millican; vice presidents, Mesdames G. F. Cheney and Horace Cole; recording secretary, Mrs. W. M. Meadows; assistant secretary, Mrs. C. M. Tanner; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Phil Astin; treasurer, Mrs. A. W. Alexander; registrar, H. F. Merrell; historian, Mrs. C. K. Henderson Jr.; recorder, Mrs. A. D. Hale; delegates to the convention are Mrs. W. J. Millican and Miss Mary Alexander, with Mrs. C. K. Henderson Jr. as alternate.

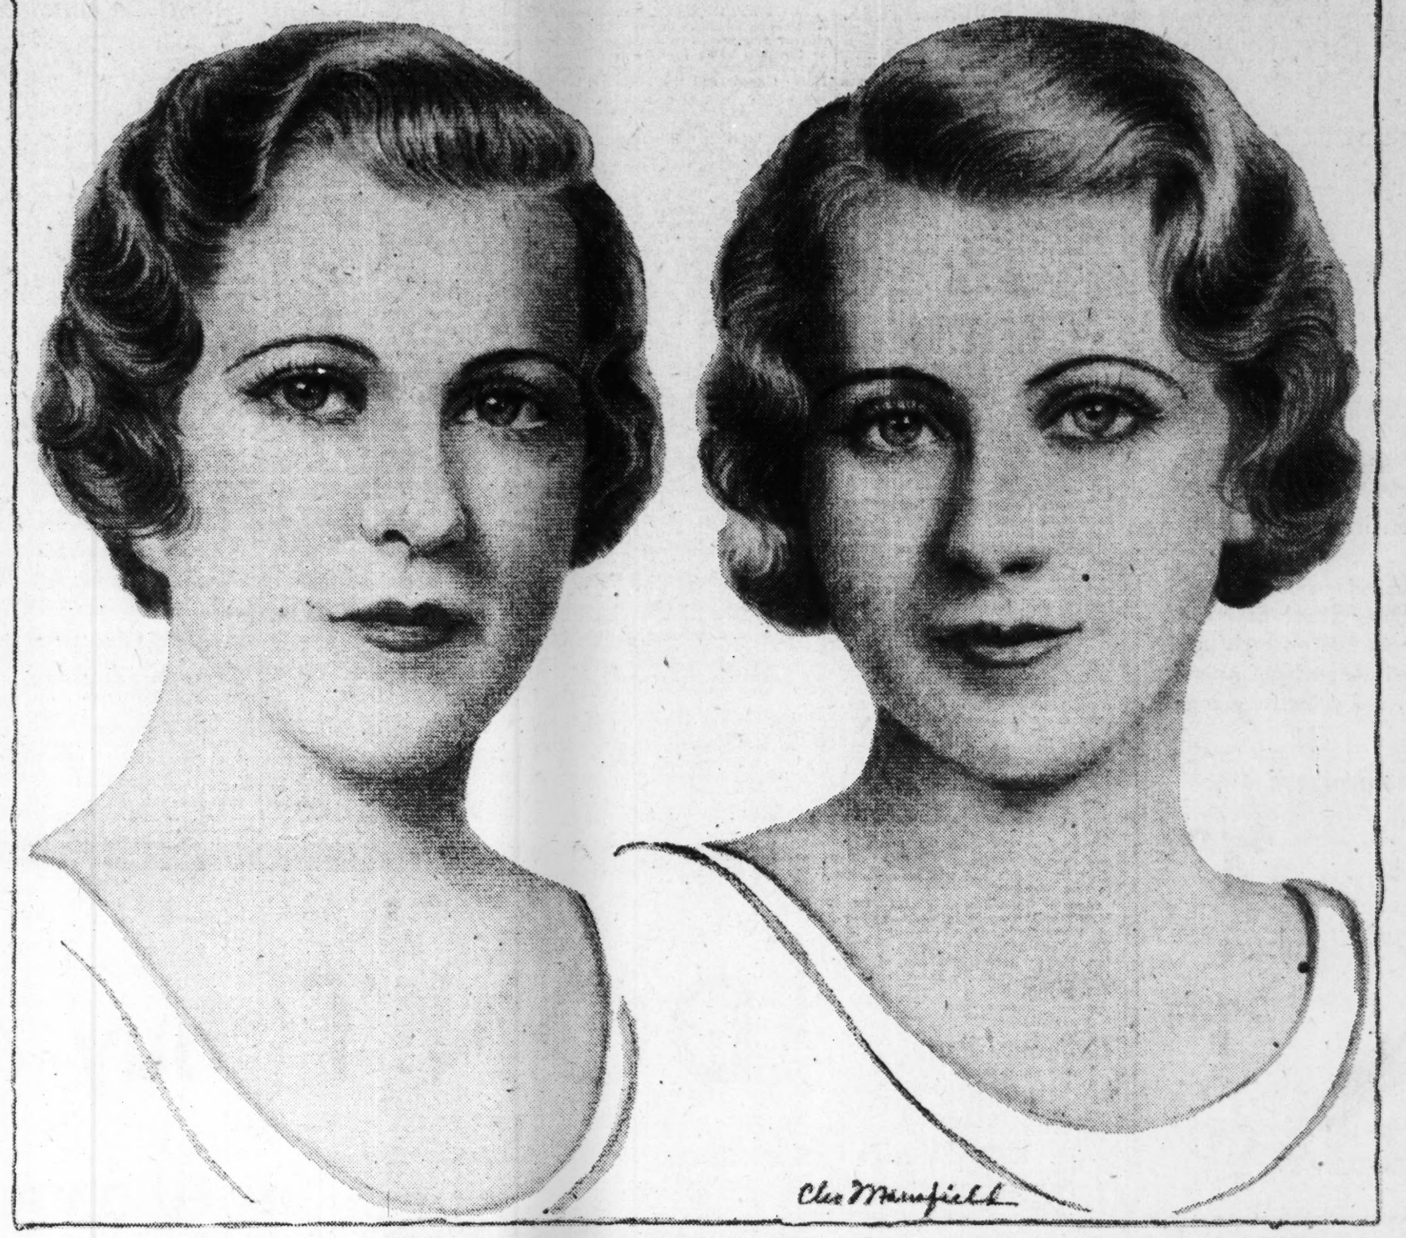

Officers for 1933-1934 of the Agnes Lee chapter, U. D. C., of Decatur, are: President, Mrs. W. P. Smith; recording secretary, Mrs. J. D. Camp; corresponding secretary, Mrs. R. C. Cousins; treasurer, Mrs. A. L. Wade; registrar, Miss Susie Johnson; historian, Mrs. V. A. S. Moore.

Mesdames J. S. Lunsford and J. H. Asbury were hostesses to the Habersham chapter, U. D. C., of Clarksville, at the home of the former. Mrs. S. Y. Stribling Jr. presided, and the following committee was appointed to make a record of the relics owned by the chapter: Mesdames F. L. Asbury, F. J. Kimsey and T. D. Phillips. Mrs. N. Y. Davis was elected as a delegate to represent the chapter at the state convention at Athens, and Mrs. I. H. Sutton was elected as delegate to the general convention in Baltimore. Miss Annie Sutton led the discussion of a proposal to erect a Confederate monument in Clarkesville. Mrs. Stribling gave a report of the local chapter of the Confederacy recently organized. The historian, Mrs. N. Y. Davis, presented Miss Tattie Sutton, who read an article on "Admiral Semmes, Confederate Naval Leader," and a historical talk was given by Miss Willie David O'Kelly, formerly a teacher at Georgia State College, at Milledgeville, recently returned from England, where she did research work for the Georgia bicentennial commission. The hostesses were assisted in serving by Mrs. Wells Asbury and Miss Jessie Asbury.

Clifford L. Smith, Troup county historian, spoke on "Science and Inventions in the South" to members of the LaGrange chapter, U. D. C., at the meeting held at the LaGrange Woman's clubroom with Mesdames Henry Reeves and R. A. Gandy as hostesses. Miss Mary Head played a Bach composition on the piano; Mrs. J. L. Bradfield gave interesting news items to U. D. C. members; Miss Mattie McGee, retiring president, gave a report of the year's work; Mrs. F. T. Reed, retiring treasurer, gave a financial report; Miss Tommie Martin, leader of the Children of the Confederacy, discussed plans for the state meeting to be held in LaGrange next year. Mrs. T. G. Polhill reported the tea given in Atlanta by Miss Ruth Blair, state historian. Mrs. R. L. Adams, the president, named the following committees: Telephone, Mrs. Ed Dunson, Mrs. J. C. Hunter, Mrs. J. S. Christian, Mrs. Frank Hutchinson, Mrs. H. C. Butler; automobile chairman, Miss Mattie McGee; publicity, Miss Ellie Gray; homes for meetings, Mrs. W. A. Glanton; custodian U. D. C. room, Mrs. Henry Reeves.

The memory of Admiral Semmes was honored Wednesday afternoon in the chapter hall of U. D. C., and elected as delegates to the state convention in Athens, October 17-19, were Mesdames Harry Craig, president of the Chapter A, and C. U. Hammett, with Mesdames A. B. Walden and A. V. Sturgeon as alternates. Motion was made and carried to send a contribution to each needy cause of the U. D. C. A solo, "Lyacies," was rendered by Miss Margaret Elliott, accompanied by Miss Marion Craig. Mrs. Warren Lanham read a paper on the "Life of Admiral Semmes." Dr. Lawton B. Evans presented portraits of General Clement A. Evans and his sister, Ida Evans Eve, to the chapter. He told of interesting facts of his father's life, when he was general, minister and in public life. His sister, Ida Evans Eve, was first president of Chapter A, U. D. C., of Augusta. Another portrait presentation was that of General W. H. T. Walker.

At the left is Miss Caroline Crumley, president of the Debutante Club of 1933-34, pictured with her cousin, Miss Harriett Grant, these lovely young girls to make their formal debut together at a brilliant supper-dance, to be given by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Crumley and Mr. and Mrs. Bryan M. Grant, at the Piedmont Driving Club on Friday, December 1. Miss Crumley and Miss Grant graduated from Washington Seminary, and are members of the Phi Pi Club. Miss Crumley is president of Rabun Gap-Nacoochee Junior group. These attractive cousins are being feted at a series of parties during their debutante year, and are among the most popular members of the debutante contingent. The pictures were sketched by Cleo Mansfield, The Constitution's staff artist, from photographs made by Asasno, the Japanese photographer.

The class in international co-operation to prevent war meets at the home of Mrs. Calvin Shelverton, the leader, 1407 West Peachtree street, apartment 9, at 10:30 o'clock on Thursday, October 26. Mrs. Shelverton announces that this will be the regular meeting of the class and that for the next few weeks the class will specialize on current foreign affairs. Mrs. Shelverton announces that the class in international co-operation has been invited to be the guests of the Music Study Club at its performance of "The Ode to Joy," which takes place at the Woman's Club on Wednesday, November 1.

Miss Elizabeth Sawtell, chairman of the second ward group of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, announces a meeting of the members of the group for Thursday, October 26, at 2:30 o'clock at the Georgia Avenue school. The main object of the meeting is to reorganize the group, and all league members and those interested in the work are urged to be present.

Social Welfare Council has arranged a citywide conference on social work to be held Tuesday, October 24, at the Y. W. C. A. There will be three meetings at which vital subjects will be discussed by competent speakers and all league members are urged to be present.

Mrs. R. L. Turman, chairman of the board of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, calls attention to the weekly broadcasts over WSB each Tuesday at 6:15 o'clock. The general name of the series is "The Crisis in Municipal Finance," and some of the best-known people in the country are speaking on the series.

Writers' Club Gives Dinner.

An event of Thursday evening was the opening dinner of the Atlanta Writers' Club, held in the ballroom of the Atlanta Woman's Club. The president of the organization, Dr. Wightman F. Melton, presided. The guest of honor was Minnie Hite Moody, whose book, "Once Again in Chicago," has won favorable comment from numerous literary authorities. The book, recently recommended by the Literary Guild, was written entirely from source material gathered from the attic in Mrs. Moody's old home, where magazines and newspapers filled with news of the Columbian Exposition, have been carefully preserved. Mrs. Moody read her short story, "Nightshade," winner of second prize in the national contest of the Penwomen of America. Mrs. Fritz Jones, member of the Writers' Club, won second award for feature writing in the same contest.

Dr. Robert D. England, member of faculty of Oglethorpe University, spoke on "Why Stories Come Back." Dr. England conducts a class of short story writing at Oglethorpe.

Dr. Melton announced that a poem by Clarence L. Haynie, "Final Beauty," won a copy of Edith Tatum's "Patteran," presented by the author to her choice of the best poem in the current issue of Bozart. Miss Margery De Leon, chairman of literary activities, gave a report on publications and prizes by members of the organization. Miss Annie Laurie Hill presented the names of three new members. Miss Yolande Gwin, Miss Cornelia Cunningham and Judge Frank Harwell, of Decatur. Requirements for membership are interest and definite endeavor along literary lines. Dues have been reduced to $3. Fifty members and their guests were present.

Miss Cordell Weds Carlton C. Chandler.

LAKEMONT, Ga., Oct. 21.—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cordell announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Margie Cordell, to Carlton C. Chandler, of Augusta, Ga. The wedding was solemnized Sunday, October 1, at 5 o'clock at the home of Rev. D. S. Patterson, pastor of the Clayton Methodist church, with only relatives and a few close friends attending.

Following the ceremony the bride and groom and guests motored to the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Clarence Foster, where dinner was served. On Wednesday the bride and groom were entertained at Press Haven by Mr. and Mrs. Aris Davis. Mr. and Mrs. Davis motored to Augusta Friday to their home, where they will reside. Mr. Chandler is formerly from Athens, but for two years he resided here, only recently having gone to Augusta for residence.

Miss Jackson Weds Mr. Gentry in Decatur

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Mary Porter Jackson, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Jackson, of Eastman, and Oscar A. Gentry Jr., also of Eastman, the marriage having been solemnized in Decatur, Ga., Sunday morning, October 15. Rev. Horace Smith, pastor of the First Methodist church, of Decatur, performed the ceremony in the presence of the brother of the bridegroom and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Baxter Gentry, of Decatur.

The bride attended Wesleyan Conservatory, in Macon, two years, and this year she was a student at the Woman's College of Alabama, in Montgomery. She was a member of Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatic fraternity. Mr. Gentry, after graduating from the Eastman High school was graduated from Riverside Military Academy. Afterwards he studied at the University of Georgia, where he was a member of the Chi Phi fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. Gentry are representatives of prominent families. The bride's paternal grandfather was a Methodist minister. Her father, Rev. C. A. Jackson, is pastor of the Eastman Methodist church, and her two brothers, C. A. Jackson Jr. and James Jackson, are ministers in the South Georgia Methodist conference. Mr. Gentry is a son of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Gentry, and is connected with his father in the insurance business.

Alpha Chi Omega Official To Arrive

Mrs. Gilbert L. Van Auken, of Delmar, Albany county, New York, will arrive in Atlanta October 28, where she will be joined by Mrs. W. S. Mitchell, of Atlanta, and together they will attend the third southern province convention of Alpha Chi Omega at the Florida State College for Women at Tallahassee. Mrs. Van Auken is national president of this fraternity and Mrs. Mitchell is southern province president.

Elaborate plans for the convention have been made by the fraternity at Tallahassee, which includes a reception Friday evening, a banquet Saturday evening and a tea Sunday afternoon. Guests and delegates from the entire southern province will be present and a large group will represent the Atlanta Alumnae Club.

Mrs. Van Auken will return to Atlanta on Monday and will be the guest of Mrs. Mitchell at her home on Jett road and will be entertained elaborately during her visit to Atlanta.

Entertains Phi Mus.

Mrs. George B. Hoyt, president of the Phi Mu Alumnae chapter, of Atlanta, will entertain all Phi Mus at her home, 831 Myrtle street, on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Miss Carolyn Vance, of the faculty of University of Georgia, will give as a reading Ibsen's "Peer Gynt," and there will be a short business session, the first of the fall season. Mrs. Hoyt requests that she be notified by telephone, Hemlock 3207-J, of all acceptances.

Miss Hill Weds John S. Whitner November 18

GREENVILLE, Ga., Oct. 21.—Cordial interest centers in the announcement made today of the wedding plans for Miss Jane Hill's marriage to John Selby Whitner, of Atlanta, which takes place here Saturday evening, November 18, at 8 o'clock at the Methodist church. The occasion will assemble many out-of-town guests including a number from Atlanta, where the bride-to-be and groom-elect are well-known in that city's younger society.

Rev. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church of Atlanta, where members of Mr. Whitner's family have worshipped for a long period of years. A musical program will be rendered by Virgil Hooks, Atlanta pianist, and Joseph Freeman, of Greenville.

Acting as ushers will be W. O. Foote Jr., Eddie Jameson, A. F. Hill Jr., and Embry Kendrick, all of Atlanta. The maid-of-honor will be the bride-elect's sister, Miss Virginia Hill, and Mrs. Charles Whitner Jr., of Atlanta, will be the matron of honor. The bridesmaids will include Miss Martha Anne Kendrick, Mrs. Nesbit Marye and Mrs. Lovejoy Harwell, all of Atlanta. Charles Whitner Jr. will attend his brother as best man. The bride-to-be will be given in marriage by her father, H. Warner Hill Jr.

On account of a recent bereavement in the bride-elect's family there will be no reception. Mr. Whitner and his bride will return from the wedding trip to Atlanta where they will take an apartment in the Masselton at 198 Ponce de Leon avenue.

Miss Cross Weds Mr. Hightower On November 1

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 21.—Announcement of the wedding plans of Miss Mary Ruth Cross and Robert Edward Hightower, of Atlanta, will be of interest to their many friends, both in Birmingham and Atlanta. The wedding will take place on Wednesday afternoon, November 1, at 4:30 o'clock, at the Vine Street Presbyterian church.

The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Edward G. Lilly, and a musical program will be given by Mrs. Arthur Cooley, Paul Smith and Miss Frances Middleton. The bride will be given in marriage by her brother, Charles P. Cross.

Mrs. Charles Preston Cross will attend her sister as matron of honor, while Miss Antoinette Hightower, sister of the groom, and Miss Catharine Allen, cousin of the bride, will serve as bridesmaids. Mr. Haslett McCullough, of Atlanta, will be best man for Mr. Hightower, and William H. Hightower, brother of the groom, and David E. Miller, both o. Atlanta, will serve as groomsmen.

Season's Buds Are Honored At Parties

Miss Laura Whitner and Miss Jule McClatchey were hosts at a breakfast yesterday at the Atlanta Athletic Club preceding the Georgia Tech-Tulane football game in honor of a group of the season's debutantes. A color motif of yellow and white was carried out in the table decorations and yellow and white chrysanthemums were arranged as a centerpiece for the table, flanked by silver candlesticks holding yellow tapers. The table was placed in a private dining room.

The guests include the following debs, Misses Caroline Crumley, Suzanne Memminger, Mimi Fleming, Judy King, Florence Bryan, Mary Bryan, Lundye Sharp, Kate Jenkins, Harriet Grant, Patsy Thayer, Barbara Ransom, Betty Schroder, Betty Gage, Jule McClatchey, Maibelle Dickey, Frances Morton, Ruth Wight, Harriett Lee, Betsy Weyman and Jean Booker, of Washington, Ga.

Following the football game Mr. and Mrs. Jere Wickliffe Goldsmith II entertained at ... at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. McD. Massey, on Wesley avenue in honor of Misses Betty Schroder, Jule McClatchey, Ruth Wight and Patsy Thayer, attractive debutantes. Talisman roses, blue salvia, yellow chrysanthemums and pink roses were effectively employed in the decoration throughout the house. Miss Barbara Massey, younger sister of the hosts, presided at the coffee table.

Invited to meet the honor guests were Misses Mary Bryan, Florence Bryan, Harriet Grant, Caroline Crumley, Betty Gage, Suzanne Memminger, Mimi Fleming, Octavia Riley, Frances Morton, Harriett Lee, Isabelle Knight, of Buford; Mr. and Mrs. Julian de Ovies, Paul Goldsmith, John Goldsmith, Alex Gaines, Chris Irby, Charles Wilkerson, Frank Morrison, Marion Gaston, Wesley

Hippey-Smith Vows Are Taken At Pro-Cathedral

The beautiful new Pro-cathedral of St. Philip on Peachtree road furnished the setting for the marriage of Miss Sarah Lowry Hippey and Percival Willburn Smith Jr., which took place at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Dean Raimundo de Ovies performed the ceremony in the presence of a representative gathering of relatives, and friends.

Giant white chrysanthemums filled the four white vases placed two on either side of the church altar, and seven-branched candelabra holding lighted tapers were placed in the chancel. Palms were banked before the choir stalls and the altar rail, and the rail was entwined with smilax effectively studded with white chrysanthemums. Clusters of the white chrysanthemums tied with white satin ribbon marked the pews occupied by members of the families. Preceding and during the ceremony, Arthur Davis, church organist, gave a program of appropriate nuptial music at the organ. The bridal chorus from Lohengrin was used as a processional and the Mendelssohn recessional was played.

Wedding Party.

Miss Susan Hippey, younger sister of the bride, who acted as maid of honor; Mrs. Reid Ford, of Knoxville, Tenn., matron of honor, and Miss Sarah Law, bridesmaid, were costumed exactly alike. Their gowns of peach-toned crepe, cut on the bias, with skirts of slipper-toe length, featured flowers of brown

Miss White Is Bride Of Mr. Shackelford

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 21.—Mr. and Mrs. John Robert White announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Willene White, to William Thaddeus Shackelford, of Atlanta. The ceremony was quietly solemnized at high noon Thursday, October 19, at Centenary Methodist church in Chattanooga.

The marriage service was read by the Rev. C. K. Wings in the presence of members of the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom.

Mrs. Shackelford is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. White, and the sister of B. D. White. Of the blonde type of beauty, she possesses great personal charm and graciousness of manner. For the past year she has made her home in Atlanta, where she is the center of a circle of admiring friends and where she will form a welcome addition to the young matron contingent of society.

Mr. Shackelford is the son of Thomas D. Shackelford and the late Mrs. Shackelford, of Atlanta. His only sister is Mrs. G. A. Baldini, of Pleasantville, N. Y., and his brothers are W. L. Shackelford and Thomas A. Shackelford, of Atlanta, and Charles B. Shackelford, of Monroe, La. The bridegroom is connected in business with the Duralith Corporation, of Atlanta.

Mr. Shackelford and his bride left for a wedding journey to Washington, New York and other eastern points. After November 1 they will be at home at 789 Ponce de Leon avenue, Atlanta.

Novice Classes For Young Riders Announced For Junior Horse Show

The junior horse show to be held at the Biltmore Riding school on Saturday, November 4, is especially interesting to young riders who have never participated in a horse show or have never won ribbons. Several novice classes are being arranged as features of this important sporting event. Any equestrian in Atlanta not over 18 years of age who likes riding is given an invitation to enter this show. Children who have no horses will be mounted by Dr. and Mrs. A. S. Wheeler, under whose direction the show will be held.

Mrs. Walter Candler, general chairman of the show for the Young Matrons' Circle of Tallulah Falls school, the sponsors, is being assisted in arrangements by her co-chairmen, Mrs. Charles LaRoux, Mrs. Clarence Haverty and Mrs. Westervelt Terhune. The circle is sponsoring the horse show not only to derive funds for the Tallulah Falls school but also in an effort to promote interest in horsemanship among the younger riders of Atlanta.

Miss Crowder To Wed William O. Patterson.

MILNER, Ga., Oct. 21.—Interest is centered in the above announcement made by Mrs. George C. Crowder, of Milner, of the engagement and approaching marriage of her lovely daughter, Miss Martha Alice Crowder, to William Orr Patterson, of Pomona, Ga. The marriage will take place at the Methodist church in Milner on Wednesday, November 15.

Miss Crowder is a petite brunet possessing beauty and rare charms, and has a sweet disposition and sparkling personality, which have endeared her to all who know her. She attended school at LaGrange Woman's College and also at G. S. C. W., Milledgeville. She is teaching in Rome, Ga., where she has been a member of the faculty for some time. She has often visited in Griffin and has a number of friends throughout the state who will be most interested to read of her engagement.

Mr. Patterson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Patterson, of Pomona, and is a prominent young businessman of this city. He is manager of the Monitor Appliance Company, which is located here. After graduating from Griffin High school he attended the North Georgia Agricultural College in Dahlonega and Oglethorpe University, in Atlanta. After their marriage the popular young couple will make their home in Griffin.

Demonstration Clubs.

Miss Lucy Wood, Fulton county home demonstration agent, will hold meetings with the following clubs next week. Ben Hill, Monday, October 23; Mt. Olive, Tuesday, October 24; Orchard Knob, Wednesday, October 25, and Hammond, Thursday, October 26. The subject of her talk will be "Beautifying the Rural Homes."

A new club was organized recently at Roswell to be known as the Roswell Home Demonstration Club. Thirteen ladies were present for the organization meeting. The officers are Mrs. J. L. Almand, president, and Miss Willie Pearl Jackson, secretary and treasurer. The two major projects the club selected for this year are nutrition and landscape gardening.

Miss Lichtenwalter Weds Mr. Couch At Home Ceremony

Of cordial interest to their friends is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Lichtenwalter and Thomas J. Couch. The ceremony which was marked with impressive dignity and beauty was solemnized Saturday, October 14, at 4 o'clock, at the home of the bride's mother on Edwin place.

Only the immediate families were present to witness the ceremony which was performed by Dr. Ellis A. Fuller. The vows were taken before an improvised altar of palms and tall wicker vases of white dahlias. Candelabras with burning tapers were effectively arranged at intervals lending a glow to the beautiful scene. A violin solo was rendered by Freeman Groover and the bride entered with J. C. Willis, her uncle, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mrs. Freeman Groover at the piano.

Miss Callie Lichtenwalter, the bride's youngest sister, was her only attendant. Her costume was of rust colored crepe with mink trimmings and she carried an old-fashioned bouquet of contrasting flowers.

The bride was radiantly beautiful in an attractive ensemble of brown satin black crepe worn with a becoming hat of brown velvet, ornamented with a veil. Brown accessories completed the outfit. She carried an arm bouquet of talisman roses showered with ribbon and valley lilies.

Mrs. Couch, the groom's mother was gowned in black satin trimmed with white. Her corsage was of sweetheart roses and valley. Mrs. Litchtenwalter, the bride's mother was dressed in blackberry colored crepe, trimmed with flesh, and her corsage was of yellow tea roses and valley lilies.

Marvin Toney acted as best man. Miss Mary Carmichael kept the bride's book and Mrs. Clyde Byfield and Mrs. Harry Hearn assisted at the punch bowl.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Couch left for Florida and will be at home after October 25 at 231 Twelfth street, N. E.

Agnes Scott Alumnae Announce Activities.

Habersham D. A. R. Presents Program

Joseph Habersham chapter, D. A. R., met last Wednesday with Mrs. R. K. Rambo, regent, presiding. Miss Juanita Chisholm, chairman of patriotic days, presented an interesting program, which opened with "Columbia, Gem of the Ocean," sung by Mrs. Lamar Etheridge, music chairman. A paper on "The History of the Georgia Society, D. A. R.," was read by Miss Helen Prescott, followed by "The Indian Love Song," whistled by Miss Louise McCutcheon, accompanied on the piano by herself. In response to an encore, Miss McCutcheon rendered "Pale Moon."

Miss Lillian Alexander, who recently made an extensive trip abroad, gave an interesting and instructive lecture on the customs and present conditions in England, France, Germany and other countries. This was followed by a vocal solo, 'My Nest of Heavenly Blue," by Mrs. Lamar Etheridge. To the strains of the "Star-Spangled Banner" the United States flag, followed by the Georgia flag, were brought in by Mrs. John H. Mullin and Mrs. Enos Hartman, with Mrs. C. J. Sheehan leading the salute to the flag. Mrs. Rambo opened the meeting with the D. A. R. ritual.

Several visitors were present and welcomed by the regent.

In the absence of Mrs. V. O. Rankin, chairman of Revolutionary soldiers' graves, reports were made by Mrs. C. J. Sheehan and Mrs. C. D. Tebo on the unveiling of three markers on October 8, near Clinton, Ga. Plans for the annual Georgia Products dinner and other fall and winter activities were discussed.

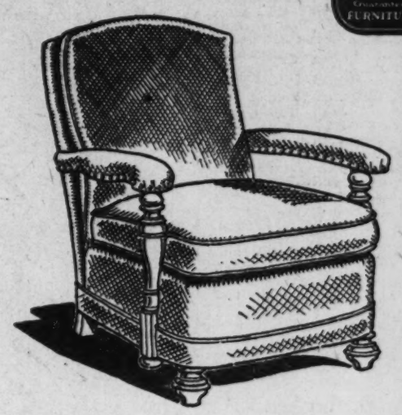

Jones—Howle.

Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Jones announce the marriage of their daughter, Audrey Elizabeth, to A. M. Howle, on September 5. The marriage was quietly solemnized in Opelika, Ala., in the presence of a few close friends. The ceremony was performed by Judge L. Duke.

Mrs. Howle, who is of the titian type, received her education in Girls' High school. Mr. Howle received his education in Manuel High school in Louisville, Ky. He is now associated with the Wofford Oil Company.

Double Ceremony In New York City

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Mr. and Mrs. Lionello Perera announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Nina Perera, to Charles Wood Collier, which was solemnized on Saturday, October 14, at 49 East Eightieth street. Their marriage took place at a double ceremony which united Miss Dorothy Fern Bittel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry John Bittel, and Lionel Cantoni Perera, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lionello Perera, and a brother of Mrs. Collier.

Cards announcing the double ceremony have been received in Atlanta, with the announcement of the Perera-Collier rites engraved opposite to the announcement of the Bittel-Perera rites.

Mr. Collier is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Collier, of Washington, D. C., his father being a former Atlantan, and son of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Collier. He is a nephew of Mrs. Julian Harris, Mrs. Robert W. Davis, Charles A. Collier, Rawson Collier, Mrs. Henry Stanton and Mrs. Hubbard Keenan.

velvet which were appliqued to form epaulettes at the shoulders, from which the sleeves fell in circular fashion to the elbows. The necklines formed a high cowl effect in the front and were fastened at the nape of the neck with tiny buttons and slit from the neckline to the waist in the back. Their modish small hats were of brown duvetyn made with tiny circular veils, and they wore brown suede slippers and gloves. They carried bronze-colored dahlias tied with brown ribbon.

Mr. Smith had his brother, George Leonard Smith, of Richmond, Va., as his best man, and the groomsmen were Ware Smith, of Richmond, and Henry Seawell, of Atlanta. Acting as ushers were Lloyd Spivey, of Richmond; James Harris, of Charlotte, N. C., and Donald Randolph, of Albany, Ga.

Lovely Bride.

Ivory-tinted chiffon velvet fashioned the wedding gown emphasizing the loveliness of the bride, who was given in marriage by her father, William T. Hippey. Cut on princess lines in bias style, the gown molded the bride's slender figure, the skirt reaching to the floor and extending into a long train in the back. The V-shaped neckline in the front was a becoming feature and a single button fastened the neck of the gown at the back. The long, tight sleeves were pointed over the wrists and the gown was absolutely untrimmed. The veil of antique ivory illusion tulle fell from a Juliet cap formed entirely of pearls, and the face veil gave a halo effect. She carried a bouquet of purple-throated orchids and valley lilies.

Following the ceremony Mrs. A. F. Hallman, aunt of the bride, entertained at a reception at her home on Lombardy way for members of the wedding party and the immediate families. Mrs. Hallman was gowned in black crepe with a collar of ermine and her black hat was trimmed with ermine tails. She wore a shoulder spray of orchids. Mrs. P. W. Smith Sr., of Richmond, Va., was handsomely gowned in navy blue crepe, worn with a coat and hat in a matching tone of blue, and her shoulder bouquet was of orchids.

Out-of-town guests present included Mrs. E. C. Mahan, Mr. and Mrs. Reid Fort, of Knoxville, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Smith Sr., Miss Katherine Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Smith, of Richmond, Va.; Miss Constance Furman, of Greenville, S. C., and Mr. and Mrs. John Rourke, of Savannah, Ga.

Mr. Smith and his bride left for a wedding trip to Florida and for traveling Mrs. Smith donned a smart model of bottle-green crepe, the scarf of which was trimmed with mink tails, and she wore a brimmed hat of the same material as the gown. Her black coat was trimmed with luxurious fox fur and her accessories were in black. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Smith will reside at 2219 Peachtree road.

Dance Studio In Habersham Hall Is Opened By Miss Flossie Hill

MISS FLOSSIE HILL.

Talented and blond Miss Flossie Hill has opened her dance studio in Habersham hall, and as a graceful exponent of Terpsichore, she will teach the modern ballroom dances to children and adults. Future debutantes attended by their youthful partners will have opportunity to learn the intricacies of the waltz and the one-step under Miss Hill's capable supervision, while grown-up members of the social contingent will find a world of pleasure in mastering the art of dancing under her tutelage.

Miss Hill is tremendously interested in her art, and although she is a very youthful instructor, she brings to her work a wealth of grace and ability, combined with a fine sense of rhythm. She has had valuable training in her chosen profession, and her rendition of the modern ballroom dancing is graceful and beautiful. During her school days at North Avenue Presbyterian school and at Washington Seminary she appeared in dance numbers in school plays and was in great demand as a solo dancer.

A host of personal and inherited friends are interested in Miss Hill's venture. She is a great-granddaughter of Senator Benjamin Harvey Hill, whose magnificent marble statue stands in the state capitol building in Atlanta. Her grandfather, the late Charles D. Hill, was one of the most brilliant men in Georgia, and the late Benjamin Harvey Hill, her father, was a prominent member of the Georgia Bar Association and a beloved member of his profession.

Debutantes of the current season were honor guests at Miss Hill's dance, given at Habersham hall on Friday evening. These special dances will occur weekly, to which invitations will be issued. Miss Hill has great charm and personal magnetism, and is an unusually pretty and attractive young girl.

Miss Banks Is Interesting Visitor.

Pretty and blond Miss Martha Campbell Banks, of Columbus, Miss., is visiting her maternal uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Charles Campbell, at their home on Ponce de Leon avenue. During her stay she is being honored at a number of small informal social affairs, and with her winsome beauty and demure charm she bids fair to be one of the most attractive members of Atlanta's winter colony.

Miss Banks is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Reynolds Banks and a sister of John Campbell Banks, of Mississippi. Her mother was the former Miss Martha Campbell, of Nashville, Tenn., one of a pair of beautiful sisters, the other being Mrs. Greer Rogers, of Memphis, Tenn. Her maternal grandmother is Mrs. John Campbell, of Columbus, Miss., and Nashville, Tenn., and the late John Campbell was her grandfather. The late Colonel James Oliver Banks and Mrs. Lucy Young Banks, of Mississippi, were her paternal grandparents.

Studying at a convent in Mobile, Ala., attending college in her native state, Miss Banks completed her education abroad. She visited Mr. and Mrs. Campbell in Belgium, where she was identified with the interesting foreign colony.

Miss Fleming Attends Dances in Florida.

Atlanta is well represented at the gala week-end festivities of the University of Florida, in Gainesville, by Miss Ellen Fleming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Fleming, who is numbered among the visiting belles present for these affairs. Miss Fleming, who is a member of the freshman class at the Florida State College for Women at Tallahassee, has the distinction of being a guest in the home of the university president and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Tigert. She was invited by the president's son, John Tigert, to attend the university's football game yesterday afternoon and the subsequent dances and parties.

In the short time that she has been in college at Tallahassee, Miss Fleming has already made herself an enviable place among her contemporaries. She was extended bids to 13 sororities and pledged to the Alpha Delta Pi, national sorority, of which her roommate, Miss Virginia Merry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy G. Merry, of Atlanta, is also a member. Miss Fleming is president of the Alpha Delta Pi pledge club and takes a prominent part in college activities. She will return to Atlanta November 11 for a short visit to her parents. Mr. and Mrs. Fleming and Mrs. Merry have recently returned from a visit to their daughters in Tallahassee.

Mrs. Smith Observes Bridal Traditions.

The traditional "Something old, something new, something borrowed, and something blue," which is deemed necessary for a bride's happiness, was carefully observed by Miss Sarah Hippey at her marriage yesterday afternoon to Percival Willburn Smith Jr. Not only did Mrs. Smith faithfully carry out this superstition to bring good luck, but interesting sentiment was attached to her bridal toilette.

In the heel of her new satin wedding slipper was tucked a silver quarter bearing the date 1904, which was the year of her late mother's marriage to the bride's father, William T. Hippey, and was shiny new when he gave it to his bride, the former Miss Lucy Emily Lowry, to bring luck on their wedding day. Mrs. Smith also had her mother's prayer book used for the wedding service. The something blue of the old adage was furnished by a bit of ribbon, and the exquisite gown of ivory-toned chiffon velvet and the veil were lent to Mrs. Smith by her matron of honor, Mrs. Reid Ford, of Knoxville, Tenn., who wore them when as Miss Cynthia Mahan she took her marriage vows.

Particularly interesting was this bridegroom's gift to his bride, which is a handsome fitted traveling case, exactly matching in leather and outside workmanship the case used by Mr. Smith. Some time before Mr. Smith was introduced to the former Miss Hippey, he purchased the pair of cases in Europe, planning to save the case equipped with feminine fittings to present to the girl he chose for his bride.

Miss Gertrude Murray Plans New Career.

Miss Gertrude Murray, lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Murray, of 1735 Flagler avenue, has entered the School of Occupational Therapy, at Boston, Mass., for the winter, with the anticipation of embarking upon a broad and interesting career. Miss Murray attended De Pauw University at Greencastle, Ind., last year, following her graduation from Oglethorpe, where she received a Bachelor of Science degree.

The training into which Miss Murray has entered leads into a vital new profession which is growing rapidly under the encouragement and approval of the medical profession. The term, Occupational Therapy, designates much more than craft work, by which the profession is generally known. It means the selection and scientific application of some activity, mental or physical, especially adapted to each patient, which will enable him gradually to regain an interest and usefulness in life. The inspiration of the work and the opportunity for such vast changes in those who suffer afflictions makes Miss Murray's chosen profession an absorbing life work.

Miss Jean Burnett and Mr. Cobb Will Wed at November Ceremony

MISS JEAN BURNETT.

Carrying interest to a wide circle of friends is the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Brenard Burnett of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jean Burnett, to Gilbert Lamar Cobb. The marriage will take place during the early part of November.

Miss Burnett received her education in Atlanta schools, specializing in journalism at the Georgia Tech evening school, where she was a member of the Hilarian and Commerce Clubs. She is the sister of Mrs. H. O. Rary, Miss Ruby Burnett, Miss Golda Burnett, T. L. Burnett and Ben Burnett Jr.

Mr. Cobb is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lamar Cobb, of Atlanta, and is a representative of prominent southern families. He is the brother of Miss Catherine Cobb, Miss Lucy Cobb, Marion Cobb and John Cobb. The future bridegroom graduated from Tech High school and later attended Georgia Tech school of commerce where he was a member of the Delta Sigma Pi fraternity. He is connected with the Atlanta office of Commercial Union Assurance Company.

Charming Apartment Awaits Newlyweds.

When Mr. and Mrs. Donald Anslem Schettig return from their wedding trip to their future home in Ebensburg, Pa., they will find awaiting them a charming apartment completely furnished. Expressing the affection of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose M. Schittig, the handsome furniture, draperies and household effects were wedding gifts to the young couple, whose marriage was solemnized on Saturday, October 21, at the Sacred Heart church. Mrs. Schettig was formerly Miss Frances Elizabeth McCarty, daughter of Mrs. Timothy James McCarty, of Atlanta.

The selection of the furniture was made by the bridegroom's parents, with especial thought to the colors preferred by the lovely bride. The furnishings for the apartment has been kept secret from the newly-wedded pair, and while the bride gleaned that the living room reflects her color choice of mulberry, gold and green, and the boudoir is carried out in blue and rose color tones, she does not know the type of furniture or the plan of the rooms. Upon her arrival, she will discover the rooms adorned and arranged by the loving plans of her new parents.

Adding to the appointments will be a number of wedding gifts presented to Mr. and Mrs. Schettig by admiring friends and relatives. Silver in the chaste Minuet pattern will grace the table, and an antique silver tray, circled by a grape design and mounted on claw feet, will adorn the buffet. The tray was presented to Mrs. Schettig's parents upon their wedding day 37 years ago.

Clothed in especial significance was the wedding date, for the bride's mother, the former Miss Sarah Frances Harris, of Whitesburg, Ga., plighted her troth to Mr. McCarty on October 21 at a home ceremony solemnized in Banning, Ga., the summer home of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Harris, maternal grandparents of the bride. When the bridegroom's parents were wed at a ceremony solemnized in the east, they selected October as the date of their marriage when they trod the orange blossom trail.

Important Newcomers Arrive in Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Barringer are among the important newcomers to Atlanta and are residing on Wycliff road. Mrs. Barringer is a winsome and attractive person, the possessor of titian hair and a slender, graceful figure. She is the former Miss Isabel Wakefield, of Dallas, Texas, and was presented to society in Dallas several years ago. She attended Ogontz school, near Philadelphia, and has had the cultural advantage of travel in the United States and abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Barringer recently returned from the Orient, having lived for several years in Hongkong, China. He is a son of Dr. Paul Brandon Barringer, of Charlottsville, Va. who is the retired chairman of the faculty of the University of Virginia, and was head of the University Medical School for 20 years. After graduating from the University of Virginia, Mr. Barringer spent several years with the American-Russian relief committee in Russia, and later on he was an attache in Java.

After Mr. Barringer's service in Russia and Java, he returned to New York city, where he and lovely Mrs. Barringer were married, and they departed shortly afterward for Hongkong, where Mr. Barringer was United States commercial attache for two years. They arrived here about two weeks ago, began housekeeping on Wyckliff road, and are numbered among the most interesting acquisitions to the social life of Atlanta.

Newcomers Arrive Here For Residence.

Numbered among the attractive newcomers who will add interest to social affairs are Mr. and Mrs. C. Frank Batton, of New Orleans, who arrived three weeks ago to establish residence. They have leased an attractive home on Brookhaven drive, and Mr. Batton and his lovely wife will prove assets to the younger married set of society.

Mrs. Batton, who possesses a winsome personality is a representative of aristocratic forebears for her paternal grandfather was the late General Jacob Sharp, U. C. V. of Mississippi, and her grandmother was the late Mrs. Sallie Harris Sharp. Her father is Captain Hunter Sharp, of Columbus, Miss., and her mother was the late Mrs. Virginia Jones Sharp.

Residing with Mr. and Mrs. Batton is their sister, Mrs. Anne Green Henry, who is a delightful member of the household and who holds an especial place in the affections of her small niece and namesake, Virginia Anne Batton, the young daughter of the family. Virginia Anne, who has recently passed the kindergarten age and been promoted to the dignity of the graded school age, is a charming child and claims a large share of her mother's beauty.

"FAT CAN BE REDUCED!"
This Way is Known to Reduce Without the Aid of Excess Dieting
"TOO much food turning to excess fat," is really a very common condition. Doctors call it "low metabolism." And they prescribe to correct it just as they might prescribe for headache.
You do not have to starve to reduce now. You need not resort to commercial fads, strange foods, unknown medicines.
What your doctor prescribes does reduce fat. It is the way proved for years by science. And this way is the basis of Marmola tablets.
Do not struggle to reduce the hard way. Marmola, the right way, is so delightfully effective if your system turns too much food into excess abnormal fat. And so effective that people have bought 20 million boxes. So effective that it is now demanded in 21 foreign countries. Why shouldn't you try Marmola? You'll find it at any good drug store.

Harry Annoys Mitzi; Jack Attends To Him

Sunday, October 22, 1933

Trade Mark Registration Applied For.

1. MITZI is posing for a group of ads being illustrated by Jack, but, unused to the long periods of maintaining an immovable position, has become tired, and he allows her to rest her arm on an old crutch.

2. CRASH! The door is violently kicked open. In bursts Harry Lorber. Jack appears to be calm, but his voice betrays the anger he finds almost impossible to control. "Now listen, Lorber, Mitzi is working for me and I'll have to ask you to leave immediately." "Look here, Harry, you'll have to stop following me into the studios—you're ruining my standing as a model—you have no earthly reason to do this," testily adds Mitzi. Harry sneers and slaps the wet drawing with his gloves, smearing it irretrievably. Jack rushes at him, both fists beating a well-timed rhythm on Lorber's face and chest. Chairs, spotlights and easels are overturned in the furious rough-and-tumble battle that ensues.

3. LORBER is quickly floored. "I always thought you artists were a lot of 'orchids,'" he mumbles wistfully while rubbing an aching jaw. "No, I still find time to brush up on my boxing," replies Jack, "and I hope I've been emphatic about changing your mind."

No Nice Girl Is Really Nice

(IF SHE IS ALSO PRACTICAL)

by Alice-Leone Moats
Author of "No Nice Girl Swears"

With Drawings by James Hammon.

"It may be more difficult to be a nice girl today, but it is certainly more fun than it once was."

ASIDE from the fact that nowadays the expression "she is a nice girl" is said only in a tolerant tone, is an undeniable fact that there are many occasions when it is possible to exaggerate niceness. There are many things that a perfecly nice girl does that would once have been considered anything but nice; it is just a case of keeping up with the times and also of realizing that in this hurried age it is every woman for herself, since the devil is pretty sure to take the hindmost.

In a way, our grandmothers had an easier time of it because all the rules conduct were quite set. Black was black and white was white and it was pretty easy to tell them apart, but our main problem consists in telling light gray from a darker shade. For instance, it is all very well to say that no nice girl hedges, and yet, if you stop to think it out you find that the girl who has not hedged has usually ended up badly. Maybe is a good word. It may be noble to keep a promise, and probably a fine character never gives her word unless she means to keep it, but follow those tactics with men and you can take our word for it that it won't be long before you either have no beaux or are no longer a nice girl.

TRUTHFULNESS is another quality that can be carried too far.

Manners demand that one tell a few social lies while common sense makes it imperative never to tell on yourself. And if you wish to acquire the reputation of being amusing you certainly won't let truth stand in your way when you are trying to tell a good story.

One of the first things we learn is that modesty is a great virtue. Any praise is supposed to come as a surprise; "Oh that's nothing," you are expected to say, drooping surprised eyelashes on a blushing cheek. The theory is that if you have the proper modesty you never admit that it's possible for you to accomplish something as well as anyone else could. At that rate modesty practically becomes inferiority. No matter how good-looking you are supposed to be or even have the reputation of being, you invariably refer to yourself as plain if you have the humble spirit. And it is all nonsense.

Of course, a conceited person or one who lets success go to her head becomes a crashing bore, but any girl who wants to make a success in a business or social way must set a high value on herself. If you go around telling the world that you are not really very good at whatever you are doing, you will end up by being believed. Unless you take the attitude that you know what you are doing and that you are good at it, no one else will have any faith in you.

IT IS the same with your appearance—if you keep pointing out that your nose turns up too much or that your mouth is too big, your friends can only be polite enough to take your word for it. Every time your name comes up someone is bound to chime in with "But she has such an ugly nose." On the other hand if you tell people often enough that you are good-looking, not so much with words as by your attitude and by the way you hold yourself, they will eventually come to believe it.

The woman who doesn't set a very high value herself is also the one who too often finds herself losing out on her emotional relationships. It is a bromide that men like only the girls who are hard to get.

..It is only by assuming that you are attractive, that a devoted beau is nothing new to you and that you consider yourself worth making an effort for, that you can convey the idea that it is not going to be easy to get very far with you. Almost any man seems to prefer the idea of having to make little effort: he had far rather be able to call a girl up at the last moment and get her to dine with him, to see her when he happened to be in the mood and to save money on such things as flowers and theare tickets, and yet all these advantages are forgotten when he is attracted to a girl who take the attitude that she is worth taking very seriously or not at all.

"In this hurried age it is every woman for herself."

MILDNESS and sweetness are two other qualities that are supposed to be attributes of a nice girl and yet can be overdone. In these times you only get the reputation of being a hypocrite when you are all sweetness and light. Elsie Dinsmore has gone out of fashion. It may not be wise to appear too clever, but even the dumbest blonde is expected to have some character. It is quite impossible to like everyone, so why try to get away with the "We are all brothers and sisters under the skin" line?

There is nothing duller or more annoying than the type who insists upon finding hidden virtues in the most disagreeable people and persists in playing the glad game when everything has gone so wrong that there is obviously no course to take but that of facing it, rather than trying to persuade oneself that everything is for the best.

It is taken for granted that appearances are deceptive. You don't really have to look like a good girl to be taken for one. Worldly wisdom is the order of the day and just because you look worldly it won't be taken for granted that at heart you are not a little home-body full of kindness and goodness.

"There are even people now who think it is wrong for a good woman to puff on a cigarette or touch her unsullied lips to the rim of a cocktail glass."

It may not be really nice to look like what was once known as a painted jezebel, and yet there are plenty of nice girl who put their faith in a lipstick. If you were to rule off all the girls who go in for backless evening dresses and scanty bathing suits your list of nice girls would be very short and probably made up entirely of elderly spinsters who depend upon flanelettes to keep them warm. So today's rule is, be nice if you must—but don't look it.

SMOKING and drinking were once activities that were completely out as far as nice girls were concerned. There are even people now who think it is wrong for a good woman to puff on a cigarette or touch her unsullied lips to the rim of a cocktail glass; in fact not long ago we were quite solemnly informed that the contestants in a beauty pageant aren't allowed to smoke because that would be considered bad for their reputation! And yet the ordinary person whose instincts of right and wrong are so sure that he doesn't bother with ridiculous quibbling is apt to be a little bored when some girl primly volunteers the information that she neither smokes nor drinks with the idea of showing just how nice she is. If you don't happen to like cigarettes or Bacardis keep it to yourself, because no one else really cares.

IT MAY be more difficult to be a nice girl today but it is certainly more fun than it once was. Things have changed to the point that you say what you think and you not only face the facts of life but you also discuss them. You tell a lie when it is useful; you let hedging take the place of the old chaperon; you drink as much as you like if you can hold your liquor and you are practical enough to realize that it is wisdom not innocence that keeps you out of trouble.

But what it all comes down to is that the really nice girl is the one who is quite natural.

Highlights of Broadway

From the Circle to the Square

by JACK LAIT

THE passing of Sime Silverman, founder of Variety, the theatrical sheet which started from scratch and became a marked manifestation in the national life; which, though in an intensely specialized field, influenced the language as no other single medium ever had—brought on eulogies, lengthy obituary notices, editorials and Page 1 news.

None of the reporters and commentators could pass up the Variety slang, the most famous and individual lingo ever associated with one institution, and which not only reflected the talk of Broadway, backstage, the movie studios, the nightclubs, burlesque, vaudeville and "the road," but which seeped largely into the everyday speech of millions far afield from these.

As one who was long Sime's intimate friend and associate and a member of the Variety family for 16 years, I feel qualified to discuss a substantial portion of the Broadwayese; with much of it you may be familiar, but perhaps some comments on the origin of the phrases may be illuminating.

MUGG—a wise chump, meaning one who knows better but who is soft. (Variety staff boys always referred to themselves as muggs, and to Sime as King of the Muggs.)

Stooge—an assistant or helper, such as a feeder to a comedian; a perversion of "student." A two-people act was a team, the comedian was a comic, the well-dressed stooge was the straight. A verbal laugh was a gag. Shnozzle for nose was strictly a Variety invention.

Burlesque was burleycue, after mispronunciation of the French word adopted into the trade; Scram was born in Variety, meaning, of course, to get out, and was an exclamation, a verb, or even a noun. (Nouns and verbs were usually freely interchangeable in Variety expression.)

Nerts was also a typical Sime which became broadly used; it meant just the same as baloney, and was employed to dismiss anything as meaningless, non est or untenable.

To lay an egg was to score a failure or flop. Sime's most famous headline, after the crash of '29 was B'WAY LAYS AN EGG.

Anything easy was a push-over. To leave a show or a picture was to walk and a show that closed did a fold (from the tent-troupe days when folding of the tents meant departure). Anyone who was through with something or someone was washed up—from the dressingroom routine, the performer washing off his makeup to leave the theatre.

An out-of-town tryout was on the dog, a journey to an engagement or date was a jump, and stopping in between start and destination was breaking the jump. A grand, meaning $1,000, is an old Variety term, and of late has been contracted to a G. Vaudeville contracts were time, and time was divided according to grade of circuits as big time, small time and family time. The very cheapest vaudeville time was called the coffee-and-cake time, since that was about what the actors got out of it, and time around the metropolitan New York zone was the subway time.

Living entertainment in movie houses was called flesh shows as distinct from film or canned shows. A successful show or act was a wow, it clicked; if it was great it was a riot and superlative it was a panic. If fair it was N.S.G.—"not so good." If well received it did oke (O.K.) and if bad, it was lousy—that word the land owes to Variety, and what it lacks in refinement it certainly makes up in finality.

Sime popularized dame for girl, frau for wife, and, describing feminine charmers, contributed pip, beaut, looker, darb and (a) honey. To be angry was to burn, to make one angry was to steam him up, to play a practical joke on one was to rib him.

A tramp was a bozo, taking its origin from Bozo Snyder, most famous of the burlesque comedians of that type. Anything flat or undesirable was blah. Anyone haughty or arrogant was upstage (from the custom of selfish actors to stand in front of minor ones so as to be more conspicuous, thus upstaging the less important), also ritz, which, taken from the hotels of that name, was an old Variety adjective, verb and adverb.

A layman who financed a show was an angel and if he was rich he was a moneyman and if he wasn't he was a shoestringer—the latter following a legend about a shoestring peddler long ago who ran his little capital into a theatrical fortune.

Acrobats, contortionists and other specialty performers of that class were dumb acts, a dancer was a hoofer; a player of roles other than in the tuxedo or gown of direct vaudeville entertainment was in character; a romantic young leading-man was a juve (juvenile), girl ditto was an ingenue, a villain was a heavy; any two girls singing and dancing together were a sister-act.

An act before the main curtain or oleo (meaning oil, which was the medium in which those curtains or drops were painted in the old days when they carried advertising) was in one (occupied stage space only back to the first set of sidewings) and the portion of the stage protruding before the curtain was the apron.

An aged joke was a Joe Miller, after the author of a paper-covered pamphlet compiling some of the surefire old wheezes. A pass was an Annie Oakley—free tickets, usually punched so thoroughly that they look as though they had been shot full of holes by the immortal rifle-markswoman. Any crooked apparatus was gimmicked (a carnival term). To abandon a show was taking a runout powder. An old man was an A.K. (contraction of a Yiddish intimate appelation). A kibitzer (original Variety slang) also from the Yiddish, meant one who looks on, interferes with suggestions, but refuses to risk any investment on his judgment.

To be penciled in meant to be tentatively but not finally hired or accepted; this originated on the sheets of the vaudeville bookers, when they organized shows or bills for the many houses, spotting (placing) turns subject to readjustment for any cause. This phrase went far beyond the vaudeville schedule.

Sime had some personal idiosyncracies that all his friends knew.

He never wore a vest, never wore any but a bow tie; he carried a little pad and as he went along the Big Street he made notes with an inch-long pencil and tore each sheet off and put it in a coat pocket he reserved for that alone. When he got to his desk he usually had dozens of these slips and would sit down and write the stories—often there was one word on a sheet and the story it noted ran 2,000 words.

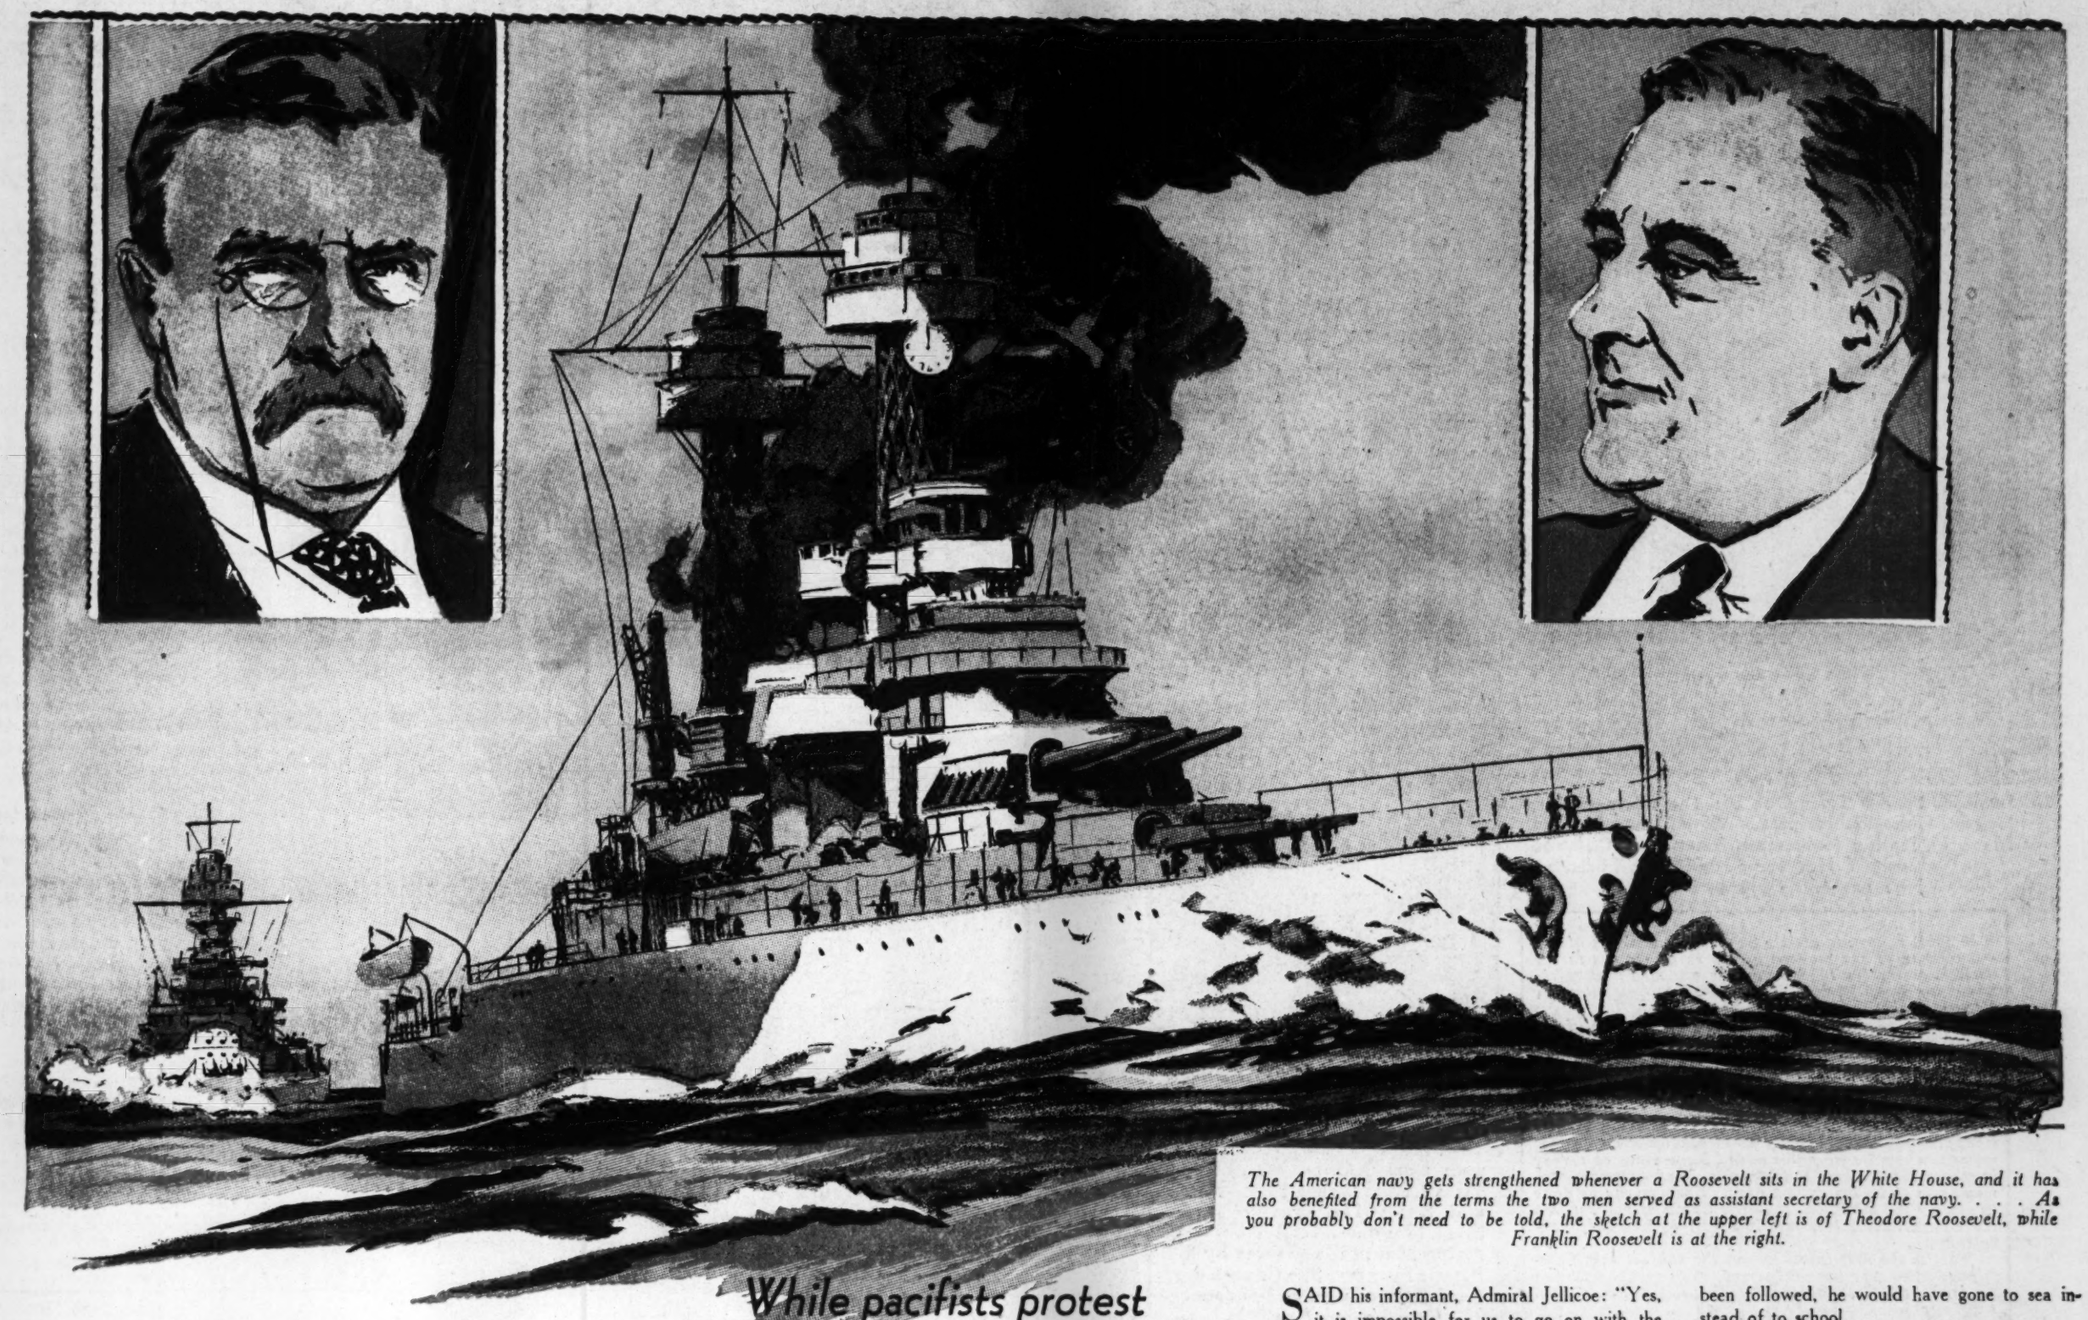

He never permitted anyone to pay a restaurant check if he were in the party—reporter, actor, pensioner or millionaire.

He always had several cars, usually big and noisy ones, which he bought second-hand as they took his fancy. If a friend he liked admired one of them he insisted on giving it to him. He gave me two—a Packard limousine and a Simplex roadster. The first time, I didn't know his penchant for giving away expensive cars; the second time, I forgot—after that I always said his cars were terrible.

THE NAVY-BUILDING ROOSEVELTS

The American navy gets strengthened whenever a Roosevelt sits in the White House, and it has also benefited from the terms the two men served as assistant secretary of the navy. . . . As you probably don't need to be told, the sketch at the upper left is of Theodore Roosevelt, while Franklin Roosevelt is at the right.

By Henry W. Lawrence

Professor History and Political Science, Connecticut College.

While pacifists protest and militarists rejoice, the president, like the cousin who preceded him in office, calls for more ships

IN 1905, Theodore Roosevelt boasted of his achievements in building up the United States navy.

"When I became president three years ago I made up my mind that I should try for a fleet with a minimum strength of 40 armorclads," he wrote; "and though the difficulty of getting what I wished has increased from year to year, I have now reached my mark and we have built or provided for 28 battleships and 12 armored cruisers. This navy puts us a good second to France and about on a par with Germany; and ahead of any other power in point of material, except, of course, England."

Such contentment with a third or fourth-rank American navy seems hardly Rooseveltian today, but Theodore had fought hard for this much.

The fight began in earnest when he first became officially connected with the navy—as assistant secretary, nominally, though his chief, John D. Long, sometimes felt a bit uncertain as to which of them was really in charge. He scarcely dared leave his office for a day, lest his irrepressible young assistant should seek to give the navy some exercise by starting a war.

About a week after the battleship Maine was blown up in Havana harbor, Secretary Long, worn out by the tumult of preparation, did risk taking an afternoon off to get a little rest. As acting secretary, even for a few hours, Roosevelt found a chance to release many of his suppressed desires.

LONG'S diary relates that "the very de il had seemed to possess" his young assistant.

"I find that Roosevelt, in his precipitate way, has come very near causing more of an explosion than happened to the Maine," he wrote. "Having authority for that time as acting secretary, he immediately began to launch peremptory orders; distributing ships, ordering ammunition, which there is no means to move, to places where there is no means to store it. . . . Sending messages to Congress for immediate legislation authorizing the enlistment of an unlimited number of seamen. . . . He has gone at things like a bull in a china shop."

It was like Theodore to insist on having bully time, even in a china shop. Moreover, he had long been dead set on having some kind of a war—for the good of the nation's health. In the summer of 1897 he had spoken his mind on the subject in an address before the Naval War College at Newport, assuring his hearers that there was no danger "of an overdevelopment of warlike spirit."

"The danger," said he, "is of precisely the opposite character. . . . No triumph of peace is quite so great as the supreme triumphs of war. The courage of the soldier, the courage of the statesman who has to meet storms which can be quelled only by soldierly virtues—this stands higher than any quality called out merely in time of peace." Accordingly he pleaded for a strong navy, "not merely for defense."

A rare photograph showing Franklin D. Roosevelt at his desk as assistant secretary of the navy during the World War.

A few years before this, when President Cleveland twisted the British lion's tail in the Venezuelan boundary dispute, T. R. was eager for a war with Great Britain.

"American cities may possibly be bombarded," he said, "but no ransom will be paid for them. It is infinitely better to see the cities laid level than to see a dollar paid to any foe to buy their safety. Moreover, a great many of our friends seem to forget we will settle the Venezuelan question in Canada. . . . Canada would surely be conquered, and once wrested from England it would never be restored."

"This country needs a war," he wrote to Henry Cabot Lodge at that time; but, alas, he saw that "the bankers, brokers, and anglomaniacs generally" were in favor of "peace at any price."

Theodore Roosevelt continued to be assistant secretary of the navy for only a little more than a year. Then he resigned that office, to lead his Rough Riders into the thick of the fighting—an act which everybody's foresight condemned severely at that time, and everybody's hindsight now approves.

Roosevelt's chief, Secretary Long, later admitted: "Roosevelt was right. . . . His going into the army led straight to the presidency."

Franklin Delano Roosevelt served as assistant secretary of the navy for seven years. When the United States entered the World War, he felt the urge to resign and get into the thick of the fighting, but the need for his skilled service in managing the navy he had so largely recreated kept him on the old and less spectacular job of assistant secretary.

PERSONAL adventures toward the presidency were decidedly not permissible at the moment when the Allies seemed about to lose the war through lack of naval strength enough to curb the German submarine campaign. Roosevelt was one of the few who knew the terrifying situation.

Admiral Sims had been sent over to get the lowdown on the submarine sinkings, and the ghastly figures almost sank him.

"It is expressing it mildly to say that I was surprised by this disclosure," he wrote. "I was fairly astounded, for I had never imagined anything so terrible."

SAID his informant, Admiral Jellicoe: "Yes, it is impossible for us to go on with the war if losses like this continue."

"Then it looks as though the Germans were winning the war," remarked Admiral Sims.

"They will win," replied Admiral Jellicoe, "unless we can stop these losses—and stop them soon."

"Is there no solution for the problem?" inquired Sims.

"Absolutely none that we can see now," was Jellicoe's answer.

The solution proved, in part, to be submarine chasers, more and more of them, to convoy the menaced ships; and submarine chasers were just what Roosevelt had been urging on the American navy.

AN eminent American historian, writing in 1921, before it was so common to sing the praises of F. D. R., has this to say about his services to our navy: "Largely owing to the efforts of the assistant secretary, Franklin D. Roosevelt, the months immediately preceding the declaration of war witnessed strenuous preparations to render aid to the Allies in case the United States should participate."

Following is a fuller account, and a more partisanly friendly one, of this second Roosevelt's career in building up the American navy.

"Six weeks after his thirty-first birthday, Roosevelt took the oath of office, and from 1913 on he had under his immediate direction the civilian personnel, the navy yards and docks, and the purchasing of supplies. He inaugurated every sort of reform, from forcing the 'middies' to learn to swim to breaking the organized system by which steel and other manufacturers sold materials to the navy—at their own price.

"He turned the navy yards from white elephants into busy manufacturing plants within a few years, saving the country many million dollars. And when war broke out, it was found that the navy had collected data on more than 18,000 industrial plants, had contracts for a year's supplies, and had actually placed orders for guns, ammunition, and other equipment.

"IT was Roosevelt who suggested the first government war labor board, who commandeered materials from private concerns, and who fought constantly to eliminate deadwood and to adopt such imaginative and effective war measures as the North Sea barrage—made possible by an invention he sponsored—and the building of American submarine chasers.

"He appealed to the uniformed force by his lack of official aloofness and for the spirit shown by such acts as his prompt descent in a submarine immediately after one had sunk on the Pacific coast with all hands on board."

If Franklin Roosevelt's boyhood wishes had been followed, he would have gone to sea instead of to school.

"He has been a naval enthusiast from childhood up," wrote one of his opponents in the presidential campaign. "His collection of prints of naval battles and historic warships is, or was, one of the best extant. He was as happy as his distinguished fifth cousin, Theodore Roosevelt, when he became assistant secretary of the navy.

"In the days leading up to the war, and at the beginning of the war, Franklin Roosevelt was among the earliest to call for a fleet second only to that of England, addressing Bible classes, patriotic societies, and the National Civic Federation in behalf of his program.

"IN Washington, before the House and Senate Committees on Naval Affairs, he demanded that the government adopt 'a great building program' and declared that 'not one dollar, not one ship, not one man' could be deducted from the building program he urged. He was ready for a competition of armaments with Germany or England.

"If he gets in," this hostile critic concluded, "and the opportunity arises, he will not only be for a bigger navy than we have had, in my judgment, but he will be thoroughly imperialistic if there is any trouble in the Caribbean."

Now he is in, and he has just approved the expenditure during the next three years of nearly a quarter of a billion dollars "to create, maintain and operate a navy second to none."

Nobody claims that this new building will put our navy beyond the limitations agreed upon in the Washington Conference of 1921-1922 or the London Conference of 1930; but many challenge it on other grounds. They say it almost nullifies our efforts toward world disarmament; spreading alarm and provocation at a most inopportune moment.

THEY urge that the naval authorities of both Great Britain and Japan are even more scared than we are about their insufficient preparedness.

In defense of our $238,000,000 naval construction program, it is earnestly urged on the other hand that our interests, defensive, commercial, and imperial, need these new ships; that we have no aggressive intentions; and that more than 85 per cent of the money will be paid for labor, thus making a big dent in the unemployment crisis.

An Englishman (not connected with the British navy) puts it this way:

"So far as disarmament is concerned, the United States has shown herself willing to go as far as any other power; her new naval building program is only apparently a contradiction of this policy, since it is being undertaken purely for the sake of the employment involved, and will be kept well within treaty limits."

VANISHED TYPES

The Apaches, Old Style, as Impersonated by Donald Kerr and Gretchen Eastman in a Revue. Such Persons No Longer Infest the Slums of Paris, Declares Police Commissioner Ennery, of the Lurid Montmartre District.

IN THE following article an amazing analysis of the menace of the modern gigolo as he thrives in the capitals of Europe is given by the one man best calculated to grasp the situation, Police Commissioner Ennery of the Montmartre district, Paris.

In the Commissioner's view, the paid escort of today is an even greater menace to society than the old time apache used to be. The latter, declares Ennery, has become a vaudeville character, with his bell-shaped trousers and his scarf knotted about his neck. Actually he no longer exists.

On the other hand, the gigolo is a thriving institution, preying unrestrainedly on rich, silly and romantic women, whom he wheedles out of large sums of money in return for his leers and caresses. And American women seem to be his easiest prey. Nothing can be done to rectify the situation, says the Commissioner, unless the victims themselves rise in revolt—which they very seldom do.

This is the first interview on the subject that Commissioner Ennery has authorized. The reader will find his remarks replete with a grimly impressive fascination.

PARIS.

SCARCELY a stone's throw from the Rue Pigalle, with its colorful, noisy cafes and its lighthearted inhabitants, stands a quite different building. Sombre, forbidding-looking, it seems to glower down on its frivolous neighbors as if in reproof.

This is police headquarters for the Montmartre district, where most of the gayety and much of the crime of the metropolis have their inception.

I made my way through its quiet corridors with a certain sense of elation for I had an appointment with Monsieur Ennery, the chief commissioner. I found him to be a tall, handsome man with distinguished manners and graying hair. There is a trace of weariness around the eyes; his is an arduous job.

"Tell me, Monsieur," I asked pointblank. "What do you consider the outstanding factor in the criminal life of Paris today?"

His reply came like a pistol shot. "There is one type of man, though I hardly prefer to dignify him with that name"—his words were sharp, icy—"who is France's subtlest menace: the soft-spoken, sleek, insinuating gigolo."

This was indeed a remarkable statement. I pressed M. Ennery for an amplification. It was not long in forthcoming.

"You must realize the difficulties we of the police face in combating these creatures. In the old days, ah, it was different. Then we had at least an even chance against the most dreaded of our evildoers, the apache. Though his attitude toward organized society was boldly defiant, he at least had the remnants of a decent feeling toward women.

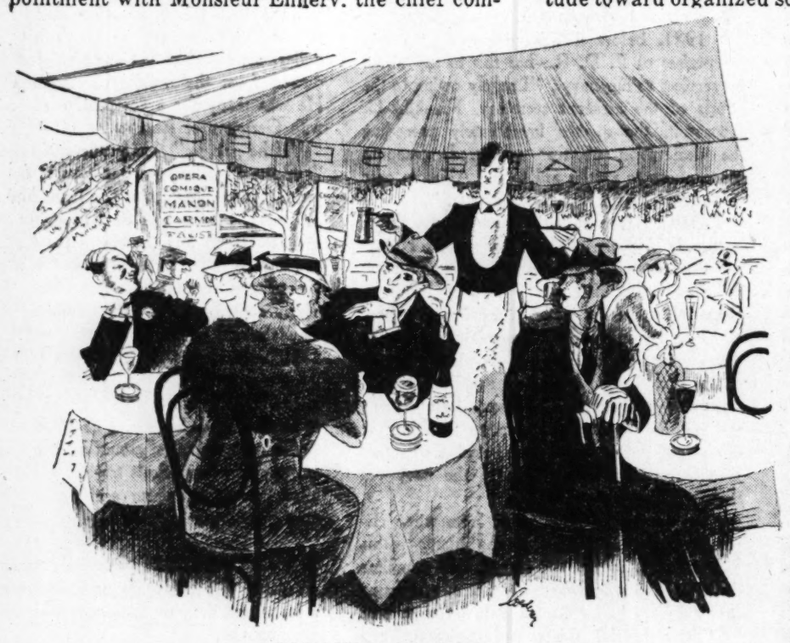

"Though he lived off the pitiful earnings of these unfortunates, though he might on provocation abuse them, in a pinch he would protect them, even, sometimes, at the risk of his life. But the gigolo—he has not a shred of this rough chivalry."

As the Commissioner talked, I could not help reflecting on certain recent flamboyant cases in which the paid escort, or, as he prefers to be known, "dancing partner," had figured locally.

Perhaps the most spectacular instance was that of a Swiss youth, Pierre Richon. This fellow had exercised his wiles upon the wife of a prominent business man and the mother of two children. (Her anonymity was protected in subsequent legal proceedings.)

The infatuated woman had showered large sums on the unworthy object of her affections. This the thrifty Swiss had been putting aside for the proverbial rainy day.

But he was ordered to court and told to reimburse the husband in the sum of $10,000 as damages for the havoc he created. He also was sentenced to five years in prison and then to be deported. This, the Commissioner and I agreed, was one of the stiffest punishments ever meted out in a gigolo case.

PICK-UP A LA MODE

ACROSS THE CHANNEL

Mrs. Dolores Barney, in Whose Fashionable London Flat Thos. Stephen (Right) Was Shot to Death. At Her Trial for Murder—She Was Acquitted—She Admitted Having Supported Him and Being Jealous of Another Woman.

M. Ennery and I discussed other cases in which rich, middle-aged women had become involved with youths none too affluent. One of the most curious concerned a woman named Marie-Louise Baele, who had lived for years under the protection of Rutger Le Roy, secretary to the late W. K. Vanderbilt, at Le Roy's villa at Monaco.

On his death, Le Roy willed Marie a fortune of $2,000,000. The elderly heiress, who had taken up with a South American professional dancer and escort, determined to have a final gay fling. It is a piece of tragic irony that as a result of wild parties her health became impaired. She had a nervous breakdown and died.

SINCE she left her whole estate to the South American, it's not surprising that a hue and cry of litigation rose over its disposal. Certain persons claiming to be kin of the dead woman contested the boy's right to the money. And to make things even more complex, another claimant presented himself, one Henry Le Roy Lewis, a British manufacturer, who swore he was a nephew of the late Le Roy and demanded a slice of the millions. None of these claims had been adjudicated as I write.

The extent to which a rich old woman will sometimes go to insure the sole proprietorship of her protege is ludicrous. The Commissioner agreed that the case of Madame de La C— was on the verge of farce. This wealthy dame was so apprehensive that she hired private detectives to watch over this youth's movements.

"But gigolos are an elusive sort," was M. Ennery's comment, "with the slipperiness of eels. And they are adept at 'crashing' exclusive functions. It is in the better drawing rooms that they begin to function at their best.

"As the gigolo is often of good birth and breeding, detection is almost impossible. He has, too, that manner so irresistible to the woman past forty. The first thing you know he has attached himself to some impressionable matron. Voila! The damage is done."

But there is yet another side to the problem which becomes apparent when the woman and the youth are of equal social status. I will cite two typical cases that aroused a storm of comment when they recently came to public attention.

There were the matrimonial adventures of the former May Hager of Hoboken, who married Count Manetti Magnani, a handsome and eccentric Italian noble. The Countess sued Magnani, charging that he had extorted from her $10,000 by intimidating her with a stiletto.

Later she succeeded in stopping payment on the check, but in a rage of retaliation her husband in some fashion tied up her bank account. It seems almost unnecessary to add that divorce followed.

Princess Aimee Crocker Ashe Gillig Gouraud Mishkinoff Galatzine, Who Has Had 5 Husbands—Most of Them Young—and Plenty of Grief. (At Left) Her Most Recent Mate, Prince Galatzine, Shown Romantically Playing His Guitar to Her.

An interesting point about the gigolo, 1933 model, says M. Ennery, is that between 80 and 90 per cent of them are South Americans, Italians and Spaniards. "There seems to be some mysterious attraction between some members of the Latin races and their prey," the Commissioner added.

I drew his attention to the fact, however, that Nordics and Slavs are far from spotless in this regard. Consider, for instance, Princess Aimee Crocker Ashe Gillig Gouraud Mishkinoff. Aimee, no longer young, has had five husbands to date.

The latest was the Russian Prince Galatzine, who was about 25 when they were married. The match did not prosper, the Prince suing Aimee for "back wages." Judging from documents produced in court, she had originally engaged him as a social escort at $250 a month and then had become his wife. Of course, there was a divorce.

Sometimes—these statements are based on official data—the gigolo, after a period of affluence, falls upon lean days. Sometimes he thrives indefinitely. Sometimes he "merely fades away." On other occasions he commits suicide.

Not long ago the whole Continent was shaken with the news of the self-inflicted death of Prince Nicholas Karageorgevitch, a cousin of the King of Jugoslavia. The Prince swallowed eight tubes of morphia tablets on the Riviera.

Karageorgevitch, who had commanded a brigade during the war, was exiled to Siberia, but contrived to escape in 1924. Penniless and refused a passport to his native country, he settled down in Paris and soon became notorious as one of the highest paid gigolos in the capital.

Ostensibly he earned his living by dancing in the cabarets, but it was common knowledge that his fee for "socially escorting" women about was a thousand francs.

I HE SULKED
ald Gracie, Prominent armed with the Attenrto Urbino, Romantic later She Accused Him is Guitar, Stealing Her ing the Country.

Incensed at this most unprincely conduct, the court at Belgrade struck his name from the list of Jugoslavic royalty. He proceeded to marry a very rich American woman, Mrs. Dorothy S. Cochrane, but this soon blew up in the divorce court.

Karageorgevitch fell into ways of constant dissipation Strong drink led to drugs and when a second marriage—this time to Laure Savy, a movie actress—proved a failure, he took his life.

Amazing scenes marked the interment at Nice of Prince Karageorgevitch, scenes reminiscent of the funeral of Rudolph Valentino. Crowds of weeping women clustered about the grave and the display of flowers indicated how many hearts had been enthralled by the nobleman.

The common or garden variety of gigolo rarely receives such homage in either life or death. But one thing must be admitted in his favor—he is extremely candid about his methods.

After I left the Commissioner's office I purposely sought out one of these young men whose acquaintance I had made a year ago. This lad, though immaculately dressed and apparently solvent, admitted gloomily that "the pickings" had been extremely sparse of late.

THEN he related an incident that proves how spirited is the feeling of rivalry among the not-so-gilded youth of Paris's half-world. He had been seated in a sidewalk cafe with an elderly patroness of long standing. At a nearby table was another young man whom my friend instantly recognized as of his own type.

The second boy struck up a quiet flirtation with the patroness of my acquaintance, and almost before Gigolo No. 1 realized it the interloper had insinuated himself into the twosome and, at the end of half an hour, had carried the woman off in triumph, leaving her disconsolate ex-protege to settle the bill.

There is, quite often, a sunnier side to the situation of the "social escort," as far as he is concerned. Sometimes he makes a marriage that sticks.

I am thinking of the case of Prince Louis de Bourbon, that effervescent cousin of former King Alfonso of Spain, who while still in his thirties—and looking much younger—made the aged Princess Amadee de Broglie his bride. Nothing, apparently, has happened to mar the serenity of their existence together.

THERE WAS A SHOOTING

Unusual Photo of Mlle. Germaine Le Paven, Young Parisienne, Seen in Court at the Trial of Her Former Sweetheart, Baldassare Moschini (at Left), for Killing His Elderly Patroness, Mrs. Marguerite Middleton. "I can't choose between them!" He Cried, Then Fired at Both.

Before their marriage, however, it was thought that the Prince would marry Mabelle Gilman Corey, one-time famous musical comedy star and divorced wife of the steel magnate. The arrangements fell through when Mrs. Corey, who rather fancied herself a princess, was unable to provide a large enough settlement to meet the approval of the Prince's exacting mama. Amadee de Broglie is very wealthy.

Another amicable arrangement was arrived at by the Countess of Tessancourt, a Parisian society belle of some decades ago, and the dashing Viscount Serge de Lenz. He was her dancing partner and "social escort" for several years.

LATER de Lenz became a modern Raffles, seeming to take particular pleasure in robbing his aristocratic friends' chateaux of their art works. He is now serving a prison sentence.

On the whole, it would appear that the path of the gigolo, while it may be rose-strewn for a time, at long last winds up in disaster. The double tragedy of the lovely French actress, Claude France, and her sweetheart, Pierre Batcheff, will instantly occur to most of us.

When he told her that the affair must cease, Claude shot herself through the heart and perished. Her suicide so preyed upon the now remorseful Pierre that he swallowed a fatal quantity of heroin.

Undoubtedly the most sensational episode in which a gigolo figured was the recent double shooting in a popular restaurant here perpetrated by Baldassare Moschini. The youth was seated at a table with his patroness, Mrs. Marguerite Middleton, an English widow of fifty-five, and her rival for Baldassare's affections, Mlle. Germaine Le Panven, twenty-eight.

The situation among the trio had for some time been tense. Suddenly the gigolo rose, whipped a revolver from his pocket, exclaiming: "I cannot decide between you. I leave it to Providence!" Whereupon he discharged three bullets apiece into the bodies of his sweethearts.

Mrs. Middleton died. Mlle. Panven barely managed to survive the attack. And Baldassare was sentenced to serve fifteen years on Devil's Island.

Says Commissioner Ennery: "There seems to be no way of stopping the impressionable American woman from periodically migrating to Paris. And once she gets here, she can rest assured that she will find plenty of those sleek and greedy young men with false smiles on their lips and fingers itching for loot?

"Banish the gigolo? All very well. But how?"

NEXT WEEK—Thyra Samter Winslow, celebrated short story writer, will take you into 20,000,000 American homes under the New Deal TODAY. Her analysis of the current situation is based on carefully prepared statistics, on hundreds of reports from every section of the country and on her personal investigation of cases that have attracted her attention. This will be the first of a series of such articles by Miss Winslow.

THE HIDDEN CAGE.

(Seck Hawkins and Detective Jeckerson had been trapped in the great cavern of Chang Yo Sen. Jeckerson releases two tiny messenger birds, thus letting So Chow Ming know that he needs help. Su Chow and his men arrive at the cave and capture all of the Chang Yo Sen crowd. When Hawkins and Jeckerson are released, Su Chow tells them there is no such person as Chang Yo Sen, and that they had really been held by Kai Foo, the bandit.)

AND so here I am again, writing in this old book of mine, as I have been doing ever since the other boys made me secretary of our club. The book of the minutes of the meetings, it is supposed to be; and it is. Not only the minutes of the meetings, but the record of every minute of adventure and excitement that we boys of the Fair and Square Club passed through down here on the old river bank. So that they can read over and over again, on dull winter nights when time passes slowly, and there is not much to do—they can read this old book and live over again all the thrills that we knew in the most exciting days.

"That's not the only reason," said Shadow Loomis one day, when we boys were talking about my writing in this old secretary book. "Of course, I'll admit that every boy in this club likes to go through the old book and read over again the things we did down here. But there's one reason for your writing, Hawkins, that perhaps keeps you at it longer than any other, and that is—you like to scribble with a pen."

Yes, I had to admit it. When all other things have been done, and the game is over, I like to sit right down and scribble some lines about it—to live it over again in my own mind as I write it, and later to read it again myself—no matter whether the other boys read it or not. I am different that way.

When we were rescued by Su Chow Ming in the Cave of the High Canopy of Chang Yo Sen, Su Chow told us that his men and Jeckerson's force under the leadership of Lieutenant Phillips had captured every man in the place. At a meeting in Su Chow's quarters in Chintown next day, Jeckerson brought up the subject of identity of prisoners.

"If you captured every man in the place, my dear Su Chow," said Jeckerson, "then you certainly must have found Hu Fong, the youngest of the seven sons of Fong Shu, who promised to be our ally."

"Alas, no! honorable Jeckerson!" exclaimed the genial old Chinaman sadly. "Him we do not find. It is humble opinion of my limited intelligence that he did not tell truth when he say—"

"He did tell the truth, Su Chow!" exclaimed Jeckerson. "And I might add that Hawkins and I both heard Chang Yo Sen say that it was wise they had not trusted the weak scholar son of their enemy—"

"Nobody is Chang Yo Sen, honorable Jeckerson—that name only fancy—"

"Whether you think it is fancy or fact," broke in Jeckerson, "I heard it spoken among the Chang Yo Sen bandits that they had Hu Fong in their midst. If you will please make sure that you have not got that young Chinese gentleman—and he seems to earn the right to the name—if you haven't got the young gentleman among your prisoners, I suggest that you have them looked over once again, to make sure—"

"I have done so already," said Su Chow, smiling. "Your honorable assistant, Lieutenant Phillips, has been dispatched to prison cells to take second look at all Chinese prisoners. Ah, even now someone comes—yes, Ho Nan Sing, enter please!"

Ho Nan Sing, the bodyguard of the old conciliator, opened the door and made a slight bow. "It is honorable Lieutenant Phillips to see honorable Su Chow Ming!"

"Send him in to me at once, Ho Nan," said Su Chow.

Ho Nan Sing retired, closing the door behind him. There was a moment's silence; and then the door opened again, and Lieutenant Phillips strode swiftly up to the big ebony desk behind which Su Chow sat.

"Reporting on last assignment given to me and my men," he said, speaking rapidly, "I regret to say we have been unable to identify any of the prisoners taken as the honorable Hu Fong!"

Later. Jeckerson and I have just returned from another visit to the High Canopy Cavern of Chang Yo Sen (for by that name I shall always remember this particular chamber in the caves around this old river bank). And we have more mystery now to unravel than we had before.

It all happened because Jeckerson was not satisfied about Hu Fong. This young Chinaman had promised to help us. He had braved the anger of his notorious father to scheme to get the lacquer fan, the Tripod of the Chinese Dog, and the Emperor's Sword, the three things of such great value that this whole mystery arose out of them. Jeckerson was certain that Hu Fong had bargained with the forces under the leadership of Chang Yo Sen, or, if Su Chow's theory was correct that there was no such person, then it was under the leadership of Kai Foo, the descendant of the old Chinese sorcerer, Foo Ling Kai. And so as soon as we left Su Chow's place, Jeckerson ordered Lieutenant Phillips to stand by with twenty men, and we went to the cavern again. My big dog, Stormie, went with us.

I rather enjoyed the adventure, even though I had quite an alarming time when last I visited this old under ground palace. This time we had nothing to fear. We both had our electric flashlights, and we threw them on all sides, and up and down, and enjoyed all the beauties of nature's subterranean art. This time we had opportunity to go slowly along the underground corridors and study the formation, the peculiar lines and color, and the beautiful floral-like tinsel growths that took centuries to form, and yet might be blown away by a single breath.

But what difference now! The last time I was in this place it was resounding with the noise of strife and battle between bandits and the agents of law and order. Now—all was silent as a tomb. Every hall deserted, every chamber still as death! Our very breathing brought whispering echoes. So still it was.

Now we were moving down the ramp into the circular pit, upon the yonder wall of which hung, in the round spot of light that my flashlight threw upon it, the High Canopy of Chang Yo Sen.

"And Su Chow Ming insists that there was no such person," Jeckerson suddenly said, as we stood together and looked down at the round frosted glass of the pit floor, which still glowed with a soft light from beneath. "If Kai Foo has enough wit to fashion such a thing, hidden light below the floor of a rocky cave, then I miss my guess."

"How can we get below and find out what makes that light shine through?" I asked.

Ah! you're a better detective than I am if you can do that in a hurry, Seck!" said Jeckerson, with a laugh. "But I'll wager we'll find it out in due time—hello! look how queerly Stormie is acting—listen what was that?"

A low moaning sound, it was. Stormie suddenly darted into the darkness down the ramp. We began to run after him—down the ramp, into the circular pit, and Jeckerson turned sharply to the right—there were a few rocky steps—we clattered down them, our lights pointed upon the floor ahead of us—and we came upon Stormie at last standing before a narrow iron door, much like a huge birdcage—

"Hello, in there!" called out Jeckerson. "Need any help?"

The moaning continued. Jeckerson rattled the iron door and called out again. No answer. Only the moaning sound. Jeckerson tried a bunch of keys in the lock of the iron grating, but none fitted. He cast his eyes upward and then the next moment was climbing the iron bars like a monkey—I heard his feet thud against the stone in the dark as he came down on the other side of the door—he turned swiftly and lifted an inside latch—the door swung open, and I rushed in with Stormie at my heels—

Something bundled and bulky lay over against the wall. My flashlight showed it to be a Chinaman. He was trussed up with rope and looked like a mummy, so completely was the rope coiled about his body. I held the flashlight while Jeckerson took his pocket-knife and quickly cut the ropes. Then the bandage from over his lips—and we held his head up in the light—

"Hu Fong!" cried Jeckerson! "Hu Fong! I knew I'd find you here! They betrayed you—the Kai Foo gang—"

"Thank you," came from the weak lips, as Hu Fong's eyes looked into ours. "I have laid here too long for endurance—I'm so glad you came—"

"Come on, Hawkins," said Jeckerson, quickly. "We've got to get him out of here—into the daylight and the fresh air—he needs it—"

Together we helped him out of that dark and dreary dungeon, but his feet seemed almost unable to hold him. Up the few rocky steps, into the circular pit of the High Canopy, and then a sharp turn to the left to the ascending ramp, that would take us upward and out into the glad sunshine again—when suddenly Stormie gave a loud bark that echoed through the circular cavern—

Turning, we saw a bright light shining from behind the High Canopy! A dark shape, like a black shadow, lay silhoueted against the light. A loud voice was calling from that black shadow in the High Canopy—

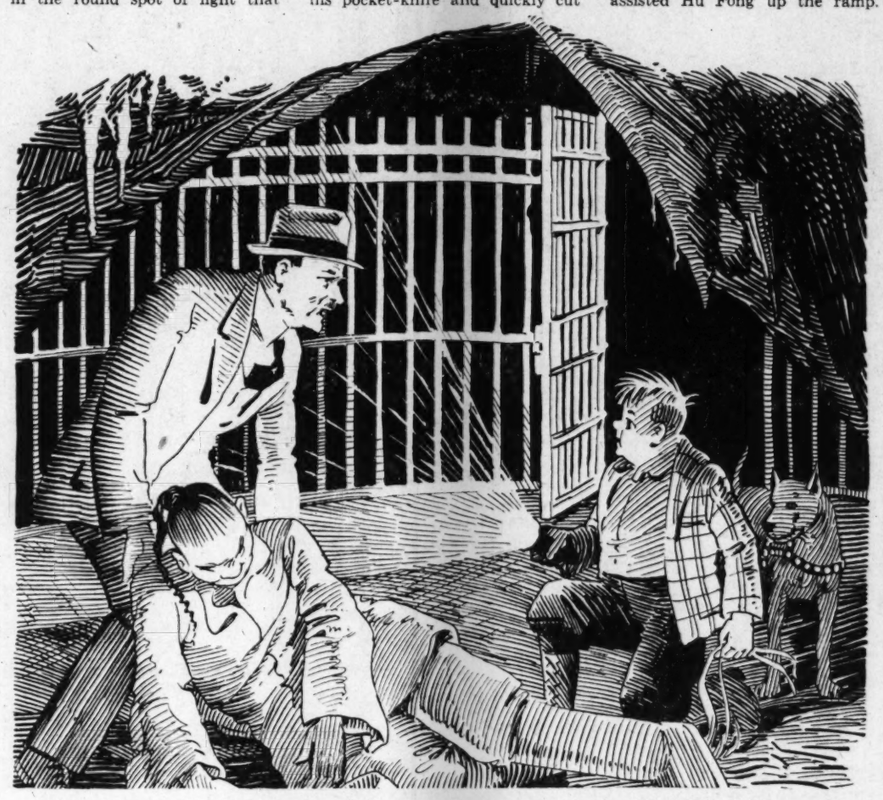

"So! Su Chow Ming of superior intelligence says there is no Chang Yo Sen, eh? Well, honorable Jeckerson, you have much to learn!"

The light suddenly went out. Now we were in complete darkness—even the light below the circular frosted glass in the floor was gone! Stormie was growling ominously.

"Come on, Hawkins!" whispered Jeckerson. "Let's get our young Chinese friend out of here as quickly as possible!"

We turned and went up the ramp. Hu Fong begged us to drop him and save ourselves. But Jeckerson chuckled. "There's nothing to save ourselves from, Hu Fong," he said, cheerily. "Come on, Hawkins, it's fresh air this young fellow needs—"

"But that was Chang Yo Sen, Jeckerson!" I said, as together we assisted Hu Fong up the ramp.

"Come on, Hawkins," said Jeckerson, quickly. "We've got to get him out of here."

"I know that shape of his head, even if it was in shadow and I couldn't see his face—"

"So would I," snapped Jeckerson, and I knew he didn't want to talk more about the matter. "Come on, let's get this fellow out into the daylight as fast as we can, and talk about other things later!"

Which we did.

Dear Pen Pals:

When you sit right down and start thinking about it, school is a very interesting place. I know there are lots of times when we just feel like we'd rather be outside playing, but most always we find school work about as interesting as anything—that is, provided we play fair and square and try hard to learn. The whole world and everything that goes on within and upon it lies before our eyes in our school books, and with the help of our teachers we get clear understanding of it all. Just think how helpless we would be if we could not read or write; think of the wonderful picture the world becomes through the study of our geography; think of the interesting lives of great men who have set examples for all who follow in the history of the world; and think of the wonders that can be done in calculation which few of us would be able to understand unless we studied carefully the wonder book called arithmetic.

Now, besides all this, there are our pleasant relations with our friends and schoolmates and our teachers. There are games, the fun to be had during recess and after study hours; the examinations and the great thrill we feel when we know we have come out of our exams with flying colors. Oh, there's plenty of other things I might mention that would prove conclusively that a day in school is a most interesting time—and the older we grow the more we realize that school days are the best days in the life of a boy or girl.

Now, then, write me a letter and tell me all about your school and your studies. If you don't just know how to begin writing about it, ask your teacher, and I am sure you will get willing assistance in suggestion and guidance. Remember, you might win one of the prizes.

We open our meeting today with a letter from a pen pal in dear old Georgia, telling about an interesting experience:

Dear Seck:

Seck, I'm going to tell you and my pen pals what a wonderful picture of nature I saw one Sunday. My sister, two of our friends and I were on our way to a meeting when one of the girls looked up and saw a falling meteor. She told us to look. We saw a wonderful sky phenomenon. It seemed to be about the size of a tennis ball. It remained sailing across the sky about six seconds, a streak of fire about a foot long separated from the meteor making a beautiful picture. Many others saw the falling meteor. We have learned since it was about 250 feet high.

I want lots of pen pals.

Yours, fair and square,
LEONE WILSON, 13,
Farrar, Ga.

This brings our meeting today to a close, and we adjourn until next week. Make your mind up you are going to take part in our letter writing for the good that you may get out of it—and if you win a prize you'll be glad you did it. But even if you don't, you can show the true spirit by saying, "I'm going to try, try again."

Bye, till next week.

Yours, fair and square,

Seckatary Hawkins

HALLOWEEN.

Halloween is the night of October 31, the eve of All Saints; All Hallows' Day, which is November 1. It is probably a relic of the superstitions of the Middle Ages, as it has nothing to do with the church festival. In England and Scotland Halloween is selected as the time for trying spells and foreseeing future events of love affairs. The superstitious tradition regarding it is that it is the night of all others when supernatural influences prevail; when spirits of the invisible and visible world walk abroad, for on this mystic evening it was believed that the human spirit was enabled, by the aid of supernatural power, to detach itself from the body and wander through the realms of space.

Dear Seck:

I sure do hope Doody will get the Red Castle. It looks like when you are fair and square you always win out.

Vacation is over now. School has started and we are standing test. But I want to tell you about one day when two friends were staying with us. We decided to go to the branch. We put on our bathing suits and started off. As we were going along we passed lots of scarey looking places. We saw a snake on a rock. We passed on and were very careful after that. We played in the branch and had a good time. We went to the spring, too. Then we went home.

Dear Seck:

I like your club very much, but I like your motto best. How did you ever think up such a good one?

Seck, the other night they had a stewardship declamation contest at Lake City and I won. I am going to Florence to speak and I hope I can win there. I am going to start taking music before long.

Yours, fair and square,
FLOREINE RUSH, 8,

Dear Seck:

Last Halloween I spent the night with a girl friend. We dressed up in costumes and put some candles in the pumpkins. Then we blew out the lights and hid behind the bed. Then we called in the dog. When the dog came in you should have seen its face. The dog ran around in the room barking. We sat up late that night telling spooky stories.

Pen pals, please write to me.

Yours, fair and square,

Dear Seck:

As you already know, almost everyone loves to hear of Hallowe'en pranks that have been played. I hope you are one of these, because I am going to tell you one.

Once a friend of mine took a pumpkin and hollowed it out. Then he made a face in it. He happened to have in his possession a small oil lamp with a small chimney. He lighted this and set it inside the pumpkin. He then put the pumpkin by the side of a road where he was sure that two boys he knew would pass by. Sure enough, the two boys came by and when they saw the pumpkin they ran.

Close by in a house a small negro child had been burned to death. These boys were very superstitious. They spread the tale far and wide that this child had come back to life.

Dear Seck:

This summer I went on a trip to Florida. While I was down there we went to Silver Springs. At the spring we went on a glass-bottom boat, and in the spring was the gar hole where there were nothing but gars, some as big as you or I.

There was the Devil's Elbow, which was a very sharp curve. There were a great many turtles and fish.

When we left Daytona Beach there was an old Spanish sugar mill that had not been operated for 150 years and it was not rusty.

AUTUMN.

Autumn days are here again; cooler nights, ripened grain.
Listen to the hoot owls play on the ridge
not far away.
Soon Ole Man Winter, bleak and bare,
will catch you unaware.
The rabbits scamper to their holes to make a den for winter cold.
Indian summer is warm and merry, but shows winter's coming in a hurry.
The red apples hang over the garden wall, this is a very sure sign of fall.
Pretty brown chestnuts hide under the leaves, saying to the children,
"Find me if you please."

Dear Seck:

I am nine years old but I will be ten in twelve more days.

I am going to tell you one of my experiences at the World's Fair. When we were in the dairy building we saw a cow being milked by a milker. She was wiggling her ears, wagging her tail and chewing her cud. I walked off thinking I had seen a real cow, but later mother said it was only an imitation.

Dear Seck,

We have picked over our cotton. It isn't very long till my birthday and I will be 11 years old. Sister and I had two pet chickens and something killed them, and now we have only one bantam hen.

Thursday we hauled the cotton home and hauled some stove wood.

I sure do like your books. I like your motto, "Fair and Square."

Yours, fair and square,

Today's Prize.

October 22, 1933.

Dear Seck:

Last year we had a Halloween program in our school. We sang songs about witches and fairies. Had two plays. Some boys played goblins and one girl fainted. The teacher had a goblin to bring a glass of water for her, and instead of giving her a drink he poured it in her face. Then she looked like a goblin, too. It was all very funny. That night we dressed ourselves like witches and visited the neighbors. They gave us peanuts, pop corn and pumpkin pies.

I read the daily strips every day, and was so glad Doody got the castle.

GARDENING IN THE HOUSE -:- -:- By W. ELBRIDGE FREEBORN

WITH an early fall such ing, as we have been enjoying, with the outlook of a real Indian summer, both things that we seldom have here in Atlanta, our thoughts naturally turn from gardening out of doors to gardening in the house. It is a very natural thing, this gardening-love that we of the south are born with, a love that has been shared by our mothers, grandmothers and great-grandmothers before us. Southern gardens have been famous throughout this country for several generations, some of these very old gardens have been opened to the public within the last few years and thousands of people flock to them from all over the country to enjoy them.

It was within the last few weeks that we heard of another old southern garden that is being dressed up a bit for public visits. This garden is located in Bartow county and gossip says that it is well worth a visit. In spite of the fact that we do not know where this garden is located, one of these fine days we are going to venture forth to Bartow and see if the rumors are correct.

This urge for gardening that we have within us and that has come to us so naturally, cannot be stopped by the coming of a little frost, a little ice and the threat of a little snow. When winter comes and the leaves begin to fall we just move our garden inside the house.

Gardening in the home has taken on several most popular vogues at various times during the past, and each vogue has left us new information that we can now use to advantage. The most recent fad struck us all only about three years ago—called Japanese Gardens and bringing to mind quaint, attractive Japanese scenes. To carry out these scenes it became necessary to use many artificial figures, but many little plants were found that fitted into the general scheme. The most interesting of these were the Jade plants and cacti. The cactus family includes some most fanciful shapes and colors, and a most interesting range of sizes may be found in this family.

WATER GARDENS IN THE HOME.

Probably the most interesting fad, and it really should not be called a fad for it is now a rage, and may shortly be a style, is water gardens in the home. These are an outgrowth of the recent introduction of tropical fish. The tropical fish that are commonly used in the home are all rather small, fantastically colored, some of them highly pugnacious, oddly shaped and have the most interesting breeding and feeding habits.

When these fish were first generally introduced they were enjoyed mostly for their unusual shapes and colors and their unusual breeding and feeding habits. As time went on they were given better homes, large aquariums with all kinds of plants growing in the water. At the present time it is not unusual to see these aquariums planted with eight or ten different kinds of plants, such vallisneria, sagittaria, sinensia, sagittaria subulata, anacharis, ludwigia, caboma, myriophyllum, duck weed, parrot's feather and hair grass. In addition, these are used calms, snails of various types and colors, salamanders and other water animals.

It is necessary that these fish be kept in water of a fairly constant temperature, about 70 degrees. With plenty of oxygenating plants growing in the water it is not necessary for the water to be changed except under very unusual conditions.

Although considerable information is necessary before a water garden may be started in the home, after this information is gathered and we have never seen a tropical fish fan that would not spend hours explaining it all to you, most of the troubles are over, and we have a combination of a garden filled with plants as well as living pets.

LILLIES OF THE VALLEY.

The prepared pips, such as are sold by seed stores, are necessary for growing lily of the valley in the pots. About six pips should be planted in a four or five-inch shallow pot. The tips of the pips should be just above the level of the soil. But first cut off half of the roots that are on the pips. Any good rich soil will do for this purpose, but for best results, use prepared bulb fibre. Prepared bulb fibre generally contains peat moss, charcoal and bone meal in the proper proportions.

Soak the planted pot thoroughly and place in a warm room where the sun will reach it as often as possible. When they are planted in this manner they will bloom in about 15 or 20 days. After you have raised a few pots of these beauties you will probably be able to bloom them in even shorter length of time than that.

In order to have a continuous supply of these for the house during the winter, plant several pots and bury them in the ground after they have been soaked thoroughly. These may be taken up as they are needed and brought into the house. This may be done all through the winter, so be sure and plant plenty of them in order that your supply will not run out

POT CULTURE FOR HYACINTHS.

One of the most interesting of all house plants is hyacinth, pot grown. A great many times there is considerable disappointment in the growth of hyacinths in the house, because of their failure to bloom. In almost every instance this is due to the fact that in the early stages of growth they are kept entirely too warm. It is not best to plant hyacinths in a pot and leave them in the house, just as they come from your seed store. There is a much better plan that will give better results.

To grow hyacinths successfully you should have a good, rich, light soil thoroughly mixed, with a fair amount of sheep manure and about one part to six of bone meal added. The raw bone meal is much better than the steamed, as it acts much more slowly and reaches the height of its activities about the time the hyacinths are in full bloom.

Place a few rocks or pieces of broken pottery in the bottom of the pot for drainage, then fill almost to the rim with this thoroughly prepared, well-screened soil that has been fertilized, and set the bulb or bulbs so that they will be about two-thirds covered. Firm the soil about the bulbs and sink the entire pot about six inches under the ground out-of-doors. The earlier this potting up process is done the better the blooms that will follow.

After we have had several killing frosts and some cold weather, usually about the first of December, these pots may be dug up and brought in the house. For best results pots should be kept in a fairly dark room until growth has reached some three or four inches. At that time pots may be moved into a bright, sunshiny room. Care should be taken that these pots are not placed too close to steam radiators, nor in an over-heated room, as this continued heat will dry out the soil entirely too fast.

It is a good plan to confine yourself to one variety to each pot as the different varieties bloom at slightly different times. When the foliage has reached a height of some three or four inches, it is a good plan to place a small green stake in the center of the pot and tie the foliage to it.

If the color of the foliage is a light, sickly green, this may be remedied by placing the pot in a brighter, more sunshiny situation, or it may be that the plant needs more fertilizer.

PAPER WHITE NARCISSUS.

The easiest of all flowers to bloom in the house is the old favorite, paper white narcissus. We have all planted paper white narcissus so many years that occasionally we forget this, our oldest friend. They are usually planted in bowls with pebbles and water, but for very largest flowers and for best results they should be planted in ordinary flower pots and soil. Plant them with the nose of the bulb just above the surface of the soil and place them in a cool, dark cellar or some dark place where the air circulates freely, or bury them in the ground covering them completely. They should be left in one of these places for two or three weeks while the roots begin to grow, and then brought into the living room.

WHAT TO DO IN OCTOBER.

STRAWBERRIES: Now is the time to prepare the strawberry bed, using large quantities of stable manure, thoroughly worked into the soil. This bed should be allowed to stand for about two to four weeks before the plants are set.

GRASS: Continue to mow the lawn at least once each week to encourage stooling, fertilize once each month for steady growth. Plant the mixtures, Kentucky blue grass and rye grass. Remember to roll the seeds in with a lawn roller.

LILIES: As soon as you have planted the Madonna lilies prepare a bed for the Japanese lilies, which will be planted later.

PRUNING: It is always time to cut dead wood out of all of your plants, shrubs, roses, shade trees, etc. The sooner this dead wood is removed, the quicker will the plant recover itself.

BUGS: Our old friends will be with us for a month or six weeks. The rule that is hard to beat for bugs, although it is an old-fashioned one! Black Leaf Forty for the sucking insects, arsenate of lead for the chewing insects. Spray, rather than dust.

Justice and the Bathtub Mystery

How Jury Convicted David Lamson After Hearing "Weak Case"

By PETER LEVINS.

THE trial is over, the verdict rendered, in the case of the People vs. David Lamson. Justice finds him a murderer and condemns him to death. But will he hang?

To newspaper readers in the east, and possibly other sections, the verdict came as a surprise. In the first place, Dave Lamson had seemed like an awfully nice chap, courteous to his wife and pleasant to his neighbors. It didn't seem credible that such an amiable fellow might beat his gentle wife to death. Also, his behavior on the tragic morning seemed to bear the stamp of genuineness. Why, we read in the papers, during the trial, that the state's case was pitifully weak; so weak, indeed, that it probably wouldn't be necessary even to put in a defense.

How come, then, the conviction? First ballot, 11 to 1; third ballot, 12 to 0, for first-degree murder, How come?

The answer is not easy to find. However, if we assemble the facts into one piece here, perhaps—perhaps—we shall see why those seven men and five women of Santa Clara county, Cal., decided that their neighbor, Dave Lamson, was a murderer. And, incidentally, one of the greatest criminal actors of our generation.

David Lamson, a native of San Jose, Cal. (where he was to be tried for his life), and the only son of a small farmer and orchardist, met Allene Warder Thorpe of Lamar, Mo., while he was a sophomore and she a freshman at Stanford University, at Palo Alto, Cal. Both more or less specialized in journalism, Allene winning her M. A. degree in journalism in 1928, the year they were married.

THE EVENTS OF THAT FATAL MORNING.

Lamson became sales manager of the Stanford University Press. His pretty wife became assistant secretary of the Stanford University Y. W. C. A. A daughter, Alene Genevieve, was born March 16, 1931. At the time of the tragedy the child was with Lamson's mother in the mountains.

Now let us proceed at once to the fatal morning—May 30, 1933.

9:15 A. M.—Lamson is seen at work in the backyard of his one-story bungalow on the Stanford University campus. He is stripped to the waist. He is hoeing and attending a bonfire, from which heavy black smoke rises. He chats with a neighbor, Miss Helen Vincent.

10 A. M.—Mrs. Julia M. Place, a realty agent, driving with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred V. Raas on the way to show them a house for rent, mentions that the Lamson bungalow is also for rent. Mrs. Raas says she would like to inspect it. They stop. Mrs. Place rings the front door bell. When there is no answer she goes around to the rear. She tells Lamson that a party would like to look at the house.

Lamson tells Mrs. Place he will let her and Mrs. Raas in at the front door. The realty agent goes back to the front while Lamson enters by the rear through the kitchen. Mrs. Place and Mrs. Raas wait at the front door for two to three minutes. While they are waiting they hear a peculiar sound—it might be hysterical laughter—and then Lamson rushes to the door, crying that his wife is dead.

10:20 A. M.—Police arrive. The nude body of Allene Lamson hangs over the edge of the half-filled bathtub. Her arms dangle down, the fingers resting on one of Lamson's slippers. There are four ugly wounds on the back of the head. There are pools of blood on the floor and blood spots on the walls and ceiling, yet the upper portion of the body is clean and the wounds are clean. Lamson's garden gloves lie in the blood on the floor.

Various articles of clothing, ostensibly bloodstained, are found in the house. These include Lamson's pajamas, his wife's cotton nightgown, Lamson's bathrobe, his tennis shoes, and other articles we shall take up in more detail later. Lamson's outer shirt, donned after he entered the house to admit Mrs. Place, bears a large stain on the chest, apparently the result of pressing his wife's head to his chest in a spasm of grief.

In the ashes of the fire in the backyard the police find an 11-inch length of three-quarter-inch galvanized iron pipe. Also, according to the police, charred portions of cloth.

* * * *

At first glance, all this seems like a rather imposing array of circumstantial evidence, doesn't it? But do not leap to the conclusion that David Lamson appeared as guilty as the evidence indicated. He had a great deal in his favor—his own behavior, the testimony of neighbors, and his own explanation of what happened up until the moment he discovered the body.

All this we shall present as it came out in the trial.

As for the motive, the police held that Lamson killed his wife in a rage because she had resorted to a trick to avoid his husbandly advances. Their marital relationship, according to the police, had been building up to a climax, and the murder had been the climax. Also, they gathered evidence indicating that Lamson had been friendly with another woman, named Sara Kelley.

Lamson's attorneys insisted that Allene must have been killed by a fall—that she must have slipped and fallen, striking her head on the washbowl. The defense hired Dr. E. O. Heinrich, famed criminologist, to prove this theory to the trial jury.

The third possibility, that Mrs. Lamson was slain by a prowler, figured in the case but slightly, the defense preferring to concentrate on the accident theory.

Lamson's trial opened August 21, in the San Jose courthouse before Judge Robert R. Syer, a friend of the defendant. For the prosecution—Deputy District Attorney Allan P. Lindsay, Chief Deputy J. P. Fitzgerald, and Deputy H. S. Bridges. For the defense—Edwin M. Rea and M. J. Rankin. Members of Lamson's family, including his sisters, Dr. Margaret Lamson, Mrs. Willis C. Thoits, and Mrs. Ernest Munier, occupied front row reserved seats.

Lamson entered the courtroom cool and smiling, looking anything but the defendant in a brutal murder.

Four days were consumed in picking the jury and the testimony began with Dr. Milton Saier, one of the autopsy surgeons. (There were no opening addresses by the attorneys.) Dr. Saier said there were three horizontal and one vertical wound, that they were deep enough to expose the skull, that there was no water in the lungs, and no solid food in the stomach. He held that four wounds would have to be caused by four impacts.

Dr. Blake Wilbur, son of Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford, testified that death was caused by "fracture of the skull, contusion and concussion of the brain." He said any one of the blows was enough to kill.

Mrs. Place then told her story. She said that when he opened the front door Lamson cried, "My God, my wife has been murdered!" She said she didn't go into the bathroom but could see the body hanging over the edge of the tub. She noticed tracks of blood in the living room.

LAMSON'S GRIEF SEEMED "TERRIBLY REAL."

Cross-examined, she declared Lamson appeared normal, in no way agitated, when she talked with him in the garden.

Mrs. Place said she couldn't describe the sound she heard, just before Lamson rushed to the door, but Mrs. Raas, the next witness, described it as "a peculiar sound of laughter." She said Lamson cried out, "My God, my wife has been killed!" Cross-examined, she stated that Lamson's grief seemed "terribly real."

Miss Helen Vincent, director of the Palo Alto Community Center, a next door neighbor, said she chatted with Dave at 8 a. m. He was bare from the waist up and wore no gloves. She saw smoke rising but no blaze. "I saw him again at about 9:50. He was working about two small trees or bushes in back of the garage. He was still bare from the waist up. I warned him to beware of sunburn."

Mrs. Buford O. Brown, wife of a Stanford professor, who was the first to arrive after Mrs. Place and Mrs. Raas, said she went to the bathroom and found Lamson there holding Allene's head to his breast. He was calling upon her to speak to him. She led him out and he fainted, falling on his face. She said she didn't know if he was wearing an undershirt underneath the outer shirt.

Other neighbors told of seeing the heavy black smoke. All agreed Lamson had been stripped to the waist. One woman insisted that the smoke smelled "like burning meat at first, then like burning cloth." Attorney Rea couldn't shake her in this description. She knew burning cloth when she smelled it, and that was that.

Next—a parade of police officers.

Chief of Police H. A. Zink, of Palo Alto, said he arrived on the scene with Officer John W. Gilkey at 10:20. He saw that there were two kinds of blood in the bathroom—clotted blood and "washed blood"—that is, blood diluted with water. He questioned Lamson, who (he said) told the following story—

Lamson said he got up at 5 or 6 a. m., and went to work in the garden. He said his wife had to work on holidays (it was Memorial Day) and so at 9 he woke her up, drew her bath, prepared her breakfast, and returned to the garden. Then Mrs. Place came. He went in through the back way to tidy up a bit. He picked up his pajamas from the living room floor and carried them into the front bedroom. On the way back from the bedroom he saw the body in the tub.

Officer Gilkey, during questioning by Lindsay, said that a linen closet door in the bathroom was open and that stains were on the door and inside. He said that pajamas or a nightgown were hanging inside. He vaguely recalled that Lamson's blue shirt was open at the neck and that there was an undershirt showing.

Lieutenant R. E. Lawrence, who took pictures of the body in the tub, testified the sides of the tub looked as if water had overflowed. He said there were smudges that looked like blood on the woman's arm. He saw a blood stain the size of a quarter on the ceiling of the hallway just outside the bathroom, and the wall of the hallway was spotted.

Gordon R. Davis, Stanford University traffic officer, said he arrived at 10:15, that Lamson was wearing blue jeans or possibly overalls, and a blue shirt over a white athletic undershirt. The outer shirt was unbuttoned all the way down. He insisted there was a big pink blood spot on the undershirt near the beltline. Also, he observed fresh scratches on the right side of Lamson's face above the nose, and scratches on his hands.

Later he went into the yard and, poking around the fire, found the piece of pipe which the state held had been the murder weapon.

Earle G. Hamilton, dour undersheriff, who was the prime mover back of the investigation which led to a charge of murder against Lamson, testified he arrived with Deputy John Moore, at 10:50. He said he found some clothes back of the couch in the living room. He identified these in court—the blue shirt, overalls, woolen socks and tennis shoes.

No undershirt was in the bundle opened in court at this time.

The state also put in evidence a 4-foot length of 3-4-inch pipe, found outside under the kitchen window.

And after that, an undershirt was produced for identification.

Frank J. Taylor, associate editor of the Stanford Press, told of a conversation with Lamson five weeks before the tragedy. He declared Lamson had said Allene would not be happy until there was a complete separation of the family, and that she wanted some sort of advertising job. Lamson had told him that the situation in the home was such that it could not go on indefinitely; that it would have to reach a climax soon.

The defense attacked Taylor vigorously in cross-examination, but he stuck to his guns.

Undersheriff Hamilton then returned to the stand (it was now nine days since the trial opened) and testified he saw blood in the kitchen and on the outside door of the laundry at the rear of the house. He said the lapels of the bathrobe were wet, as though some one had grabbed the lapels with hands wet with blood and water. He also declared Lamson's face bore scratches.

(While Hamilton was on the stand the defense attorneys' veneer of courtesy began to show some cracks. Mr. Lindsay and his associates were doing a rather thorough job.)

FOUND TROUSERS AND SHIRT IN BUNDLE.

Deputy Moore said he found Lamson's pants and shirt rolled up in a bundle under the bed in the rear bedroom (nursery). They were sopping wet with water and blood. Moore admitted he and Hamilton quickly concluded that Allene Lamson had been murdered and that Lamson had killed her. He declared he heard the husband cry out, "My God, why did I marry her?" and heard Dr. Lamson say, "David, don't say that!"

He said Lamson told him, when he talked with him that morning, that he tossed the slippers into the bathroom on the way to the front bedroom, that he put the pajamas and bathrobe on the bedroom floor, and that he saw the body on the way back.

* * * *

Other witnesses told of Lamson's association with Sara Kelley. He had proposed a job for her on the Press, had bought her flowers, visited her, eaten breakfasts with her. Also, Lamson had registered at hotels in Sacramento (where Sara Kelley lived) at various times from January until the middle of April.

As for his slipper being under her hands there, he explained that when he found her he lifted her up and she slipped back into the tub, and he lifted her again but couldn't get her out of the tub.

Dr. W. A. Meyer, anatomist, testified that "certain hemorrhagic areas" on the head of the victim had probably been caused by some one jerking the hair before death.

(Her hair had been in two braids; one braid was still wound around the head, the other was undone and dangling down between the arms.)

Dr. Frederick Proescher, celebrated expert, said tests showed that there had been blood diluted with water on the lapels of the bathrobe, washed-out blood on the bottom of Allene's nightgown, blood on Dave's slippers and Allene's slippers, blood diluted with water on Dave's blue shirt and blue jeans, blood on the front of his tennis shoes and on the pajama top, blood on the outside of the gloves.

Q. Washed blood?

A. No. Fresh blood.

The state rested, looking very confident.

The defense, in questioning witnesses, stressed the fact that Lamson had appeared normal and composed before the discovery of the body. Dr. Lamson denied her brother had said, "My God, why did I ever marry her?" Dr. Lamson's associate, Dr. Edith Johnson, also denied Lamson had said this, or that the sister had said, "David, don't say that!"

Mrs. Buford Brown, called by the defense, now related that she found a man's undershirt hanging on the lattice in the backyard. It had not been washed, she said, for it showed signs of perspiration. She gave the shirt to an officer, she said. Mrs. Thoits, sister of the defendant, testified she recalled hearing Mrs. Brown speak about the shirt.

Lamson took the stand in his own defense on September 6.

They had spent the previous evening playing bridge at the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Wright and Allene had eaten some lemon pie. She complained of indigestion as they were preparing for bed, so he decided to sleep in the back bedroom. He got his work clothes out of a closet and put them in the living room.

Attorney Rea asked him where he undressed. He said in the living room, and then corrected himself, saying he undressed in the back room, leaving his coat, white flannel trousers and white shirt in the bathroom.

He also said he intended to put the bathrobe, etc., in the hall closet.

He heard Allene call between 3 and 4 a. m. She said she couldn't sleep, so he rubbed her back, got her some lemon juice, and later a cup of soup and a cheese sandwich. Then, after he had taken the tray back to the kitchen, he went to bed—again in the rear room.

About 6 a. m. he got up, dressed in the living room in his work clothes, got himself some breakfast, and went out into the garden. He donned work boots in the garage. He lighted the bonfire about 8, and at 9 went in to awaken Allene. First, however, he drew her bath, then awakened her with a kiss. She got up, coiled up her hair, and started for the bathroom. He said he held her arm to steady her as she stepped into the water.

Then he returned to the yard. He took off his outer shirt and undershirt, to get the benefit of the sun, and hung them over the lattice. Then Mrs. Place came and he slipped on the outer shirt, leaving the undershirt on the lattice.

He entered the nouse, stopping to take off the heavy work shoes and put on his tennis shoes. Then he picked up his robe and slippers and pajamas and "started into the hall and into the bedroom with them." Immeriately he saw the blood on the bathroom floor and the body. (Note that he testified he saw the body before he reached the front bedroom.)

He said he entered the bathroom and picked Allene up in his arms. He felt sure, he said, that she was dead. She slipped from his arms and the body slid down into the water, covering her, and he pulled her up again as best he could. Then he went to the front door, where Mrs. Place was waiting.

Later, questioned by Rea, he said he also had his gloves in his hands when he saw the body. And that he "just dropped everything."

Lamson appeared to stand up very well under Lindsay's meticulous cross-examination. Lindsay went over the story time and again, but the witness held doggedly to his version.

What about the scratches on his hands? He must have got them working on the blackberry bushes. What about the scratch on his face? He said he did not have any scratches on his face. What about the gloves? Well, he had overlooked mentioning the gloves. What about Allene's nightgown? She usually hung it on the linen closet door.

FAIL TO PROVE DEATH AN ACCIDENT.

After Lamson's ordeal on the stand was over, the defense began a determined effort to prove that the death had been accidental. This effort was a more or less complete failure, the court ruling that this would be for the jury to decide, and that the photos and and tests made by Dr. Heinrich had been made after the bathroom had been cleaned.

Lindsay in his final argument declared that Lamson demonstrated his guilt upon the stand by the manner and wording of his answers.

"I guess, I knew, I felt sure she was dead," he quoted from the defendant's testimony. And again:

"I took them (his night garments) into—as a matter of fact—I intended to put them in the hall closet."

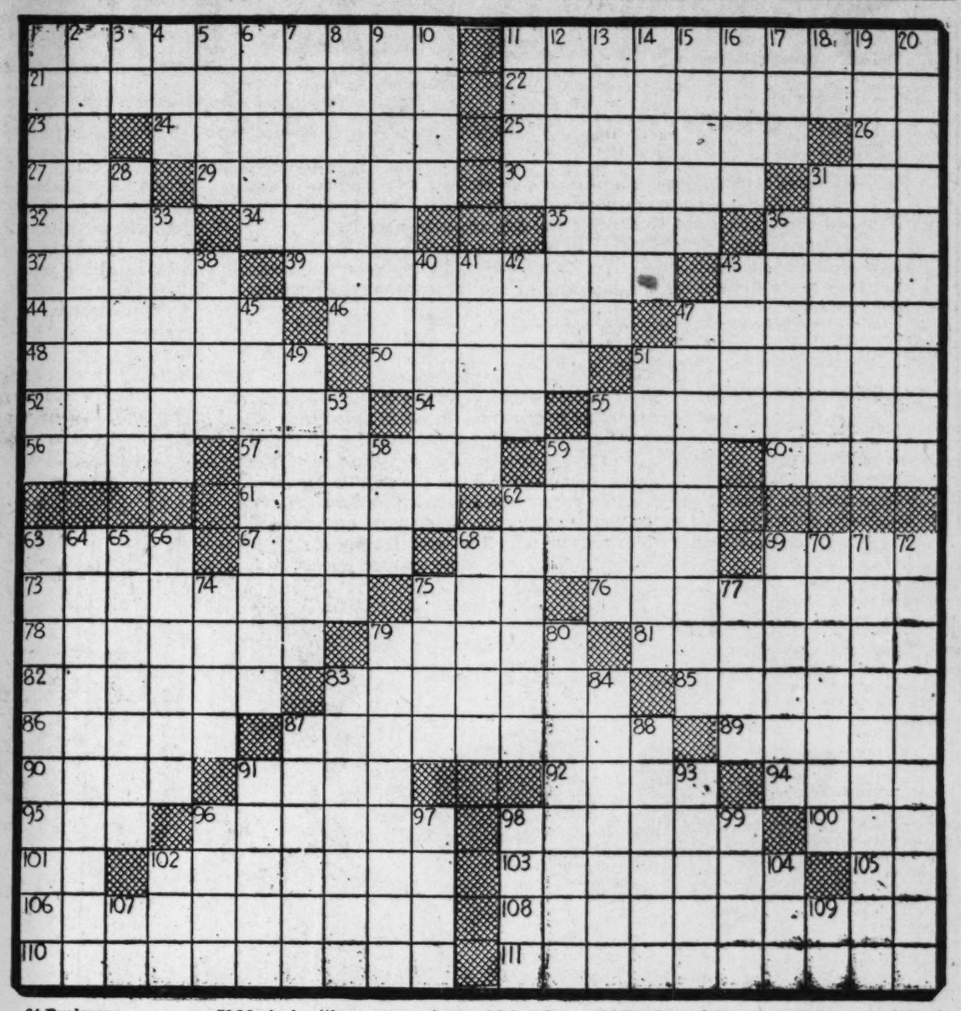

"He almost slipped there," said Lindsay. "He almost said here on the witness stand what, in fact, he told officers at his home that day—that he put that already blood-spotted bathrobe and pajamas in the front bedroom before he discovered his wife's body."

The jury deliberated five hours and, at 8:38 p. m., September 16, returned a verdict of guilty without recommendation of life imprisonment.

Solution of Last Week's Puzzle.

Culbertson on Contract

PROTECTING PARTNER.

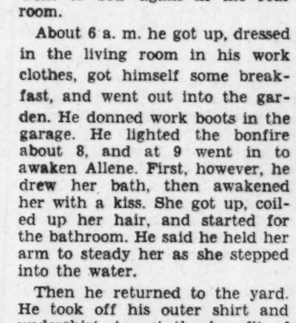

BY ELY CULBERTSON.

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

WALTER F. WYMAN, of Boston, Mass., is well known to American bridge players as a very keen analyst in his own right hand as a close associate of Milton C. Work, one of the men to whom bridge owes a tremendous debt. Mr. Wyman, in both play and analysis, recognizes instinctively the correct line of play. Hence, I am very glad to have the opportunity to record two hands which he was kind enough to send me. The first was one which he was defending, having as a partner R. M. Kimball, of Boston. The play, a splendid defensive maneuver, was made in a team-of-four match at the Winchester Country Club.

East, Dealer.

East and West vulnerable.

The final contract was three no-trump by West—perhaps not the best contract on the hand, although the hands are obvious misfits.

North's opening lead was the spade 4, and West won this trick and led the diamond knave, which was permitted to win. Mr. Kimball won the second round, and returned a spade, which Mr. Wyman won with the ace. Mr. Wyman now led the six of hearts, being unwilling to give the declarer a count on the hands by a fourth-best lead and unable to lead a high heart because of the high termediates in the dummy. The declarer's dilemma here is, of course, apparent. North and South have taken a spade trick and a diamond trick. If she wins the trick in her own hand with the ten, at the end she will be compelled to lead from her minor tenaces in clubs or spades and almost inevitably lose three more tricks. If, however, she can force the lead up to her hand after cashing a total of seven tricks in the two red suits and make only one more trick, her game is home.

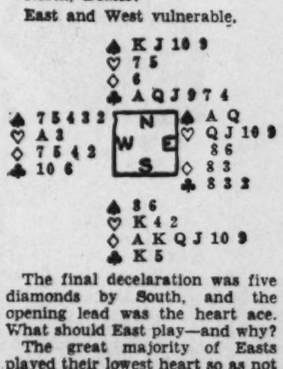

After winning the heart in the dummy, she led the diamond ace, on which Mr. Kimball followed suit and Mr. Wyman discarded a club. On the next diamond Mr. Kimball played the queen of clubs and followed with the deuce on the third. Naturally this made it imperative for Mr. Wyman to discard both his spades, with the result that the declaration was set one trick.

The outstanding point of this splendid defensive play by Mr. Kimball is that he made it all but impossible for his partner to go wrong and infinitely easy for him to go right at the earliest possible moment and before Mr. Wyman could discard the three small clubs with which he was marked. As Mr. Wyman points out, there is altogether too little discussion of the art of protecting partner, which is the backbone of many fine defensive plays. It is granted that the average player has a hard time of it on the defense to protect his own 13 cards, but it is only when a player learns to consider his own holding as a part—and only a part—of partnership assets that true team work can come into existence.

Further illustrating this principle, Mr. Wyman submits the following hand:

North, Dealer.

East and West vulnerable.

The final decelaration was five diamonds by South, and the opening lead was the heart ace. What should East play—and why?

The great majority of Easts played their lowest heart so as not to encourage a continuation of the suit. When Mr. Kimball played the queen, his partner's doubts were ended.

First of all, this positively denied the king. Then, it showed Mr. Kimball's desire to tell his partner that since all he held was a long sequence headed by the queen, she must shift. For had a continuation of hearts been desired some other high heart—but not the queen—would have been played.

The shift to spades was inevitable and the contract defeated in place of declarer's scoring six odd—six diamonds plus six clubs.

SEEN AT A BUSINESS LUNCHEON

Woolens and Jerseys Are Favored In Varied Weights and Colors

THE American business girl dresses as well as any woman in the world. She has taste and knows how to use it. She spends time and thought on her wardrobe, and the results show it.

Manufacturers and designers of women's clothes in this country have come to know this, and strive to please with simple, smart frocks that they know are cut on the lines and of the fabrics that the business girl prefers.

At this season of the year the Miss who travels to the office each day finds the woolen costume very appropriate. There are lovely suits, cut on sporty lines, fashioned of rabbits' wool, wool crepe, and jersey. If one prefers something of lighter weight, you may choose a frock of sheer wool, trimmed with satin, or perhaps with a dashing bit of fur.

You can have a grand time with color this season. Reds, browns, greens—especially a lovely new olive shade—yellows and the russet tones, are all favored. Of course, black is always appropriate, and there is a new eel grey that is making quite a place for itself.

Today we show you a group of stunning costumes that are representative of what the well-dressed business girl is and will be wearing this season.

BROWN AND GREEN

THE stunning jacket frock of brown rabbits' wool (below) features a pointed yoke and bow scarf of green tie silk. A simple frock of rich dark red bengaline has the shoulder width emphasized with bands of black caracul. The bow finishing the youthful neckline is of the same fabric, and there is a black suede belt. Note the double-breasted effect and the tucked panel which runs from shoulder to hem. Black is always effective, and particularly so in this sheer wool crepe frock combined with shiny black satin, which is used for bodice front, collar and wide draped sash.

WARM AND SMART

DARK green wool makes this charming two-piece frock, lavishly trimmed with leopard. A side fastening with self-covered buttons is featured, and there is a rather wide belt of the same fabric. The wrap-around skirt is cut on slim lines.

BLACK FOR TEA-TIME

FOR immediately after office hours we suggest the black sheer wool crepe frock sketched at the lower left, with its intriguing flared shoulder lines, surplice bodice, and gilet of white satin. A scarf of red and white striped crepe adds a gay note to this simple costume of brown wool. Note the dropped shoulder line and straight, full sleeves.

BONNETS FOR BUSINESS

SIMPLE, small hats are favored. At the extreme left is a tiny beret of green antelope. It is worn with a one-piece green rabbits' wool frock and grey kidskin coat. Next to this is sketched a sophisticated draped turban of garnet red wool. It matches the frock in color and fabric. The brown wool coat is lavishly collared with mink.

FAMOUS DATE TREE—California's famous "date" tree where the romantically inclined male may leave his card for some fair female to discover and investigate. The tree is literally plastered with cards.

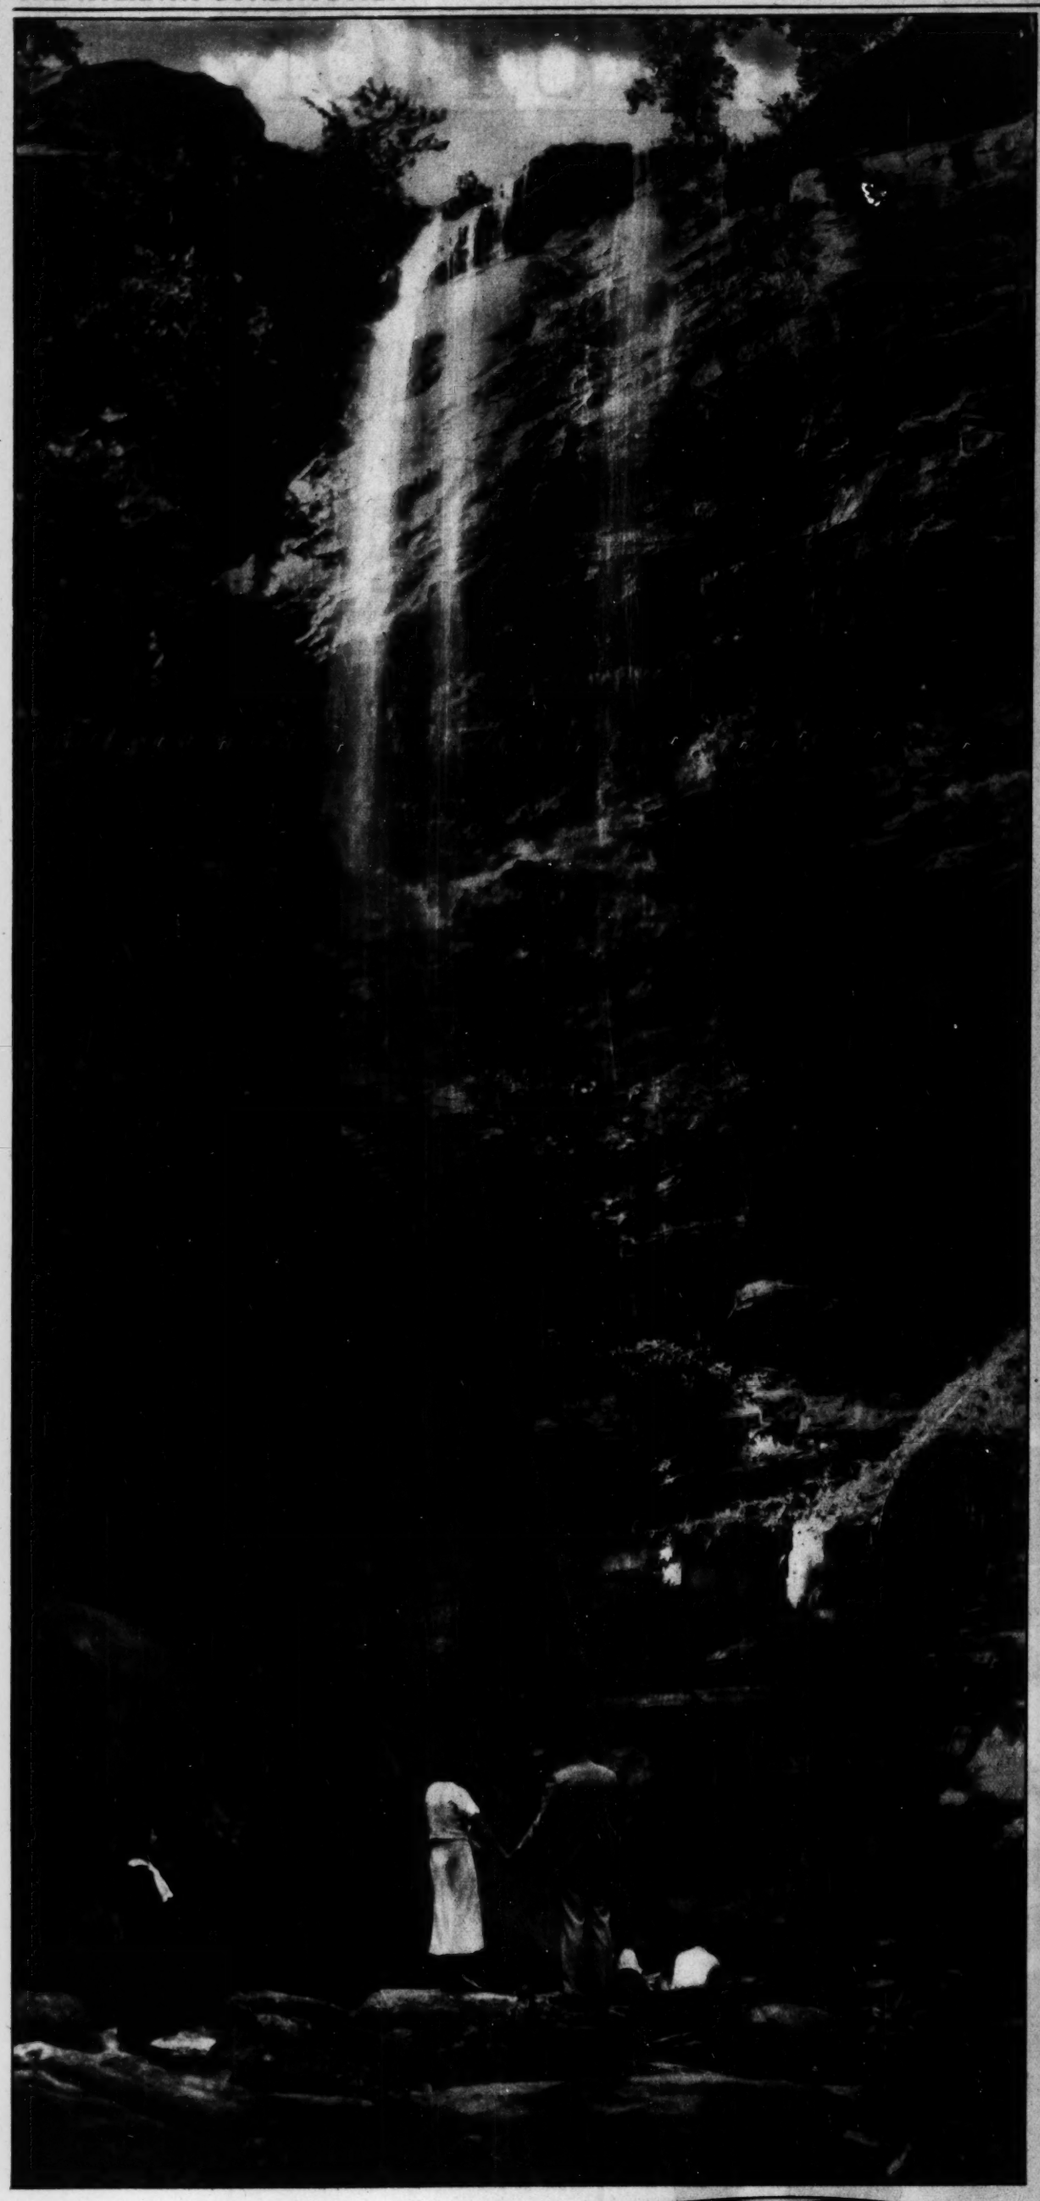

(Right) SOME SQUASH!—C. E. Malone, of Atlanta, claims first honors for a squash raising! This specimen, held by Mrs. Jewel Trout, was grown in his backyard garden and attained a length of over 5 feet.

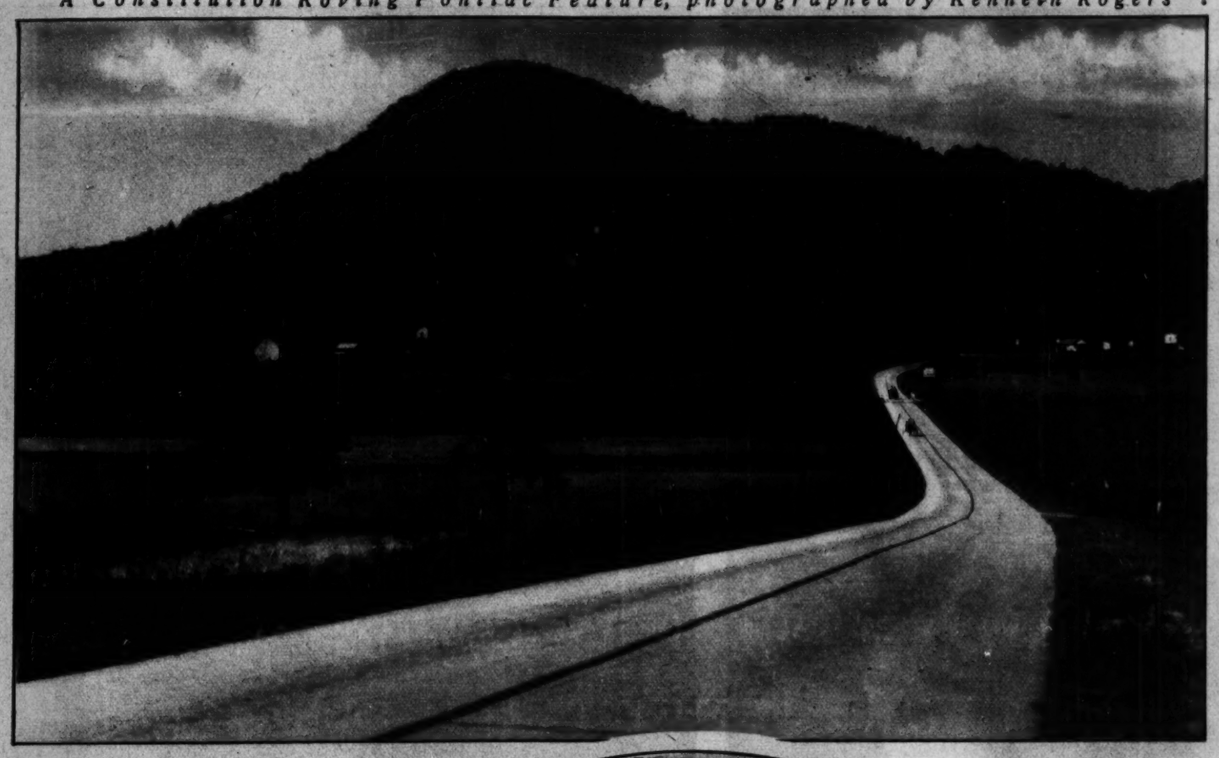

VIOLIN THAT WEIGHS ONE-FOURTH OF AN OUNCE—Reid Griffin, of Macon, has just completed this remarkable miniature violin. The strings are almost as delicate as hairs. Using a magnifying glass its takes one hour and a half to string it to its right pitch. It is an exact copy of Alert Theador Heberlein's famous del Gesu 1737. Five months were required to make it.

ROMANCE REWARDS

that schoolgirl complexion

This much olive oil goes into the making of every cake of Palmolive.

So keep skin youthful this way, with Palmolive's secret blend of olive and palm oils

MEN don't even notice the clothes she is wearing. They don't stop to count her birthdays. For they are held, spellbound, by the glamour of a youthful skin.

What wouldn't you give for such a skin? Yet all you really need give is simple daily care of the very easiest sort. But that care must be faithful.

Beauty oils for your skin

Nature has provided the beauty oils that will do so much to glorify your skin? They are olive and palm oils. And they have been blended for you in the making of Palmolive—the soap of youth.

This exclusive blend is secret. It is unlike any other. And it has made Palmolive the world's outstanding beauty soap.

Olive oil – pure, rich olive oil – gives Palmolive its natural, olive-green color. Olive oil, too, gives it that smooth, rich lather – no harsh alkali, no strong perfume.

Palmolive's mild lather gently penetrates the tiny pores, freeing them of accumulations easily . . . leaving skin soft, smooth, gloriously clear and fresh, casting a veritable veil of loveliness over you.

Keep skin young this way

Buy three cakes today. Then start this 2-minute treatment recommended by over twenty thousand beauty specialists: every morning and evening, massage a rich lather of Palmolive Soap gently into the skin with your hands; rinse it off with warm water, then with cold. Do that twice every day for a month. Watch entrancing freshness return to your skin . . . and realize, with a thrill, that romance does reward that schoolgirl complexion.

P. S. Are you schoolgirl complexion all over? Use Palmolive for the bath, too. It costs so little . . . gives such beauty protection.

HASTINGS'

FORTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

In 1918 Hastings' Plantation was established at a site on the Dixie Highway, between Jonesboro and Lovejoy. At this location was found 1,500 acres of land ideally suited for the propagation and growth of bulbs, seeds, perennial plants and nursery stock. Thousands of roses, including hundreds of varieties, are also carefully grown each year.
Hastings' Nurseryland, an integral part of the Atlanta store, was designed and arranged for the proper care and display of nursery stock. There one may select from freshly dug plants the exact plant desired. This includes perennial plants, roses, fruit trees, shade trees, conifers, evergreens and flowering shrubs.

AND SO SHERIFF WATTS LEAPS INTO THE SADDLE AND GALLOPS OFF TO TOWN- THE HUGE GOLD SHIPMENT STOLEN BY RED RIGGLES' BAND IN THE TRAIN ROBBERY HAS BEEN LOCATED AT LAST- WITH THE AID OF THE TREASURE CHART WHICH CHESTER AND JERRY SNATCHED FROM THE HAT-BANDS OF THE BANDIT GANG- THE TWO BOYS FINALLY LOCATED THE SECRET HIDING PLACE OF THE ROBBERS' LOOT- AND HERE TOO IS THE MONEY STOLEN IN A DOZEN OTHER ROBBERIES-

AND IS COUSIN CHARLEY TICKLED WITH CHESTER? YOU BET HE IS- THE LITTLE TENDERFOOT FROM BACK EAST HAS SUCCEEDED WHERE HALF A DOZEN SHERIFFS POSSES AND A TROUP OF RANGERS HAVE FAILED-

THE BIG REWARD- HERE IS THE NOTICE THAT CHESTER AND JERRY SAW NAILED TO A TREE- WITH THE ROBBERS CAPTURED AND THE LOOT RECOVERED- THE BOYS HAVE A CHANCE TO SHARE IN ALL THIS MONEY-

MEANWHILE- SHERIFF WATTS IS GALLOPING OVER GULLEY AND GULCH AT BREAKNECK SPEED- WHOOPING WITH JOY AT THE THOUGHT OF SENDING RED RIGGLES TO JAIL AND RESTORING ALL THAT CASH TO THE RIGHTFUL OWNERS-

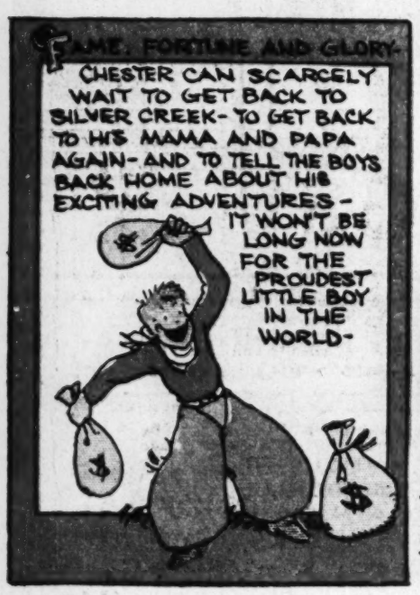

EVERY STROKE OF THE SHOVEL SENDS A SHOWER OF GOLD PIECES FLYING, AS OLD COUSIN CHARLEY DIGS TO THE BOTTOM OF THE BIG GOLD CACHE- CHESTER AND JERRY ARE KEPT BUSY AS TWO LITTLE ANTS, SCURRYING AFTER THE COINS, SO THAT NOT A SINGLE CENT OF THE PRECIOUS METAL WILL BE LOST-

"TO THE DEATH!"

THE BATTLE-CRY OF THE GREAT APES BURST FROM TARZAN'S THROAT AS THE IBEKS CHARGED.

IT RALLIED THE EGYPTIANS, AND GRIMLY THEY WAITED, FOR THE IBEKS OUTNUMBERED THEM TWO TO ONE.

BEHIND THEM THE PHARAOH TUTAMKEN, DRAWING HIS SWORD, RUSHED UPON KAMUR. "DIE, MONSTER!" HE SHOUTED. BUT NIKOTRIS THREW HERSELF BEFORE THE IBEK PRINCE SO THAT THE PHARAOH COULD NOT STRIKE.

"DO YOU TURN AGAINST YOUR PEOPLE, O TRAITOROUS NIKOTRIS?" CRIED TUTAMKEN. "NO, PHARAOH," SHE ANSWERED, "FOR KAMUR ALONE CAN SAVE US!"

THE IBEK GIANT SOFTENED BEFORE HER GAZE. QUIETLY NIKOTRIS SPOKE TO HIM. AT ONCE HE FACED THE CHARGING IBEKS AND ROARED A SINGLE WORD.

THE HORSES REARED AND PLUNGED AS THE IBEKS CHECKED THEIR MAD ADVANCE. FIERCELY THEY GLARED AT THE EGYPTIANS, BUT THEY WOULD NOT DISOBEY THEIR PRINCE.

KAMUR GRASPED NIKOTRIS BY THE HAND. "THE PRINCESS COMES WITH ME, PHARAOH," HE SAID. "IT IS THAT---OR DEATH FOR ALL!"

"DEATH, THEN, IT IS!" CRIED TUTAMKEN, "AND THE TRAITRESS NIKOTRIS SHALL BE THE FIRST TO DIE!" THE IBEKS SHOUTED IN SAVAGE JOY OF BATTLE AS THEY HEARD HIS WORDS.

AS THE WARRIORS RAISED THEIR SPEARS TO STRIKE, TARZAN SUDDENLY CALLED TO THEM TO HALT. THE IBEKS HESITATED BEFORE HIS COMMANDING PRESENCE.

"ALL NEED NOT DIE, O PHARAOH!" SAID TARZAN. "LET THE IBEKS CHOOSE THE STRONGEST MAN AMONG THEM. LET ME---ALONE---FIGHT HIM TO DECIDE THE ISSUE!"

"WELL SAID, MAN OF THE APES!" SAID KAMUR. "I, PRINCE KAMUR, SHALL BE THE CHAMPION OF MY PEOPLE. LET US FIGHT---TO THE DEATH!" "TO THE DEATH!" SHOUTED TUTAMKEN. "TARZAN, GREAT SHALL BE YOUR REWARD!"

QUICKLY THE WARRIORS FORMED A RING. THE GIANT KAMUR SMILED AS TARZAN FACED HIM. "ASK NO QUARTER, MAN OF THE APES!" HE SAID, AND SLOWLY THE TWO ADVANCED, THEIR HANDS TENSED FOR THE DEATH-GRIP, THEIR FEET BRACED FOR THE SPRING!

OW! MY THROAT!

GEE, "UNCLE" DAN- IF WE COULD ONLY GET OUT OF THIS DAMP, DARK, OLD ROOM, I THINK I'D FEEL BETTER-

BUT WE HAVEN'T ANY MONEY, ANNIE- WE EVEN OWE FOR A WEEK'S RENT HERE- MR. CHIZZLER HASN'T PAID US FOR THE WEEK BEFORE LAST-

I GUESS HE WOULD HAVE PAID US LAST SUNDAY, BUT I GOT SICK, AND HE FORGOT IT- DIDN'T HE SAY HE WAS COMING TO SEE ME?

YES- HE SAID HE WAS GOING TO BRING A DOCTOR- THEY OUGHT TO BE HERE ANY MOMENT-

MY THROAT HURTS AWFUL- . AND IT'S GETTIN' WORSE- WHY DON'T THEY COME?

SH! THAT'S MR. CHIZZLER'S STEP, IN THE HALL- AND SOME ONE IS WITH HIM-

HERE WE ARE, DOCTOR- I DON'T IMAGINE IT'S ANYTHING SERIOUS- JUST A LITTLE COLD. NO DOUBT-

AH- SO THIS IS OUR PATIENT EH?

I KEEP TELLING HER SHE COULD SING, IF SHE WASN'T SUCH A BABY-

HM-M- NOT SO GOOD-

WELL, LITTLE LADY, YOU HAVE A PRETTY BAD THROAT THERE- YOU'LL NOT SING AGAIN; FOR A LONG TIME, AT LEAST- BUT I'LL GIVE MR. CHIZZLER A PRESCRIPTION FOR YOU, AND HE MUST GET YOU OUT OF THIS PLACE-

SHE'LL NOT SING FOR A YEAR AT LEAST- FILL THIS PRESCRIPTION AT ONCE AND GIVE IT TO HER, TO RELIEVE THE PAIN- AND GET HER TO A HOSPITAL-

YES, YES, DOCTOR- MY-MY- I HAD NO IDEA SHE WAS SO SICK-

BAH! SHE'S NO MORE GOOD TO ME- WHY WASTE MONEY ON MEDICINE FOR HER? I'LL CALL THAT DOC. LATER AND TELL HIM THEY HAVE RUN OUT ON ME- THAT WILL KEEP HIM FROM CHECKING UP ON THE CASE-

AND I'LL CHECK OUT OF THIS HOTEL IN A HURRY, SO THE DOC OR THAT BRAT CAN'T FIND ME- LUCKY I DIDN'T PAY THEM LAST WEEK- I SAVED THAT MUCH, AT LEAST-

AH- SAFE IN A TAXI- GREAT SCOTT- SHE WOULD LOSE HER VOICE, JUST AS I WAS SET TO MAKE A FORTUNE- WHAT DID I EVER DO TO DESERVE SUCH LUCK?

WHY ISN'T HE BACK? YOU DON'T SUPPOSE HE'S RUN OUT ON US, DO YOU, "UNCLE" DAN?

OH, HE'LL HAVE TO COME BACK, TO PAY US FOR THE LAST WEEK WE WORKED- HE COULDN'T BE SO INHUMAN AS TO LEAVE US THIS WAY-
